JFK Orders Ban on U.S. Atom Tests

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy announced today that he, Soviet Premier Khrushchev and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will send special negotiators to a high-level conference in Moscow in mid-July for a new effort to conclude a nuclear test ban treaty.

In announcing this new breakthrough in the long test ban exchanges, Kennedy also declared an immediate ban on any U.S. nuclear tests in the atmosphere so long as other states do not test. This put the specific question of a new round of nuclear explosions in the atmosphere up to Khrushchev.

"We will not be the first to resume," the President said in an address prepared for commencement exercises at American University. "Such a declaration is no substitute for a formal binding treaty—but I hope it will help us achieve one."

The understanding on the Moscow meeting is that it will not be a Summit Session nor a foreign ministers conference but rather a meeting of representatives of Khrushchev, Kennedy and Macmillan, the representatives to be men who command their highest confidence.

"Our hopes must be tempered with the caution of history," Kennedy said of the conference to break the nuclear deadlock, "But with out hopes go the hopes of all mankind."

In making his announcement Kennedy moved swiftly from one area of crucial national concern to another. He was just back from Honolulu where he made a major plea to the nation's mayors to join in a campaign for racial

No Violence Seen in Boy's Ice Box Death

El Paso County Coroner Raoul Urich said this morning that he found no signs indicating that Richard James Forney had been molested or treated violently before he died in a refrigerator Saturday. Urich said the cause of death was suffocation.

Forney was found in the refrigerator at 1033 S. Baltic St. by his mother at about 3:35 p.m. The 8 year old boy had been seen talking to an unknown man shortly before he disappeared Friday afternoon.

Mount Everest Climbers Rest In Katmandu

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI)—Members of an American mountain-climbing expedition which made a record three conquests of Mt. Everest rested here today from the rigors of their 110-day outing.

Leader Norman G. Dyhrenfurth, 44, of Santa Monica, Calif., brought the party down the last few hundred yards of trail Sunday to be greeted by a cheering crowd at Banepa, the expedition's starting point. He was accompanied by his wife, who had hiked out to meet him.

The men were in high spirits and good health—including Luther G. Jerstad, 26, of Eugene, Ore., who suffered frostbitten toes while participating in the unprecedented May 22 double assault on the 29,028-foot peak, the world's highest. His frostbite apparently was minor.

They were welcomed by Henry E. Stebbins, U.S. ambassador to Nepal, and then got into cars and jeeps for the short ride into Katmandu.

Two members of the expedition already were here— William F. Unsoeld, 36, of Corvallis, Ore., and Barry C. Bishop, 30, of Washington, D.C. They were flown here by helicopter May 27 from the slopes of Mt. Everest to be treated for frostbite.

They had spent a night in the open at 28,000 feet May 22 with Jerstad and Dr. Thomas F. Hornbein, 32, of San Diego, Calif., who apparently suffered no ill effects.

The returning climbers included James W. Whittaker, 32, of Redmond, who became the first American to scale the world's tallest mountain May 1, accompanied by Nepalese Sherpa guide Nawang Gombu.

Only one of the 20 original expedition members was absent. John E. Breitenbach, 27, of Jackson, Wyo., was killed March 23 when he was buried under falling ice on the Khumbu icefall on the slopes of Mt. Everest. His body has not been recovered.

Scandal Reported Threat To Career of Macmillan

By ANTHONY WHITE

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan returned from a golfing vacation today and ordered an inquiry into security aspects of the Profumo scandal which threatens Macmillan's own career.

The inquiry is being made by Lord Dilhorne, who as lord chancellor is Britain's highest legal authority.

He will determine if British Security was breached or was negligent as a result of former War Minister John Profumo's illicit affair with Christine Keeler, a 21-year-old red-haired party girl who at the same time in 1961, was sharing her bed with Soviet naval attache Capt. Yevgeny (Eugene) Ivanov.

Ivanov is generally regarded as a Russian intelligence agent.

Political sources said Dilhorne's report is in the works and probably will be completed this week. The report will be handed to Macmillan and Labor party leader Harold Wilson but may not necessarily be made public.

Meanwhile, Dr. Stephen Ward, the 50-year-old society osteopath who introduced Christine to Profumo, was brought into the Marlborough St. Magistrate's court today on a charge of living on the proceeds of prostitution. He was ordered held without bail for a

Gulf Fisherman Survives Six Days in Box

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A tired Pennsylvania fisherman said he weathered the choppy Gulf of Mexico in a 39-inch square bait box for six days before he was rescued Sunday.

Blistered and sunburned, Russell C. Swift, 45, said, "out there the days are awfully long, and the nights are even longer."

The West Springfield, Pa., man told the Coast Guard his 30-foot snapper boat, the Java, sank on its inaugural run June 3, 60 miles from shore.

Swift said he climbed into the wooden bait box, just big enough to crouch in, and set himself afloat. At times, he said he saw other fishing vessels, and at one point, came close to land, but the tide carried him out to sea again.

He was picked up 50 miles southwest of here after an amphibian Coast Guard plane spotted the bobbing box.

Swift said it rained the second night at sea and he had fresh water to drink. He wore out his shoes bailing out the bait box and had to throw them away.

The amphibian plane notified a shrimper, the Coral King, to get Swift out of the water and a helicopter brought him to Fort Myers, and a hospital.

Mayors Promise Plan to Reduce Racial Tensions

By ROBERT MYERS

HONOLULU (AP) — President Kennedy's call for a five-point program to reduce racial tension in cities was taken up today by several of the nation's most powerful mayors who pledged a battle to see it through.

New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner said of the President's message: "It is a real challenge. A lot of us will fight to see that our conference adopts a resolution supporting his position."

Backing up Wagner at the national mayors' conference were Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, Mayor Jerome Cavanagh of Detroit and Mayor Joseph Barr of Pittsburgh.

Cavanagh, in fact, went farther in support of Kennedy's suggestions, terming civil rights "the most critical problem confronting the nation today. It is more critical than Cuba or Berlin."

Kennedy made a 30-minute speech to the assembled mayors Sunday afternoon, emphasizing that Negroes are certain to win equal rights and calling on the city chief executives to make the process a peaceful revolution.

Snowstorm Strands Motorists

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP)—A Sudden snowstorm stranded several hundred motorists for hours Sunday along the nation's highest continuous road, which snakes through the Rocky Mountain National Park.

Eight inches of snow fell on Trail Ridge Road, and there was 16 inches elsewhere in the northern Colorado park.

A ranger, Bill Quisenberry, was trapped on the road as winds 40 miles an hour cut visibility to zero. He took shelter and was rescued several hours later.

Drifts covered the hoods of park trucks being used to clear the road which reaches an official altitude of 12,183 feet.

Across the foothills, about one inch of rain was deposited along with some heavy hail. There was one inch of snow in most of the central Rockies.

Six Deaths Are Reported in Colorado Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The count now stands at 202, or 37 more than on this date a year ago.

A young man and a baby died in a three-car crash in Montrose County Sunday night.

An unidentified pedestrian was killed in Costilla County in another accident Sunday night.

A Cortez man was killed near Durango Sunday while a Longmont couple died late Saturday night in a collision in Boulder County.

The victims of the three-car smash were Charles R. Grater, 21, of Rt. 1, Ridgeway, who died of a skull fracture and a brain injury, and Penny S. Grater, 7 months, who also suffered a skull fracture.

The injured were all taken to Memorial Hospital in Montrose.

The State Patrol said the car driven by Devinny was heading

Smoke Signals Again Will Be Used in Vatican Voting

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican has decided against a light signal to flash word from the Sistine Chapel on the election of a new Pope, a Vatican radio official said today.

Vatican radio sources said last week that the official radio station was studying the possibility of installing an electrical system between the chapel and the Vatican radio studio. Someone inside the chapel would throw a switch and a system of lights would indicate whether a Pope had been elected or whether there was no agreement.

But the system apparently falls under a conclave rule which bans "telegraphic, telephonic, microphonic, radiophonic, photographic, cinematographic and other similar instruments."

Thus the traditional smoke system will still be used. Vatican radio also will rely on the smoke.

At the conclave, opening June 19, ballots will be burned after every voting session. A substance mixed with the ballots is supposed to produce black smoke to show no Pope has been elected or white smoke to show one has been chosen.

Gov. Wallace Risks Jail In Alabama Showdown

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Clinging defiantly to a tattered banner of segregation and risking a jail term, Gov. George C. Wallace headed today for an imminent crisis at the University of Alabama.

The two Negro students he has sworn to turn back at the university doors returned to Alabama after a weekend in New York to await the showdown.

"We shall defend our rights and we shall dare to do so," the 43-year-old governor said Sunday night.

"I am going to stand for you at the university," he told the people of Alabama in a radio-television broadcast.

Tracks of Quinn Are Washed Out By Rainstorm

WESTCLIFFE, Colo. (AP) — A cold rainstorm washed out tracks which 100 searchers hoped Sunday would lead them to Patrick Quinn, 26, lost in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

The snow cover was one inch deep.

Quinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Quinn of Stratton, wandered away from a family picnic Friday. He has a physical disability.

The search late Saturday and Sunday was concentrated in the rugged Colony Lakes area about 15 miles southwest of Westcliffe. The area 11,000 feet high is marked by abandoned gold mines.

Bloodhounds from the State Prison at nearby Canon City aided the searchers who included Ft. Carson volunteers and sheriff's officers.

The missing man, wearing only light summer clothes, was tracked for a half mile because of his new shoes which leave a distinctive mark. Sheriff Tom Coleman from Canon City said the footprints were finally washed out by rain.

Sheriff Stanley DePriest of Custer County, in which Westcliffe is located, planned to join the party today. A 10-man Army group camped overnight.

Others joining the search today included one dozen men from the Rocky Mountain Rescue Unit in Boulder and the Alpine Rescue Unit at Evergreen southwest of Denver.

Court Topples State Seizure Of Utilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court struck down today a Missouri law that authorized the governor to seize and operate a privately-owned public utility when a strike threatens the public welfare. The decision was unanimous.

The law made illegal any concerted refusal to work after a plant has been taken over by the state in the public interest.

Division 1287 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America contended the law conflicted with the federal Taft-Hartley Labor Law.

The litigation arose from a dispute between Division 1287 and the Kansas City Transit Inc., which operates in Missouri and Kansas.

The court's opinion was written by Justice Stewart. He was absent from the high bench today, however, and it was read by Justice White.

15,000 Watch Colorado River Boat Racing

Dannie Makris of Salida won the 26-mile downriver race, from Salida to Cotopaxi, with a time of two hours, 42 minutes, 13.7 seconds. His victory was in the F-1 Class of the national and international white water event.

Ulrich Martins, 28, of Erlangen, Germany, posted a time of two hours, 43 minutes, 46.2 seconds to win in the rigid boat class of the international downriver race.

Top man in the U.S. rigid boat class was Walter Harvest of Alameda, Calif. His time was two hours, 45 minutes, 30.8 seconds.

There were no serious injuries in this year's races.

Search for Lost Plane Suspended In Montana Area

RED LODGE, Mont. (AP) — Montana searchers suspended their hunt today for a light plane that vanished June 2 on a flight from Helena to Denver with two persons aboard.

A six-man horseback posse returned to Red Lodge late Sunday without finding a trace of the missing plane. The posse also was unable to find a flickering mountain light seen two nights.

Aboard the missing plane were Truman Engelhardt, 29, an attorney, and Miss Linda Sturgis, 24, a legal secretary, both of the Denver area.

Sheriff's deputies and U.S. Forest Service personnel made a two-day trip into the almost inaccessible area where a ranch family reported seeing a mystery red light two-thirds up a mountainside.

"Everything turned out negative," Sheriff Otho S. Ford said. "If we get any further clues or sightings, we'll go back again."

Ford said the Montana Aeronautics Commission also will resume its search by air if further clues develop.

Meanwhile, Wyoming's Civil Air Patrol has been searching the northern area without success. That search has been concentrated around Sheridan and Le DeSmet, Wyo.

Reformatory Overcrowded, Warden Says

BUENA VISTA (UPI)— The warden of the Colorado State Reformatory, who said overcrowding had forced him to house two inmates in one cell, called Sunday for a speedup of honor camp programs.

Wayne K. Patterson said the institution, which last year housed about 450 prisoners, now holds 556, and the undesirable practice of putting two men in one cell was necessary.

He said he had been meeting with other state officials and trying to set up additional honor camp programs, which would consist of a mobile task force attached to the Game and Fish Department for work in state parks and roadside parks.

Patterson said "we've got work to last 100 years, if we can get the camps built."

Con Fatally Injured in Prison Rodeo

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (UPI)—A 23-year-old Utah State Prison inmate was fatally injured Sunday when he was thrown from a bucking horse during the prison's annual C-Bar Rodeo.

Springs Youth Is Injured by Mysterious Shot

Larry Nicks, 17, received a slight wound in the abdomen Saturday night outside 128 S. Nevada Ave. when persons unknown shot at him with a pistol, police reported. Nicks, who lives on Route 2, was given first aid and the wound was swabbed and bandaged at police headquarters. The bullet had passed through his shirt and grazed the skin on his abdomen, police said.

The shooting occurred after Nicks and two friends had driven up to 128 S. Nevada and Nicks and Gary Gross, 18, 2616 W. Colorado Ave. got out of the car and started to walk toward the sidewalk. A shot rang out and the two youths immediately lay down on the pavement near the curb, the report said.

Afterward, Nicks found he had been wounded. Gary Stefines, 17, 624 N. Tejon St., who was driving the car that Nicks and Gross got out of, was questioned and told police that after he heard the shot he had seen a person with a small black pistol on the passenger side of a car which was parked behind him on Nevada.

Stefines said the car then drove around his car and turned east on Cucharras Street. He said

Farmer Distress Termed 'Fiction' By U.S. Economist

NEW YORK (AP) — The financial distress attributed to American farmers "is largely a fiction," says a prominent agricultural economist. He urges the nation's policy makers to pay more attention to city dwellers' needs.

The city dweller, adds Edward Higbee, finds it hard to understand why his tax dollars should go to support agricultural subsidy programs in which he says the rich get richer and the poor get poorer.

The University of Rhode Island educator says he believes that the urbanite, who assumes a lion's share of the bill, eventually will tell the farmer he'll have to hoe his row without federal price supports.

Higbee, a professor of land utilization, drew the conclusions in a study released Sunday by the Twentieth Century Fund, a foundation doing research on current economic and social questions.

His report said federal price supports are excessive in cost and do not accomplish their intended purpose. They should be abandoned in favor of a free market, he maintained.

The report said government subsidies go predominantly to the prosperous "upper crust" of American agriculture that doesn't need them. Some 56 per cent of the nation's farmers are in the marginal category financially, it added, but get only 7 per cent of the subsidies.

For the city dweller, Higbee wrote, "there are other matters of public concern which are far more worthy of a $5 billion program than crop surpluses," he mentioned "the sorry condition of the metropolitan environment and the dilapidated state of public services in the city."

Retail Druggists To Lead Fight Against Taxes

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—The National Association of Retail Druggists will lead a fight to do away with the 10 per cent federal excise tax on cosmetics and toiletries, executive secretary Willard Simmons says.

Simmons told the Wyoming Parmaceutical Association's annual convention that the corner druggist would enlist millions of American women in the campaign. He noted the tax was started as a war-time measure at 20 per cent.

Discount houses are on their way out in the retail drug business, Simmons predicted.

He said the independent druggist "with the emphasis on quality prescriptions has won the confidence of the American Home."

Simmons struck out at what he called piracy by which discount houses trade on the quality and reputation of good products. Simmons said a quality stabilization measure pending in Congress would end the practice.

Simmons said some progress is being made in talks with the American Medical Association "to get doctors to agree it is not good professional ethics to make profits on prescriptions."

Cattlemen Are Puzzled About Federal Project

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — The federal government is launching a $21 million project for rehabilitation of grazing land in the Big Horn Basin — but Wyoming stockmen are trying to find out why.

Robert Hanesworth, executive secretary of the Wyoming Stockgrowers Association, said cattlemen in the Big Horn Basin were not convinced the project is necessary and are planning to ask Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., from where the request for the project came.

"None of the cattlemen on the U.S. Grazing Service Advisory Board knew of the project before," Hanesworth said.

Hanesworth said most of the cattlemen in the Big Horn Basin feel that the project is not justified.

McGee, in an address to the Stock Growers Association last week, said the Senate has appropriated $400,000 for the first phase of the project, which eventually will cost $21 million.

Negotiators Still Attempt To Prevent Railroad Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Negotiators sought today to head off a nationwide railroad strike with only hours remaining before removal of the last legal obstacle to a walkout.

A 30-day cooling-off period under the Railway Labor Act expires at midnight, EDT, Tuesday. At that time, the railroads will be free to put into effect work rules changes that union leaders say will result in a strike on 195 major railroads.

The railroad and union negotiators held a Sunday session, with Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz sitting in on the talks, and were scheduled for another meeting today.

In spite of the possible seriousness of the situation, recent negotiations have been marked by an absence of a crisis atmosphere in the daily sessions.

The proposed work rule changes are crucial to the unions, since they would eliminate thousands of firemen on diesel engines and make sweeping changes in pay systems for 200,000 operating employes.

One hope for delaying a strike was that the railroads might announce that the changes will go into effect after a period of, perhaps, 30 days. This would provide time for renewed efforts at settlement or for Congress to enact legislation to block a strike.

One government official who has participated in the talks, which began May 20, said "there is no real basis for optimism" on agreement. Other sources called the negotiatons "an exercise in futility."

The dispute between the railroads—which are seeking to remove so-called "featherbedding" practices—and the five railroad unions is now three years old.

It has included a year's study by a presidential railroad commission, which supported many of the proposed job changes, and a more recent study by a three-man board of experts appointed by the President.

The board said a railroad strike would deal an inestimable blow to the U.S. economy even if it lasted only a few days. The board also recommended a special referee to settle unresolved issues, but the unions traditionally have opposed such arbitration.

Millionaire, Woman, Two Boys Die in Plane Crash

KREMMLING, Colo. (AP)—The bodies of a California millionaire, a woman acquaintance and her two sons were found Sunday in wreckage of a two-engine plane high in the Colorado Rockies.

The plane crashed June 2 into a heavily wooded slope of Williams Peak, which is 11,619 feet high and 20 miles south of Kremmling.

The victims were W. V. Penfold, 62; Mrs. Ruby Dean and her sons, Leroy, 25, and Richard, 14, all of Newport Beach, Calif.

They were flying home from Denver when their plane "went straight in" on the high slopes of the peak, a Civil Air Patrol officer said.

The bodies were removed by CAP and Federal Aviation Agency ground crews aided by the Grand County coroner. Relatives were waiting for the bodies at Hot Sulphur Springs, Colo.

Penfold was a former owner of the Penn Optical and Instrument Co., Costa Mesa, Calif., maker of aerospace optical equipment, and was still retained by the company as a consultant.

A Costa Mesa newspaper said Mrs. Dean was an employe of the company and fiancee of Penfold, millionaire owner of the $65,000 airplane.

Mount Everest Climbers Rest In Katmandu

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI)—Members of an American mountain-climbing expedition which made a record three conquests of Mt. Everest rested here today from the rigors of their 110-day outing.

Leader Norman G. Dyhrenfurth, 44, of Santa Monica, Calif., brought the party down the last few hundred yards of trail Sunday to be greeted by a cheering crowd at Banepa, the expedition's starting point. He was accompanied by his wife, who had hiked out to meet him.

The men were in high spirits and good health—including Luther G. Jerstad, 26, of Eugene, Ore., who suffered frostbitten toes while participating in the unprecedented May 22 double assault on the 29,028-foot peak, the world's highest. His frostbite apparently was minor.

They were welcomed by Henry E. Stebbins, U.S. ambassador to Nepal, and then got into cars and jeeps for the short ride into Katmandu.

Two members of the expedition already were here— William F. Unsoeld, 36, of Corvallis, Ore., and Barry C. Bishop, 30, of Washington, D.C. They were flown here by helicopter May 27 from the slopes of Mt. Everest to be treated for frostbite.

They had spent a night in the open at 28,000 feet May 22 with Jerstad and Dr. Thomas F. Hornbein, 32, of San Diego, Calif., who apparently suffered no ill effects.

The returning climbers included James W. Whittaker, 32, of Redmond, who became the first American to scale the world's tallest mountain May 1, accompanied by Nepalese Sherpa guide Nawang Gombu.

Only one of the 20 original expedition members was absent. John E. Breitenbach, 27, of Jackson, Wyo., was killed March 23 when he was buried under falling ice on the Khumbu icefall on the slopes of Mt. Everest. His body has not been recovered.

Scandal Reported Threat To Career of Macmillan

By ANTHONY WHITE

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan returned from a golfing vacation today and ordered an inquiry into security aspects of the Profumo scandal which threatens Macmillan's own career.

The inquiry is being made by Lord Dilhorne, who as lord chancellor is Britain's highest legal authority.

He will determine if British Security was breached or was negligent as a result of former War Minister John Profumo's illicit affair with Christine Keeler, a 21-year-old red-haired party girl who at the same time in 1961, was sharing her bed with Soviet naval attache Capt. Yevgeny (Eugene) Ivanov.

Ivanov is generally regarded as a Russian intelligence agent.

Political sources said Dilhorne's report is in the works and probably will be completed this week. The report will be handed to Macmillan and Labor party leader Harold Wilson but may not necessarily be made public.

Meanwhile, Dr. Stephen Ward, the 50-year-old society osteopath who introduced Christine to Profumo, was brought into the Marlborough St. Magistrate's court today on a charge of living on the proceeds of prostitution. He was ordered held without bail for a

Gulf Fisherman Survives Six Days in Box

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A tired Pennsylvania fisherman said he weathered the choppy Gulf of Mexico in a 39-inch square bait box for six days before he was rescued Sunday.

Blistered and sunburned, Russell C. Swift, 45, said, "out there the days are awfully long, and the nights are even longer."

The West Springfield, Pa., man told the Coast Guard his 30-foot snapper boat, the Java, sank on its inaugural run June 3, 60 miles from shore.

Swift said he climbed into the wooden bait box, just big enough to crouch in, and set himself afloat. At times, he said he saw other fishing vessels, and at one point, came close to land, but the tide carried him out to sea again.

He was picked up 50 miles southwest of here after an amphibian Coast Guard plane spotted the bobbing box.

Swift said it rained the second night at sea and he had fresh water to drink. He wore out his shoes bailing out the bait box and had to throw them away.

The amphibian plane notified a shrimper, the Coral King, to get Swift out of the water and a helicopter brought him to Fort Myers, and a hospital.

Mayors Promise Plan to Reduce Racial Tensions

By ROBERT MYERS

HONOLULU (AP) — President Kennedy's call for a five-point program to reduce racial tension in cities was taken up today by several of the nation's most powerful mayors who pledged a battle to see it through.

New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner said of the President's message: "It is a real challenge. A lot of us will fight to see that our conference adopts a resolution supporting his position."

Backing up Wagner at the national mayors' conference were Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, Mayor Jerome Cavanagh of Detroit and Mayor Joseph Barr of Pittsburgh.

Cavanagh, in fact, went farther in support of Kennedy's suggestions, terming civil rights "the most critical problem confronting the nation today. It is more critical than Cuba or Berlin."

Kennedy made a 30-minute speech to the assembled mayors Sunday afternoon, emphasizing that Negroes are certain to win equal rights and calling on the city chief executives to make the process a peaceful revolution.

The President's address capped a five-day, five-state Western tour

Six Deaths Are Reported in Colorado Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The count now stands at 202, or 37 more than on this date a year ago.

A young man and a baby died in a three-car crash in Montrose County, Sunday night.

An unidentified pedestrian was killed in Costilla County in another accident Sunday night.

A Cortez man was killed near Durango Sunday while a Longmont couple died late Saturday night in a collision in Boulder County.

The victims of the three-car smash were Charles R. Grater, 21, of Rt. 1, Ridgeway, who died of a skull fracture and a brain injury, and Penny S. Grater, 7 months, who also suffered a skull fracture.

The injured were all taken to Memorial Hospital in Montrose.

The State Patrol said the car driven by Devinny was heading

Smoke Signals Again Will Be Used in Vatican Voting

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican has decided against a light signal to flash word from the Sistine Chapel on the election of a new Pope, a Vatican radio official said today.

Vatican radio sources said last week that the official radio station was studying the possibility of installing an electrical system between the chapel and the Vatican radio studio. Someone inside the chapel would throw a switch and a system of lights would indicate whether a Pope had been elected or whether there was no agreement.

But the system apparently falls under a conclave rule which bans "telegraphic, telephonic, microphonic, radiophonic, photographic, cinematographic and other similar instruments."

Thus the traditional smoke system will still be used. Vatican radio also will rely on the smoke.

At the conclave, opening June 19, ballots will be burned after every voting session. A substance mixed with the ballots is supposed to produce black smoke to show no Pope has been elected or white smoke to show one has been chosen.

Snowstorm Strands Motorists

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP)—A Sudden snowstorm stranded several hundred motorists for hours Sunday along the nation's highest continuous road, which snakes through the Rocky Mountain National Park.

Eight inches of snow fell on Trail Ridge Road, and there was 16 inches elsewhere in the northern Colorado park.

A ranger, Bill Quisenberry, was trapped on the road as winds 40 miles an hour cut visibility to zero. He took shelter and was rescued several hours later.

Drifts covered the hoods of park trucks being used to clear the road which reaches an official altitude of 12,183 feet.

Across the foothills, about one inch of rain was deposited along with some heavy hail. There was one inch of snow in most of the central Rockies.

Negotiators Still Attempt To Prevent Railroad Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Negotiators sought today to head off a nationwide railroad strike with only hours remaining before removal of the last legal obstacle to a walkout.

A 30-day cooling-off period under the Railway Labor Act expires at midnight, EDT, Tuesday. At that time, the railroads will be free to put into effect work rules changes that union leaders say will result in a strike on 195 major railroads.

The railroad and union negotiators held a Sunday session, with Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz sitting in on the talks, and were scheduled for another meeting today.

In spite of the possible seriousness of the situation, recent negotiations have been marked by an absence of a crisis atmosphere in the daily sessions.

The proposed work rule changes are crucial to the unions, since they would eliminate thousands of firemen on diesel engines and make sweeping changes in pay systems for 200,000 operating employes.

One hope for delaying a strike was that the railroads might announce that the changes will go into effect after a period of, perhaps, 30 days. This would provide time for renewed efforts at settlement or for Congress to enact legislation to block a strike.

One government official who has participated in the talks, which began May 20, said "there is no real basis for optimism" on agreement. Other sources called the negotiatons "an exercise in futility."

The dispute between the railroads—which are seeking to remove so-called "featherbedding" practices—and the five railroad unions is now three years old.

It has included a year's study by a presidential railroad commission, which supported many of the proposed job changes, and a more recent study by a three-man board of experts appointed by the President.

The board said a railroad strike would deal an inestimable blow to the U.S. economy even if it lasted only a few days. The board also recommended a special referee to settle unresolved issues, but the unions traditionally have opposed such arbitration.

Gov. Wallace Risks Jail In Alabama Showdown

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Clinging defiantly to a tattered banner of segregation and risking a jail term, Gov. George C. Wallace headed today for an imminent crisis at the University of Alabama.

The two Negro students he has sworn to turn back at the university doors returned to Alabama after a weekend in New York to await the showdown.

"We shall defend our rights and we shall dare to do so," the 43-year-old governor said Sunday night.

"I am going to stand for you at the university," he told the people of Alabama in a radio-television broadcast.

Tracks of Quinn Are Washed Out By Rainstorm

WESTCLIFFE, Colo. (AP) — A cold rainstorm washed out tracks which 100 searchers hoped Sunday would lead them to Patrick Quinn, 26, lost in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

The snow cover was one inch deep.

Quinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Quinn of Stratton, wandered away from a family picnic Friday. He has a physical disability.

The search late Saturday and Sunday was concentrated in the rugged Colony Lakes area about 15 miles southwest of Westcliffe. The area 11,000 feet high is marked by abandoned gold mines.

Bloodhounds from the State Prison at nearby Canon City aided the searchers who included Ft. Carson volunteers and sheriff's officers.

The missing man, wearing only light summer clothes, was tracked for a half mile because of his new shoes which leave a distinctive mark. Sheriff Tom Coleman from Canon City said the footprints were finally washed out by rain.

Sheriff Stanley DePriest of Custer County, in which Westcliffe is located, planned to join the party today. A 10-man Army group camped overnight.

Others joining the search today included one dozen men from the Rocky Mountain Rescue Unit in Boulder and the Alpine Rescue Unit at Evergreen southwest of Denver.

Court Topples State Seizure Of Utilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court struck down today a Missouri law that authorized the governor to seize and operate a privately-owned public utility when a strike threatens the public welfare. The decision was unanimous.

The law made illegal any concerted refusal to work after a plant has been taken over by the state in the public interest.

Division 1287 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America contended the law conflicted with the federal Taft-Hartley Labor Law.

The litigation arose from a dispute between Division 1287 and the Kansas City Transit Inc., which operates in Missouri and Kansas.

The court's opinion was written by Justice Stewart. He was absent from the high bench today, however, and it was read by Justice White.

15,000 Watch Colorado River Boat Racing

Dannie Makris of Salida won the 26-mile downriver race, from Salida to Cotopaxi, with a time of two hours, 42 minutes, 13.7 seconds. His victory was in the F-1 Class of the national and international white water event.

Ulrich Martins, 28, of Erlangen, Germany, posted a time of two hours, 43 minutes, 46.2 seconds to win in the rigid boat class of the international downriver race.

Top man in the U.S. rigid boat class was Walter Harvest of Alameda, Calif. His time was two hours, 45 minutes, 30.8 seconds.

There were no serious injuries in this year's races.

Search for Lost Plane Suspended In Montana Area

A six-man horseback posse returned to Red Lodge late Sunday without finding a trace of the missing plane. The posse also was unable to find a flickering mountain light seen two nights.

Aboard the missing plane were Truman Engelhardt, 29, an attorney, and Miss Linda Sturgis, 24, a legal secretary, both of the Denver area.

Sheriff's deputies and U.S. Forest Service personnel made a two-day trip into the almost inaccessible area where a ranch family reported seeing a mystery red light two-thirds up a mountainside.

"Everything turned out negative," Sheriff Otho S. Ford said. "If we get any further clues or sightings, we'll go back again."

Ford said the Montana Aeronautics Commission also will resume its search by air if further clues develop.

Meanwhile, Wyoming's Civil Air Patrol has been searching the northern area without success. That search has been concentrated around Sheridan and Le DeSmet, Wyo.

Reformatory Overcrowded, Warden Says

BUENA VISTA (UPI)— The warden of the Colorado State Reformatory, who said overcrowding had forced him to house two inmates in one cell, called Sunday for a speedup of honor camp programs.

Wayne K. Patterson said the institution, which last year housed about 450 prisoners, now holds 556, and the undesirable practice of putting two men in one cell was necessary.

He said he had been meeting with other state officials and trying to set up additional honor camp programs, which would consist of a mobile task force attached to the Game and Fish Department for work in state parks and roadside parks.

Patterson said "we've got work to last 100 years, if we can get the camps built."

Con Fatally Injured in Prison Rodeo

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (UPI)—A 23-year-old Utah State Prison inmate was fatally injured Sunday when he was thrown from a bucking horse during the prison's annual C-Bar Rodeo.

Springs Youth Is Injured by Mysterious Shot

Larry Nicks, 17, received a slight wound in the abdomen Saturday night outside 128 S. Nevada Ave. when persons unknown shot at him with a pistol, police reported. Nicks, who lives on Route 2, was given first aid and the wound was swabbed and bandaged at police headquarters. The bullet had passed through his shirt and grazed the skin on his abdomen, police said.

The shooting occurred after Nicks and two friends had driven up to 128 S. Nevada and Nicks and Gary Gross, 18, 2616 W. Colorado Ave. got out of the car and started to walk toward the sidewalk. A shot rang out and the two youths immediately lay down on the pavement near the curb, the report said.

Afterward, Nicks found he had been wounded. Gary Stefines, 17, 624 N. Tejon St., who was driving the car that Nicks and Gross got out of, was questioned and told police that after he heard the shot he had seen a person with a small black pistol on the passenger side of a car which was parked behind him on Nevada.

Stefines said the car then drove around his car and turned east on Cucharras Street. He said

Farmer Distress Termed 'Fiction' By U.S. Economist

NEW YORK (AP) — The financial distress attributed to American farmers "is largely a fiction," says a prominent agricultural economist. He urges the nation's policy makers to pay more attention to city dwellers' needs.

The city dweller, adds Edward Higbee, finds it hard to understand why his tax dollars should go to support agricultural subsidy programs in which he says the rich get richer and the poor get poorer.

The University of Rhode Island educator says he believes that the urbanite, who assumes a lion's share of the bill, eventually will tell the farmer he'll have to hoe his row without federal price supports.

Higbee, a professor of land utilization, drew the conclusions in a study released Sunday by the Twentieth Century Fund, a foundation doing research on current economic and social questions.

His report said federal price supports are excessive in cost and do not accomplish their intended purpose. They should be abandoned in favor of a free market, he maintained.

The report said government subsidies go predominantly to the prosperous "upper crust" of American agriculture that doesn't need them. Some 56 per cent of the nation's farmers are in the marginal category financially, it added, but get only 7 per cent of the subsidies.

For the city dweller, Higbee wrote, "there are other matters of public concern which are far more worthy of a $5 billion program than crop surpluses," he mentioned "the sorry condition of the metropolitan environment and the dilapidated state of public services in the city."

Retail Druggists To Lead Fight Against Taxes

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—The National Association of Retail Druggists will lead a fight to do away with the 10 per cent federal excise tax on cosmetics and toiletries, executive secretary Willard Simmons says.

Simmons told the Wyoming Parmaceutical Association's annual convention that the corner druggist would enlist millions of American women in the campaign. He noted the tax was started as a war-time measure at 20 per cent.

Discount houses are on their way out in the retail drug business, Simmons predicted.

He said the independent druggist "with the emphasis on quality prescriptions has won the confidence of the American Home."

Simmons struck out at what he called piracy by which discount houses trade on the quality and reputation of good products. Simmons said a quality stabilization measure pending in Congress would end the practice.

Simmons said some progress is being made in talks with the American Medical Association "to get doctors to agree it is not good professional ethics to make profits on prescriptions."

Cattlemen Are Puzzled About Federal Project

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — The federal government is launching a $21 million project for rehabilitation of grazing land in the Big Horn Basin — but Wyoming stockmen are trying to find out why.

Robert Hanesworth, executive secretary of the Wyoming Stockgrowers Association, said cattlemen in the Big Horn Basin were not convinced the project is necessary and are planning to ask Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., from where the request for the project came.

"None of the cattlemen on the U.S. Grazing Service Advisory Board knew of the project before," Hanesworth said.

Hanesworth said most of the cattlemen in the Big Horn Basin feel that the project is not justified.

McGee, in an address to the Stock Growers Association last week, said the Senate has appropriated $400,000 for the first phase of the project, which eventually will cost $21 million.

Millionaire, Woman, Two Boys Die in Plane Crash

KREMMLING, Colo. (AP)—The bodies of a California millionaire, a woman acquaintance and her two sons were found Sunday in wreckage of a two-engine plane high in the Colorado Rockies.

The plane crashed June 2 into a heavily wooded slope of Williams Peak, which is 11,619 feet high and 20 miles south of Kremmling.

The victims were W. V. Penfold, 62; Mrs. Ruby Dean and her sons, Leroy, 25, and Richard, 14, all of Newport Beach, Calif.

They were flying home from Denver when their plane "went straight in" on the high slopes of the peak, a Civil Air Patrol officer said.

The bodies were removed by CAP and Federal Aviation Agency ground crews aided by the Grand County coroner. Relatives were waiting for the bodies at Hot Sulphur Springs, Colo.

Penfold was a former owner of the Penn Optical and Instrument Co., Costa Mesa, Calif., maker of aerospace optical equipment, and was still retained by the company as a consultant.

A Costa Mesa newspaper said Mrs. Dean was an employe of the company and fiancee of Penfold, millionaire owner of the $65,000 airplane.

CBR Changes Not To Affect Work In RM Arsenal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said here that a recent minor change in designation of its agency handling chemical-biological-radiological munitions will leave untouched the operations work of the Pine Bluf, Ark., and Rocky Mountain Arsenal in Colorado.

Until early last month, the Chemical - Biological - Radiological Agency at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., had over-all jurisdiction over the two installations.

Then under the general reorganization program setting up the Army Material Command began last year the agency was "eliminated in name only," a spokesman said. But control continues to be retained at Edgewood.

"The reorganization will have no effect on these two installations," the spokesman said.

Both the Rocky Mountain installation in Colorado and the Pine Bluff arsenal are government owned and operated.

Under the material command reorganization, all CBR installations and activites come under the general direction of Maj. Gen. Floyd A. Hansen of the munitions command, with headquarters at Dover, N.J. In addition to the CBR activities, the munitions command has responsibility for such things as nuclear and nonnuclear munitions, rocket and missiles warheads and propeilents.

Violent Election Struggle Feared In Venezuela

By PAUL FINCH

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Still battling diehard Castro-Communists, Venezuela is hurtling toward an historic and probably violent election for the successor to President Romulo Betancourt.

Four candidates already are campaigning at full tilt and a fifth will appear next month—the long-awaited choice of Betancourt's own big worker-peasant party, Democratic Action.

No matter who wins the mere election itself would be a victory for democracy in this oil-wealthy but underdeveloped country.

Betancourt has been under attack by Communists—as well as right-wing plotters—since shortly after he took office in 1959 and refused to let Communists take part in his coalition government.

It was hardly a surprise to any Venezuelan a week ago when a special commission of the Organization of American States said Fidel Castro's Cuba has picked Venezuela as its principal target.

Betancourt appears to have gathered local support gradually as he has taken his own steps against Communists in answer to terrorism, oil installation sabotage, and two full-scale revolts last year.

He has suspended the Communists as a party and banned them from the presidential and congressional elections, tentatively set for November. He has asked the Supreme Court to outlaw the party entirely.

Apparently weary of temporarily suspending constitutional guarantees to gain extra police power Betancourt last week asked Congress to pass an emergency law providing the first stiff sentences for terrorists who shoot policemen and burn down factories.

Diplomats say Communists have lost prestige in Venezuela since 1958, when they took credfit for helping to oust dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez.

"Terrorism has backfired on them," says one government official. "Fidel Castro has also lost his appeal because of his economic failure in Cuba."

Communists hemselves may feel this. The terrorist group FALN—Armed Front of National Liberation—no longer uses the words Castro or communism in its propaganda.

FALN, says the government, still is a Communist weapon which hopes by terrorism to provoke a right-wing army coup. Officials estimate only 400 of Venezuela's 40,000 Communists have been chosen as FALN activists.

Betancourt's successor must be as strong as he or it will yet be possible to overthrow Venezuelan democracy, say diplomats.

Betancourt is believed to be sounding out the army, the church and other influential groups for opinions on the candidate that should be picked at his party's convention next month.

Utah Woman Faces Kidnaping Charges

The woman was charged with kidnaping Bill Dyet, 18, at a filling station in a Salt Lake City suburb and forcing him to drive her to Denver.

The mother of three children was held in the Denver County Jail in lieu of bond of $10,000 set by U.S. Commissioner Harold Oakes.

When arraigned here she appeared in the same shirt and blue jeans she wore when she surrendered to Denver police Thursday night.

At that time she handed over a loaded .22 caliber pistol and a bag containing $200 in cash and checks.

Dyet said that the farther they drove on the road to Denver, "the scareder she got about what she had done and what she was doing."

Discrimination Against 'Little People' Charged

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—This fine day gave birth to the Association of Little People, an idea dedicated to the proposition that "height does not make might" anywhere but in a fist fight.

"Little people are discriminated against," said Billy Curtis, who stands 4 feet, 3 inches. His pal, Frankie Delfino, 4-feet-2, nodded his assent.

Billy and Frankie are actors and their anger is aimed mostly at the big guys of television and off scott-free, however.

"We're in show business and can't get a job unless the script is specifically written with us in mind," Curtis said. Delfino nodded. "Why can't we get in a picture and just walk down the street like big guys? Little people walk the streets too, you know.

"And we can't get work in television commercials because of our size. Why not? We eat breakfast food, butter and drink milk just like everybody else."

One source of employment for short folk has been as standins or doubles for child actors on movie sets.

"Now they hire big guys," complained Curtis. "We also used to do stunts for kid actors. Now they use other kids. Where they would have to pay a little guy $25 a day to stand in for a kid, they now hire another kid at $23. The $2 saved goes to cocktail parties for clients, I guess."

Things have gotten so bad in Hollywood that the total work force of little actors has shrunk to 15. There used to be 100, Curtis said.

"Never in the history of show business have the little people been in such a dire state," said Curtis, who is trying to get work for his group in a new television circus series, "The Greatest Show on Earth."

"What side work can we get," he asked. "There are a lot of places we could work and increase the business. For instance I could manage the children's department of a store."

To augment his earnings, Curtis once worked in the pest control business, an occupation where little people could be utilized crawling under buildings and into attics. However, he had to get out of the business when poison used to kill pests almost exterminated Billy.

Curtis had another complaint, one practically unheard of in this militant age, when he said, "we can't even join the Army."

His agreeable friend Frankie said humorously, "We've got one advantage, we don't show our age."

CBR Changes Not To Affect Work In RM Arsenal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said here that a recent minor change in designation of its agency handling chemical-biological-radiological munitions will leave untouched the operations work of the Pine Bluf, Ark., and Rocky Mountain Arsenal in Colorado.

Until early last month, the Chemical - Biological - Radiological Agency at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., had over-all jurisdiction over the two installations.

Then under the general reorganization program setting up the Army Material Command began last year the agency was "eliminated in name only," a spokesman said. But control continues to be retained at Edgewood.

"The reorganization will have no effect on these two installations," the spokesman said.

Both the Rocky Mountain installation in Colorado and the Pine Bluff arsenal are government owned and operated.

Under the material command reorganization, all CBR installations and activites come under the general direction of Maj. Gen. Floyd A. Hansen of the munitions command, with headquarters at Dover, N.J. In addition to the CBR activities, the munitions command has responsibility for such things as nuclear and nonnuclear munitions, rocket and missiles warheads and propeilents.

Violent Election Struggle Feared In Venezuela

By PAUL FINCH

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)— Still battling diehard Castro-Communists, Venezuela is hurtling toward an historic and probably violent election for the successor to President Romulo Betancourt.

Four candidates already are campaigning at full tilt and a fifth will appear next month—the long-awaited choice of Betancourt's own big worker-peasant party, Democratic Action.

No matter who wins the mere election itself would be a victory for democracy in this oil-wealthy but underdeveloped country.

Betancourt has been under attack by Communists—as well as right-wing plotters—since shortly after he took office in 1959 and refused to let Communists take part in his coalition government.

It was hardly a surprise to any Venezuelan a week ago when a special commission of the Organization of American States said Fidel Castro's Cuba has picked Venezuela as its principal target.

Betancourt appears to have gathered local support gradually as he has taken his own steps against Communists in answer to terrorism, oil installation sabotage, and two full-scale revolts last year.

He has suspended the Communists as a party and banned them from the presidential and congressional elections, tentatively set for November. He has asked the Supreme Court to outlaw the party entirely.

Apparently weary of temporarily suspending constitutional guarantees to gain extra police power Betancourt last week asked Congress to pass an emergency law providing the first stiff sentences for terrorists who shoot policemen and burn down factories.

Diplomats say Communists have lost prestige in Venezuela since 1958, when they took credfit for helping to oust dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez.

"Terrorism has backfired on them," says one government official. "Fidel Castro has also lost his appeal because of his economic failure in Cuba."

Communists hemselves may feel this. The terrorist group FALN—Armed Front of National Liberation—no longer uses the words Castro or communism in its propaganda.

FALN, says the government, still is a Communist weapon which hopes by terrorism to provoke a right-wing army coup. Officials estimate only 400 of Venezuela's 40,000 Communists have been chosen as FALN activists.

Betancourt's successor must be as strong as he or it will yet be possible to overthrow Venezuelan democracy, say diplomats.

Betancourt is believed to be sounding out the army, the church and other influential groups for opinions on the candidate that should be picked at his party's convention next month.

Utah Woman Faces Kidnaping Charges

The woman was charged with kidnaping Bill Dyet, 18, at a filling station in a Salt Lake City suburb and forcing him to drive her to Denver.

The mother of three children was held in the Denver County Jail in lieu of bond of $10,000 set by U.S. Commissioner Harold Oakes.

When arraigned here she appeared in the same shirt and blue jeans she wore when she surrendered to Denver police Thursday night.

At that time she handed over a loaded .22 caliber pistol and a bag containing $200 in cash and checks.

Dyet said that the farther they drove on the road to Denver, "the scareder she got about what she had done and what she was doing."

Gotta Billion Dollars For a Cuppa Coffee?

By LYNN POOLE

The Johns Hopkins University

Chances are that you are sipping a cup of coffee while reading this newspaper. Of that you'll have a cup or two before the day is over. Statistics show that in fine china and paper cups — black or with cream and sugar — the average American consumes more than 600 cups of coffee each year.

Considering that the coffee plant is not native to the United States and has never been profitably grown here, this is a sizable amount. Recent figures indicate that the U.S. import almost 3 billion pounds of raw coffee per year — valued at more than $1 billion. the largest portion of this is bought from Brazil, the world's largest coffee producer.

Coffee has long been a popular American beverage. John Smith was familiar with coffee and it is known that coffee grinding instruments were brought aboard the Mayflower. Even Benjamin Fanklin is reputed to have spent some time as a coffee retailer.

However, legend has it that prior to the Revolutionary War, the colonists were mostly tea drinkers. Because of opposition to the tea tax which led to the Boston Tea Party and a boycott of tea, that drink came into disfavor with American patriots.

Nonetheless, commee importation in the early days of the American nation was minute compared with today's. The average U.S. yearly purchase during the 1790's was 200,000 pounds, less than 1 per cent of the present figure.

At that time, no facilities were available for prepared coffee. Coffee houses, the forerunner of the modern club, were popular, but for home use a housewife had to buy the beans from a coffee merchant, roast and grind them herself — often resulting in inconsistent quality, or even burnt coffee.

The real boom in coffee consumption in the United States came with the advent of modern machinery for roasting, grinding and packaging. Before 1800 several coffee "manufactories" were established in the larger cities and throughout the 19th century scores of patents were issued for various improvements in roasting and grinding machinery. The first packaged coffee, "Osborn's Celebrated Prepared Java Coffee" was offered for sale during the Civil War.

At the end of that war, one of the giants of the American coffee industry appeared on the scene when John Arbuckle joined his brother's wholesale grocery business in Pittsburgh. The Arbuckle Brothers began to sell pre-packaged coffee in 1865 and in 1873 marketed their famous "Ariosa" coffee. John moved to New York to establish a branch of the firm, and shortly abandoned the rest of the business to concentrate on coffee. He held several patents on machinery designed not only to produce coffee more efficiently, but to improve the aroma and flavor of the brew. In 1865, the Arbuckle Brothers had one roasting machine. By 1881, they had 85 in operation and when John Arbuckle died in 1912 his estate was estimated at more than $33 million.

In recent years, we have seen the adoption of modern gas roasters and electric grinders than can process thousands of pounds of coffee in minutes. In addition, coffee merchants, with the aid of modern technology, have been able to develop efficient vacuum-packing, and such innovations as decaffinated and instant coffee.

These modern developments, coupled with the fact that America has historically been a nation of coffee-drinkers, have helped to make coffee a billion-dollar business in the United States.

X-Ray Vital In Knee Joint Examination

A delicate x-ray examination of the knee joint is often the only way to precisely diagnose injury, three Tampa, Fla., radiologists have reported in a medical journal.

Their findings among some 122 knees also proves that it isn't just athletes who are plagued with troublesome joint difficulties.

Their patients came from all walks of life, including sedantary ones, and ranged in age from eight to 73.

More right knees than left knees were injured, and more men than women suffered the damage. Forty-five had to have the knee repaired by surgery.

The x-ray study that disclosed this information is called "arthrography," or visualization of joint space including cartilage and tendons. Chemical substances "opaque" to the x-rays are injected into the knee joints to outline the anatomical area.

Drs. Ralph C. Aye, Thomas W. Dorr and Garth R. Drewry in the May issue of Radiology also noted that many doctors hospitalize their patients for the examination. However, hospitalization isn't really necessary, the three Tampa x-ray specialists pointed out.

"Arthrography of the knee is a simple, safe and worthwhile procedure that the radiologist can perform equally well in his office or in a hospital....The correct diagnosis of any injury to the knee can sometimes be made only by this procedure," they added.

Diagnostic accuracy for the 122 knees was found to be about 85 per cent, using this kind of x-ray study, the three specialists concluded.

John moved to New York to establish a branch of the firm, and shortly abandoned the rest of the business to concentrate on coffee. He held several patents on machinery designed not only to produce coffee more efficiently, but to improve the aroma and flavor of the brew. In 1865, the Arbuckle Brothers had one roasting machine. By 1881, they had 85 in operation and when John Arbuckle died in 1912 his estate was estimated at more than $33 million.

In recent years, we have seen the adoption of modern gas roasters and electric grinders than can process thousands of pounds of coffee in minutes. In addition, coffee merchants, with the aid of modern technology, have been able to develop efficient vacuum-packing, and such innovations as decaffinated and instant coffee.

These modern developments, coupled with the fact that America has historically been a nation of coffee-drinkers, have helped to make coffee a billion-dollar business in the United States.

X-Ray Vital In Knee Joint Examination

A delicate x-ray examination of the knee joint is often the only way to precisely diagnose injury, three Tampa, Fla., radiologists have reported in a medical journal.

Their findings among some 122 knees also proves that it isn't just athletes who are plagued with troublesome joint difficulties.

Their patients came from all walks of life, including sedantary ones, and ranged in age from eight to 73.

The x-ray study that disclosed this information is called "arthrography," or visualization of joint space including cartilage and tendons. Chemical substances "opaque" to the x-rays are injected into the knee joints to outline the anatomical area.

Drs. Ralph C. Aye, Thomas W. Dorr and Garth R. Drewry in the May issue of Radiology also noted that many doctors hospitalize their patients for the examination. However, hospitalization isn't really necessary, the three Tampa x-ray specialists pointed out.

"Arthrography of the knee is a simple, safe and worthwhile procedure that the radiologist can perform equally well in his office or in a hospital....The correct diagnosis of any injury to the knee can sometimes be made only by this procedure," they added.

Diagnostic accuracy for the 122 knees was found to be about 85 per cent, using this kind of x-ray study, the three specialists concluded.

Mayors Promise Plan to Reduce Racial Tensions

that carried him from military inspections to political appearances and two talks on civil rights. He flew back to Washington Sunday night to make a major foreign policy speech today at American University.

White House aides termed the university address one of the most significant pronouncements during Kennedy's tenure as chief executive. There was speculation to halt nuclear weapons tests.

Kennedy told the mayors in his address at a Waikiki Beach hotel the time is past "for token moves and talks." It is clear, he said, that Negroes eventually will have equal rights and, "our responsibility, yours and mine, is to see that they are won in a peaceful and constructive mannager, and not won in the streets."

The chief executive urged that cities establish biracial human relations committees to identify tensions before they reach crises stage and to help ease them.

He also proposed:

—Every local government make certain its own ordinances and operations are constitutional. "Every instance or institution of segregation sanctioned by local legislation or public action is clearly invalid," he said.

—Each local government abolish discrimination in employing and promoting municipal workers.

—Each city government enact laws assuring the rights of all residents of equal employment and housing opportunities and equal access to public accommodations.

—Each mayor undertake a special campaign to encourage young persons of both races to stay in school in order to increase their chances for steady jobs and thus lessen unemployment among the unskilled. "I think this may prove to be, in time, the most important thing we can all do," the President said.

The mayors' conference resolutions committee went into session immediately after the speech and drafted a six-point program embodying all of Kennedy's proposals, plus a plea that "minority groups be encouraged to recognize the correlation of responsibility and duty with right and that equality of responsibility be encouraged along with equality of opportunity."

The added point was seen by Wagner as an effort to attract the support of Southern mayors. Several criticized Kennedy's talk because they said the President put too much emphasis on rights and not enough on duty.

Others said it was wrong to try to give Negroes jobs in proportion to racial percentages rather than on a basis of ability. "Perhaps our greatest problem," said Mayor A. Allen Hall of Santa Ana, Calif., "has been that we are expected to have a percentage of colored people in relation to the ratio of blacks to whites, and this somtimes operates to the detriment of the white people.

"We should not be obligated to hire somebody because of his race who hasn't met the proper standards of employment."

There was little other complaint about the President's message. Daley, for one, called it "among the great speeches of the President's career. I endorse it wholeheartedly."

Vice Mayor Sam Massell of Atlanta, Ga., said, "There are still some people who are disturbed by continuous demands for equal rights but many are realizing that minority groups will quit demonstrations only when we stop discriminating."

Kennedy called on the mayors to "set an example in your communities to which the timid can rally and which those clinging to the past cannot ignore."

Kennedy started his speech in the "Longhouse" of the Hawaiian Village Hotel 42 minutes late. He was delayed during a motorcade through Honolulu and Waikiki beach that produced a police-estimated turnout of 100,000 spectators.

The crowd moved in on his convertible at times and women threw floral leis at the smiling chief executive. Special sections along the 15-mile parade route were reserved for Hawaii's racial groups — Caucasians, Japanese, Chinese, Koreans, Hawaiians and Negroes. There even was a space reserved for the Harvard Club of Hawaii.

A display case and 60 pairs of shoes valued at $240 were stolen from a shoe salesman Saturday afternoon, police reported. Most of the shoes were for the left foot, said William Henry Burke of Portland, Ore., the salesman who reported the case to police.

He said he was delivering the shoes to Youthful Shoes at 107 E. Bijou St. and had left some of them outside the store near his car. When he came out of the store to pick them up, they were gone, the report said.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 8:30 p.m. yesterday)

A cold air mass out of Canada is slowly sinking southward across the northern border states this morning.

An unusually large high pressure system, centered over North central Canada, is pumping the cold air southward and over New England, New York, the northern portions of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota.

South of this cold front across the eastern half of the nation, warm and humid air brought in from the tropical Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico continues to reign.

The western half of the country is mostly cloudy and cool. An extensive area of rain, drizzle and showers is located over the Rocky Mountain and Plateau region from Utah and Nevada northward to the Canadian border.

Showers and thunderstorms are also falling in the vicinity of the cold front over portions of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

Early morning temperatures were in the chilly 40s along the Canadian border from northern New England and New York State across upper Michigan and northern Minnesota.

Out west, the 40s and 50s were the rule with a few 60s and low 70s in the extreme southern deserts. Warm and humid conditions over the eastern third of the country to the south of the Great Lakes and east of the central and southern Plains kept temperatures in this area in the upper 60s or 70s.

Children's Eyesight Vital To 85 Per Cent of Learning

It is estimated that at least 85 per cent of learning is a visual process, and this includes not only intellectual learning but social, physical and psychological learning as well.

So glasses, if they are needed, are not an unkindness or a tragedy for the child. Quite the opposite. They may save him from serious retardation.

There are many popular misconceptions about children's vision and glasses. Let's consider a few of them.

Do children damage their eyes by eyestrain? No. Eyestrain is merely fatigue, and like the fatigue of any other muscle, disappears with rest. It is not cumulatively damaging. Moreover, eyestrain is very rare in children.

Does a child become dependent upon glasses? No, except as he comes to enjoy and profit from better vision. A person comes to depend only on good sight, not on his glasses.

Will a child's eyes improve later so that he can discard glasses? Probably not, unless the cause of poor vision is muscular rather than optical.

Do glasses "cure" poor vision in children? No. Glasses correct for poor vision, they cannot in most cases remove the underlying cause. Glasses cannot reverse the cause of vision difficulties unless they result from certain types of muscular problems. Glasses do cure in the sense that they provide better and more comfortable vision.

Do eyes get better? Not generally. Eyes change from time to time, and particularly with age, and usually the changes are in the direction of deteriorating vision which requires greater correction by glasses.

Sometimes there are short periods of improvement, requiring a different type of correction.

Are eye exercises a substitute for glasses? Not unless the problem is muscular, in which case exercises have a limited value. If the problem is refractive (optical), exercises may have some success but only insofar as they teach the person to use his defective vision more effectively.

Corrective glasses are needed for full, comfortable vision.

Will glasses halt the progress of nearsightedness (myopia)? No, the progress is normal. It can be corrected for, and the progress may perhaps be slowed; but neither ordinary glasses nor contact lenses will permanently halt the process.

Never neglect a child's eyes. not seeing well.

Be suspicious of vision difficulties if the child makes any of these complaints: can't see well; things are blurred; letters or lines "run together" or "jump" headaches, dizziness, tiredness or nausea following close eye work; double vision; eyes that itch, smart, burn or feel scratchy; can't see blackboard.

Watch the child's appearance for these signs; lids red-rimmed, encrusted or swollen; recurring eyes; eyes crossed in or out; inflamed or watery eyes; pupils unequal in size; eyes in constant motion, usually side to side but sometimes up and down; a grey or frosted-appearing cornea (the transparent front portion of the eye); eyes unusually sensitive to light; an infant who doesn't respond to light or can't look or concentrate on mother's face or his toys; a pupil (the round opening at the center of the colored portion of the eye) which is grey or white instead of jet black.

These behavior symptoms can be important; school failures; excessive nervousness; difficulty with reading or any work requiring close vision; skipping words or lines in reading; re-reading; losing of place while reading; slow reading; frowning, excessive blinking, scowling, squinting or other facial distortions while reading; holding books and objects too close; avoidance of close work; frequent eye-rubbing; attempts to brush away a blur; general fatigue, drowsiness or irritability after long use of eyes; stumbling or tripping over small objects; poor performance in games requiring distance vision; shutting or covering one eye, tilting or thrusting forward of head when looking at objects.

An infant sees even before he is born, and his vision improves steadily to the age of about 5 or 6, when he achieves full vision, including complete co-ordination of the two eyes. Co-ordination often is not good during the first 6 months of life, but at 4 or 5 months a baby should be reaching for specific objects.

The vision of young children, even babies, can be checked by a physician, and from the age of at least 3 or 4 years it can be evaluated with great accuracy.

Don't confuse vision with hearing in an infant. "He looks at me when I speak to him" may indicate only that the baby hears well.

Eye infections in children are common and usually not to serious, but they should not be neglected.

Using the eyes does not harm them. Since they are really extensions of the brain, the more they are used the better vision becomes.

JFK Orders Ban on U.S. Atomic Tests

His big jet plane landed at Andrews Air Force Base at 8:51 a.m. EDT after a flight of 8 hours and 58 minutes from the Hawaiian capital. That left him time for only a brief check-in at the White House before the midmorning speech at the university.

Kennedy made the announcement of the conference and the declaration of hiw own limited no-test policy as two of the three major points of his speech at the university. In the third part he said:

"Finally, my fellow Americans, let us re-examine our attitude toward peace and freedom here at home. The quality and spirit of our own society must justify and support our efforts abroad."

In this obvious reference to burning civil rights issues, Kennedy declared:

"'It is the responsibility of the executive branch at all levels of government—local, state and national—to provide and protect. . . freedom for all citizens by all means within their authority. It is the responsibility of the legislative branch at all levels, wherever that authority is not now adequate, to make it adequate. And it is the responsibility of all citizens in all sections to respect the rights of all others and to respect the law of the land."

In some degree Kennedy's nuclear testing announcement served to set the stage for his four-nation European tour starting in about two weeks.

Kennedy said of the new agreement with Khrushchev to try for a nuclear test ban that it is true no treaty can provide "absolute security against the risks of deception and evasion."

"But it can—if it is sufficiently effective in its enforcement and if it is sufficiently in the interest of its signers—offer far more security and far fewer risks than an unabated, uncontrolled, unpredictable arms race."

With the announcement here of the Moscow conference, it was understood that preparations of U.S. and British plans for the meeting will be the major subject of discussion between Kennedy and Macmillan when the President visits the prime minister at the end of June. In fact, officials said the need to talk about this problem was the real reason for the decision of the two men to meet at this time.

Kennedy said in his speech that too many people think peace is impossible or unreal.

"But that is a dangerous, defeatist belief," he said. "It leads to the conclusion that war is inevitable. We need not accept that view. Our problems are man-made — therefore, they can be solved by man."

The President called for Americans to re-examine their attitude toward the Soviet Union. He deplored "baseless and incredible claims" by various Soviet officials that the United States is preparing war and wants to achieve world domination.

In a section of his speech saying the United States must re-examine its attitude toward the cold war, Kennedy asserted:

"We must deal with the world as it is, and not as it might have been had the history of the last 18 years been different.

"We must, therefore, persevere in the search for peace in the hope that constructive changes within the Communist bloc might bring within reach solutions which now seem beyond us. We must conduct our affairs in such a way that it becomes in the Communists' interest to agree on a genuine peace. Above all, while defending our own vital interests, nuclear powers must avert those confrontations which present an adversary with a choice of either a humiliating retreat or a nuclear war."

Sunday in his Honolulu address to the annual meeting of U.S. mayors, Kennedy called on the city executives to unite in converting the Negro's fight for equal rights into a peaceful revolution.

It was learned that Kennedy will confer on civil rights Thursday with a labor delegation and next Monday with representatives of major religious faiths. Because of these and other impending conferences, the timing of Kennedy's forthcoming civil rights message to Congress remains in doubt.

Gov. Wallace Risks Jail In Alabama Showdown

Mobile and James A. Hood of Gadsden, are to register Tuesday for the summer session. The governor has pledged to be there and stand in their way.

Wallace planned to fly to Tuscaloosa this afternoon from the state capital at Montgomery, 100 miles to the southeast. Tonight, he is expected to confer with members of the university board of trustees who voted to admit the Negroes on the main campus here and a third Negro at the university center in Huntsville.

Before leaving Montgomery, Wallace renewed his appeal to the people to keep away from the university and let him alone carry out a test of state sovereignty.

Already on the tightly barricaded campus with orders to prevent any possible violence are more than 800 state, county, city and campus policemen.

Waiting in nearby armories on standby duty are more than 500 National Guard troops mobilized Sunday by Wallace.

The guardsmen arrived by helicopter and motor convoy to reinforce civilian officers—if necessary.

Wallace said in his broadcast that to send "a loyal Southern governor to jail" would amount to military dictatorship.

He was mindful of a federal court injunction forbidding him to carry out his promised blockade of the Negroes.

Wallace made clear that his army of civilian police and the standby National Guard units will be used only to prevent violence and not to bar the Negroes.

He appealed once more to the people to stay away from the campus.

"I have kept the faith. You keep the peace," he said.

Despite the governor's determined stand, Hood expressed hope that he and Miss Malone will be admitted without interference.

On the campus and throughout the city, state troopers and local officers kept a close watch for potential troublemakers. The head of the state police, Col. Albert Lingo, said 15 white men with guns were arrested Saturday night near the site of a Ku Klux Klan rally. They were jailed on charges of carrying concealed weapons or carrying weapons without permits.

Dr. Frank A. Rose, university president, expressed confidence that the university will meet the crisis with dignity.

"No thinking person," he said, "wants anything destroyed at this university."

Among the 4,000 to 5,000 students who will enroll for the summer session today and Tuesday is the university president's daughter.

Scandal Reported Threat To Career of Macmillan

preliminary hearing next Monday.

As Ward stood relaxed in the dock in a green sports jacket, pale blue slacks and open-necked shirt, his attorney said Ward "wishes to deny this charge most emphatically."

Chief Inspector Samuel Herbert of Scotland Yard told the court Ward likely will face a number of more serious charges.

Herbert said he opposed granting of bail because he feared Ward would interfere with prosecution witnesses.

Macmillan refused to comment on the Profumo affair and gave no public indication of concern. But the scandal rocking Britain could spell his downfall as Conservative party leader. His chance of survival depends largely on the showing he makes before Parliament next Monday when asked to explain his role in the background of the intrigue.

If Macmillan fails to give satisfactory answers, one parliamentary informant predicted, there is little doubt he will be pressured even more to resign.

The gravest threat came from some of Macmillan's own Conservatives who accused him of negligence and naivete in not unearthing the true story of the Profumo affair earlier.

With an edge of about 100 seats in the House of Commons, the Conservatives under normal circumstances could easily turn back any opposition move to bring down the Macmillan government.

But some Tory legislators have expressed doubts whether they can continue to support Macmillan as party leader.

Macmillan must call new elections before October 1964. Even before the Profumo case broke, pollsters were giving the edge to the Labor party.

Christine has said she and Profumo were lovers. For months rumors had whispered this. Before Parliament in March Profumo denied the rumors. Then last Wednesday he changed his story, resigned his sub-Cabinet post and quit Parliament in disgrace.

Profumo, while confessing that he and Miss Keeler were more than platonic friends, insisted that British security had not been compromised.

There has been no suggestion that Profumo let classified information leak out. But his position in the double affair obviously made him a candidate for Soviet blackmail.

Dr. Suominen Challenges Sherpa Guide

Dr. Arne L. Suominen of Delray Beach, Fla., by a challenge from whom the annual Pikes Peak Marathon came to be established eight years ago, writes that he will be in Colorado Springs for this year's race, if he can run against Girmi (Tiger) Dorje, 27, a Sherpa guide who has climbed near to the summit of Mt. Everest six times.

Dr. Suominen who is passing part of the summer in Luonnonparantola, Lampaala, Finland, writes from Helsinki that Girmi expects to come to the United States, saying:

"To this man I say welcome to the Pikes Peak foot race in August, and if he is a smoker I will personally give him the same medicine I gave Marine endurance champion, Pfc. Dennis Frandsen, a smoker, back in 1959, when he was one-half hour behind me at timber line and never reached the summit of Pikes Peak. I am 63 and have never smoked, and am not a high altitude resident."

Springs Youth Injured By Mysterious Shot

there were three men in the 1960 model car, according to police.

The youths told police they thought the three men in the car might have been the same three they had seen arguing in a pool hall earlier in the evening. They said that the three had gone outside and thrown a few punches and that all bragged of being drunk. Nicks and his companions had followed the three outside and watched them fight among themselves, according to the report.

Nicks thought he might have been shot because he asked the men, "What did you drink, Pepsi Cola?"

Police are searching for the three men, the report said.

Mayors Promise Plan to Reduce Racial Tensions

that carried him from military inspections to political appearances and two talks on civil rights. He flew back to Washington Sunday night to make a major foreign policy speech today at American University.

White House aides termed the university address one of the most significant pronouncements during Kennedy's tenure as chief executive. There was speculation to halt nuclear weapons tests.

Kennedy told the mayors in his address at a Waikiki Beach hotel the time is past "for token moves and talks." It is clear, he said, that Negroes eventually will have equal rights and, "our responsibility, yours and mine, is to see that they are won in a peaceful and constructive mannager, and not won in the streets."

The chief executive urged that cities establish biracial human relations committees to identify tensions before they reach crises stage and to help ease them.

He also proposed:

—Every local government make certain its own ordinances and operations are constitutional. "Every instance or institution of segregation sanctioned by local legislation or public action is clearly invalid," he said.

—Each local government abolish discrimination in employing and promoting municipal workers.

—Each city government enact laws assuring the rights of all residents of equal employment and housing opportunities and equal access to public accommodations.

—Each mayor undertake a special campaign to encourage young persons of both races to stay in school in order to increase their chances for steady jobs and thus lessen unemployment among the unskilled. "I think this may prove to be, in time, the most important thing we can all do," the President said.

The mayors' conference resolutions committee went into session immediately after the speech and drafted a six-point program embodying all of Kennedy's proposals, plus a plea that "minority groups be encouraged to recognize the correlation of responsibility and duty with right and that equality of responsibility be encouraged along with equality of opportunity."

The added point was seen by Wagner as an effort to attract the support of Southern mayors. Several criticized Kennedy's talk because they said the President put too much emphasis on rights and not enough on duty.

Others said it was wrong to try to give Negroes jobs in proportion to racial percentages rather than on a basis of ability. "Perhaps our greatest problem," said Mayor A. Allen Hall of Santa Ana, Calif., "has been that we are expected to have a percentage of colored people in relation to the ratio of blacks to whites, and this somtimes operates to the detriment of the white people.

"We should not be obligated to hire somebody because of his race who hasn't met the proper standards of employment."

There was little other complaint about the President's message. Daley, for one, called it "among the great speeches of the President's career. I endorse it wholeheartedly."

Vice Mayor Sam Massell of Atlanta, Ga., said, "There are still some people who are disturbed by continuous demands for equal rights but many are realizing that minority groups will quit demonstrations only when we stop discriminating."

Kennedy called on the mayors to "set an example in your communities to which the timid can rally and which those clinging to the past cannot ignore."

Kennedy started his speech in the "Longhouse" of the Hawaiian Village Hotel 42 minutes late. He was delayed during a motorcade through Honolulu and Waikiki beach that produced a police-estimated turnout of 100,000 spectators.

The crowd moved in on his convertible at times and women threw floral leis at the smiling chief executive. Special sections along the 15-mile parade route were reserved for Hawaii's racial groups — Caucasians, Japanese, Chinese, Koreans, Hawaiians and Negroes. There even was a space reserved for the Harvard Club of Hawaii.

A display case and 60 pairs of shoes valued at $240 were stolen from a shoe salesman Saturday afternoon, police reported. Most of the shoes were for the left foot, said William Henry Burke of Portland, Ore., the salesman who reported the case to police.

He said he was delivering the shoes to Youthful Shoes at 107 E. Bijou St. and had left some of them outside the store near his car. When he came out of the store to pick them up, they were gone, the report said.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 8:30 p.m. yesterday)

A cold air mass out of Canada is slowly sinking southward across the northern border states this morning.

An unusually large high pressure system, centered over North central Canada, is pumping the cold air southward and over New England, New York, the northern portions of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota.

South of this cold front across the eastern half of the nation, warm and humid air brought in from the tropical Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico continues to reign.

The western half of the country is mostly cloudy and cool. An extensive area of rain, drizzle and showers is located over the Rocky Mountain and Plateau region from Utah and Nevada northward to the Canadian border.

Showers and thunderstorms are also falling in the vicinity of the cold front over portions of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

Early morning temperatures were in the chilly 40s along the Canadian border from northern New England and New York State across upper Michigan and northern Minnesota.

Out west, the 40s and 50s were the rule with a few 60s and low 70s in the extreme southern deserts. Warm and humid conditions over the eastern third of the country to the south of the Great Lakes and east of the central and southern Plains kept temperatures in this area in the upper 60s or 70s.

Children's Eyesight Vital To 85 Per Cent of Learning

It is estimated that at least 85 per cent of learning is a visual process, and this includes not only intellectual learning but social, physical and psychological learning as well.

So glasses, if they are needed, are not an unkindness or a tragedy for the child. Quite the opposite. They may save him from serious retardation.

There are many popular misconceptions about children's vision and glasses. Let's consider a few of them.

Do children damage their eyes by eyestrain? No. Eyestrain is merely fatigue, and like the fatigue of any other muscle, disappears with rest. It is not cumulatively damaging. Moreover, eyestrain is very rare in children.

Does a child become dependent upon glasses? No, except as he comes to enjoy and profit from better vision. A person comes to depend only on good sight, not on his glasses.

Will a child's eyes improve later so that he can discard glasses? Probably not, unless the cause of poor vision is muscular rather than optical.

Do glasses "cure" poor vision in children? No. Glasses correct for poor vision, they cannot in most cases remove the underlying cause. Glasses cannot reverse the cause of vision difficulties unless they result from certain types of muscular problems. Glasses do cure in the sense that they provide better and more comfortable vision.

Do eyes get better? Not generally. Eyes change from time to time, and particularly with age, and usually the changes are in the direction of deteriorating vision which requires greater correction by glasses.

Sometimes there are short periods of improvement, requiring a different type of correction.

Are eye exercises a substitute for glasses? Not unless the problem is muscular, in which case exercises have a limited value. If the problem is refractive (optical), exercises may have some success but only insofar as they teach the person to use his defective vision more effectively.

Corrective glasses are needed for full, comfortable vision.

Will glasses halt the progress of nearsightedness (myopia)? No, the progress is normal. It can be corrected for, and the progress may perhaps be slowed; but neither ordinary glasses nor contact lenses will permanently halt the process.

Never neglect a child's eyes. not seeing well.

Be suspicious of vision difficulties if the child makes any of these complaints: can't see well; things are blurred; letters or lines "run together" or "jump" headaches, dizziness, tiredness or nausea following close eye work; double vision; eyes that itch, smart, burn or feel scratchy; can't see blackboard.

Watch the child's appearance for these signs; lids red-rimmed, encrusted or swollen; recurring eyes; eyes crossed in or out; inflamed or watery eyes; pupils unequal in size; eyes in constant motion, usually side to side but sometimes up and down; a grey or frosted-appearing cornea (the transparent front portion of the eye); eyes unusually sensitive to light; an infant who doesn't respond to light or can't look or concentrate on mother's face or his toys; a pupil (the round opening at the center of the colored portion of the eye) which is grey or white instead of jet black.

These behavior symptoms can be important; school failures; excessive nervousness; difficulty with reading or any work requiring close vision; skipping words or lines in reading; re-reading; losing of place while reading; slow reading; frowning, excessive blinking, scowling, squinting or other facial distortions while reading; holding books and objects too close; avoidance of close work; frequent eye-rubbing; attempts to brush away a blur; general fatigue, drowsiness or irritability after long use of eyes; stumbling or tripping over small objects; poor performance in games requiring distance vision; shutting or covering one eye, tilting or thrusting forward of head when looking at objects.

An infant sees even before he is born, and his vision improves steadily to the age of about 5 or 6, when he achieves full vision, including complete co-ordination of the two eyes. Co-ordination often is not good during the first 6 months of life, but at 4 or 5 months a baby should be reaching for specific objects.

The vision of young children, even babies, can be checked by a physician, and from the age of at least 3 or 4 years it can be evaluated with great accuracy.

Don't confuse vision with hearing in an infant. "He looks at me when I speak to him" may indicate only that the baby hears well.

Eye infections in children are common and usually not to serious, but they should not be neglected.

Using the eyes does not harm them. Since they are really extensions of the brain, the more they are used the better vision becomes.

JFK Orders Ban on U.S. Atomic Tests

His big jet plane landed at Andrews Air Force Base at 8:51 a.m. EDT after a flight of 8 hours and 58 minutes from the Hawaiian capital. That left him time for only a brief check-in at the White House before the midmorning speech at the university.

Kennedy made the announcement of the conference and the declaration of hiw own limited no-test policy as two of the three major points of his speech at the university. In the third part he said:

"Finally, my fellow Americans, let us re-examine our attitude toward peace and freedom here at home. The quality and spirit of our own society must justify and support our efforts abroad."

In this obvious reference to burning civil rights issues, Kennedy declared:

""It is the responsibility of the executive branch at all levels of government—local, state and national—to provide and protect. . . freedom for all citizens by all means within their authority. It is the responsibility of the legislative branch at all levels, wherever that authority is not now adequate, to make it adequate. And it is the responsibility of all citizens in all sections to respect the rights of all others and to respect the law of the land."

In some degree Kennedy's nuclear testing announcement served to set the stage for his four-nation European tour starting in about two weeks.

Kennedy said of the new agreement with Khrushchev to try for a nuclear test ban that it is true no treaty can provide "absolute security against the risks of deception and evasion."

"But it can—if it is sufficiently effective in its enforcement and if it is sufficiently in the interest of its signers—offer far more security and far fewer risks than an unabated, uncontrolled, unpredictable arms race."

With the announcement here of the Moscow conference, it was understood that preparations of U.S. and British plans for the meeting will be the major subject of discussion between Kennedy and Macmillan when the President visits the prime minister at the end of June. In fact, officials said the need to talk about this problem was the real reason for the decision of the two men to meet at this time.

Kennedy said in his speech that too many people think peace is impossible or unreal.

"But that is a dangerous, defeatist belief," he said. "It leads to the conclusion that war is inevitable. We need not accept that view. Our problems are man-made — therefore, they can be solved by man."

The President called for Americans to re-examine their attitude toward the Soviet Union. He deplored "baseless and incredible claims" by various Soviet officials that the United States is preparing war and wants to achieve world domination.

In a section of his speech saying the United States must re-examine its attitude toward the cold war, Kennedy asserted:

"We must deal with the world as it is, and not as it might have been had the history of the last 18 years been different.

"We must, therefore, persevere in the search for peace in the hope that constructive changes within the Communist bloc might bring within reach solutions which now seem beyond us. We must conduct our affairs in such a way that it becomes in the Communists' interest to agree on a genuine peace. Above all, while defending our own vital interests, nuclear powers must avert those confrontations which present an adversary with a choice of either a humiliating retreat or a nuclear war."

Sunday in his Honolulu address to the annual meeting of U.S. mayors, Kennedy called on the city executives to unite in converting the Negro's fight for equal rights into a peaceful revolution.

It was learned that Kennedy will confer on civil rights Thursday with a labor delegation and next Monday with representatives of major religious faiths. Because of these and other impending conferences, the timing of Kennedy's forthcoming civil rights message to Congress remains in doubt.

Scandal Reported Threat To Career of Macmillan

preliminary hearing next Monday.

As Ward stood relaxed in the dock in a green sports jacket, pale blue slacks and open-necked shirt, his attorney said Ward "wishes to deny this charge most emphatically."

Chief Inspector Samuel Herbert of Scotland Yard told the court Ward likely will face a number of more serious charges.

Herbert said he opposed granting of bail because he feared Ward would interfere with prosecution witnesses.

Macmillan refused to comment on the Profumo affair and gave no public indication of concern. But the scandal rocking Britain could spell his downfall as Conservative party leader. His chance of survival depends largely on the showing he makes before Parliament next Monday when asked to explain his role in the background of the intrigue.

If Macmillan fails to give satisfactory answers, one parlaiamentary informant predicted, there is little doubt he will be pressured even more to resign.

The gravest threat came from some of Macmillan's own Conservatives who accused him of negligence and naivete in not unearthing the true story of the Profumo affair earlier.

With an edge of about 100 seats in the House of Commons, the Conservatives under normal circumstances could easily turn back any opposition move to bring down the Macmillan government.

But some Tory legislators have expressed doubts whether they can continue to support Macmillan as party leader.

Macmillan must call new elections before October 1964. Even before the Profumo case broke, pollsters were giving the edge to the Labor party.

Christine has said she and Profumo were lovers. For months rumors had whispered this. Before Parliament in March Profumo denied the rumors. Then last Wednesday he changed his story, resigned his sub-Cabinet post and quit Parliament in disgrace.

Profumo, while confessing that he and Miss Keeler were more than platonic friends, insisted that British security had not been compromised.

There has been no suggestion that Profumo let classified information leak out. But his position in the double affair obviously made him a candidate for Soviet blackmail.

Gov. Wallace Risks Jail In Alabama Showdown

Mobile and James A. Hood of Gadsden, are to register Tuesday for the summer session. The governor has pledged to be there and stand in their way.

Wallace planned to fly to Tuscaloosa this afternoon from the state capital at Montgomery, 100 miles to the southeast. Tonight, he is expected to confer with members of the university board of trustees who voted to admit the Negroes on the main campus here and a third Negro at the university center in Huntsville.

Before leaving Montgomery, Wallace renewed his appeal to the people to keep away from the university and let him alone carry out a test of state sovereignty.

Already on the tightly barricaded campus with orders to prevent any possible violence are more than 800 state, county, city and campus policemen.

Waiting in nearby armories on standby duty are more than 500 National Guard troops mobilized Sunday by Wallace.

The guardsmen arrived by helicopter and motor convoy to reinforce civilian officers—if necessary.

Wallace said in his broadcast that to send "a loyal Southern governor to jail" would amount to military dictatorship.

He was mindful of a federal court injunction forbidding him to carry out his promised blockade of the Negroes.

Wallace made clear that his army of civilian police and the standby National Guard units will be used only to prevent violence and not to bar the Negroes.

He appealed once more to the people to stay away from the campus.

"I have kept the faith. You keep the peace," he said.

Despite the governor's determined stand, Hood expressed hope that he and Miss Malone will be admitted without interference.

On the campus and throughout the city, state troopers and local officers kept a close watch for potential troublemakers. The head of the state police, Col. Albert Lingo, said 15 white men with guns were arrested Saturday night near the site of a Ku Klux Klan rally. They were jailed on charges of carrying concealed weapons or carrying weapons without permits.

Dr. Frank A. Rose, university president, expressed confidence that the university will meet the crisis with dignity.

"No thinking person," he said, "wants anything destroyed at this university."

Among the 4,000 to 5,000 students who will enroll for the summer session today and Tuesday is the university president's daughter.

Dr. Suominen Challenges Sherpa Guide

Dr. Arne L. Suominen of Delray Beach, Fla., by a challenge from whom the annual Pikes Peak Marathon came to be established eight years ago, writes that he will be in Colorado Springs for this year's race, if he can run against Girmi (Tiger) Dorje, 27, a Sherpa guide who has climbed near to the summit of Mt. Everest six times.

Dr. Suominen who is passing part of the summer in Luonnonparantola, Lampaala, Finland, writes from Helsinki that Girmi expects to come to the United States, saying:

"To this man I say welcome to the Pikes Peak foot race in August, and if he is a smoker I will personally give him the same medicine I gave Marine endurance champion, Pfc. Dennis Frandsen, a smoker, back in 1959, when he was one-half hour behind me at timber line and never reached the summit of Pikes Peak. I am 63 and have never smoked, and am not a high altitude resident."

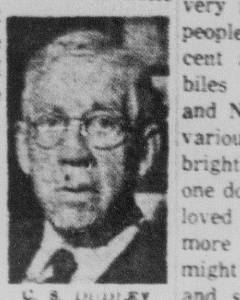
I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY



C. S. DUDLEY

My wife and I have returned from a wonderful G. and T. vacation. I had not intended to write anything about it, but people ask me why I don't. So here I do. Not that it is a chore. I find myself talking of almost nothing else.

We went by bus to Florida, along the Gulf Coast, down the east coast of Florida to Miami, and up the west coast and doubled back by way of New Orleans, with a stop of a day and night in Alexandria, La., to visit Mrs. Dudley's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schlick. Mr. Schlick is a retired Omaha bookbinder, who last worked in Alexandria and now is so much at home in his house in the woods near the city that he has almost, I think, acquired a southern accent.

We had two days under the palms in Miami Beach and then, the climax of all, a cruise to Nassau in the Bahama Islands aboard the S. S. Bahama Star. It was a night cruise over and another night cruise back and two days in Nassau, with the ship as our hotel. Nassau, is a quaint old English town, however with some very modern stores, where the people speak with an English accent and carriages and automobiles pass to the left. In Miami and Nassau we saw thousands of various blooming trees and brightly colored parrots, things one doesn't come across in our beloved Colorado. If we had had more time in the Bahamas we might have gone to San Salvador and stood, I like to say, in the footprints Columbus made when he landed there in 1492.

When we left Colorado Springs Willis Armstrong, chairman of the board of directors of the Colorado Springs National Bank, gave us a letter of introduction. He cracked us up to the sky and wrote he was enclosing a clipping of my column, with my picture on it, for further identification. My wife showed the letter to several women at our table in the dining saloon of the ship, and the hostess, Jane Smith, got onto it and took us up onto the bridge to meet Capt. Andrea Amatruda, master of the ship, who showed us the manner of navigating the huge craft. Capt. Amatruda has sailed in many parts of the world, and I had an extremely interesting conversation with him about his experiences and those of my paternal grandfather, Capt. George Dudley, of Winterport, Me., who made many voyages across the Atlantic and the Pacific in sailing ships he commanded before the Civil War. My grandfather would be away from home for months at a time, sometimes a year. I have recently been reading some of his letters, one written when he was off the Malabar Coast of India. He wrote that he had had no sleep for three nights as the ship was in a calm, drifting toward shore, and had got so close that from it old heathen temples could be seen. He had to take advantage of every puff of wind to set the sails to keep the ship from going aground or being wrecked. Finally a good wind came and the ship was got out to sea. A pig was killed and all aboard had roast pork.

Capt. Dudley sailed around the Horn to San Francisco in 1849 and lost his ship when it was burned in the harbor at Hong Kong. He returned to the United States and enlisted his services in the Civil War.

When on the Malabar Coast, he had picked up half a cargo at Bombay and was going around to Calcutta for the other half. He wrote that before long he would be in the Irish Sea, the roughest piece of water he knew.

I saw him only once, when I was a child. He had a bagful of clay pipes, and I think he gave my brother Arthur and I most of them to blow soap bubbles with.

Capt. Amatruda told us that he had been at sea since he was a boy of 17. He had sailed in much of the world before becoming a master, when he was still a mate. He said his home was in Genoa, Italy, where his parents still live. He told us about a statue of Christ which has been set up under water in the bottom of the harbor there, and is illuminated.

The Bahama Star I have been told is a former trans-Atlantic liner. Mrs. Dudley and I had never been aboard a ship like it before. There were many kinds of entertainment and the meals were banquets. The ship on each cruise sailed before dinner and docked after breakfast. It was truly restful traveling, as John Norton of Colorado Springs had told me sea travel would be. And Nassau was delightful.

Missionary Claims Communist Success

TORONTO (AP)—"Today's success story is that of communism," a Presbyterian missionary to India says.

Communism has done more in 60 years than Christianity has been able to accomplish in 2,000, the Rev. Russell T. Self told 235 startled delegates to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada here.

The Rev. Mr. Self said Christianity now claims a smaller portion of the world's population than at any time since its earliest days while communism, which had a handful of adherents in 1903, now controls the minds of a third of the world's population. He said the church must spend more money to counter Communist propaganda.

"Did you know that if forty kids all bring their collection of frogs, grasshoppers and spiders to school at the same time, a poised young teacher with a college education will run screaming from the room?"

Bandit Is Thrown Out With Money

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — They caught the bandit, but still he got away with the money.

"We led him to the door and threw him out," pharmacist Harry Chodorow, 53, said Sunday. "I became so excited by the incident I didn't think to hold him for the police. I also forgot to get back the money I had handed him."

Police said the bandit, a Negro, held a toy gun and demanded money. They said Chodorow gave him approximately $100 in cash, then noticed that the gun was not real. The robber then drew a knife but Chodorow and Juan Palinski, 17, a clerk, overcame him.

Indian President Cites U.S. Aid For World Gain

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP)—Assistance and advice extended to India by the United States Bureau of Reclamation is an illustration of how closely nations are drawing together, says India's president, Dr. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan.

He used the example in brief, extemporaneous remarks at the University of Denver.

"The only nationality today is that of the human race," the 74-year old Dr. Radhakrishnan said.

Ever since 1951, the bureau has helped India to build and plan huge dams and more than 300 Indian citizens have studied in the center during the period.

Dr. Radhakrishnan, an educator in private life, was one of five persons designated to receive honorary doctor of law degrees at the commencement exercises. The others were U.S. Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo.; The Rev. Richard Ryan, president of Regis College of Denver; Prof. Hans Kohn, retired professor at Smith College and a visiting professor at the University of Denver; and Marcus Aurelius, administrative vice president of United States Steel Corp.

Truman Aids Jewish Memorial Dedication

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman helped dedicate a memorial Sunday to the six million Jews slaughtered in World War II.

Truman said murdering the Jews wss the saddest period in history since the massacres by Ghenghis Kahn and Tamerlane.

The $15,000 memorial, a 10-foot high aluminum sculpture by Maurice Newman of Washington, is in the Jewish Communisty Center.

Iraq to Renew War Against Kurdish Tribes

By FAROUK NASSAR

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Iraqi government announced today it is renewing the war against the Kurdish rebels of Mullah Mustafa Barzani in four northern provinces.

The National Revolutionary Council declared the northern provinces of Kirkuk, Sulemaniya, Mosul and Erbil military combat areas. It gave the Kurdish rebels 24 hours to lay down their arms and pledge allegiance to the Baghdad government.

If they fail to meet the ultimatum, the statement said, the rebels will be "subjected to army fire."

The government also combined all four districts into one martial zone and appointed Brig. Said Fathi El Saqali as martial governor of the zone. He formerly was military attache in Damascus.

Saqali designated the oil installation areas in Ein Zala restricted zones and said unauthorized civilians approaching the area would be shot without warning.

The government also announced a dusk-to-dawn curfew in two areas near the air force base of Habbaniya, west of Baghdad and not in the Kurdish populated areas.

Saqali warned villages in the four northern districts against sheltering or helping Kurdish rebels.

The broadcast said the government had "proved its good intentions toward the Kurds" by ordering a cease-fire after it overthrew Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's government Feb. 8.

It said it had released Kurdish prisoners and reinstated Kurdish government employes in their posts, and had called off Kassem's economic blockade of Kurdish areas.

It said the government had agreed to a "decent realization" of Kurdish demands for autonomy within the Iraqi republic.

But Baghdad said the Kurds reacted "like gangsters" and made demands "which served the interests of foreign imperialist powers aiming at damaging Iraq's independence and sovereignty."

The Kurdish uprising in the mountains near Turkey and Iran played a key role in the downfall of Kassem four months ago. For 18 months the tough guerrillas, fighting under the soviet-trained Barzani's leadership, defied Kassem's army and police forces.

The Kurds demanded an autonomous government in their part of northern Iraq, their own army and police forces and a share of Iraq's oil revenues—most of which come from regions in or near the Kurdish areas.

X-Ray Pinpoints Pre-School Age Throat Disease

A disease which strikes at the throats of pre-school children, sometimes fatally, can often be detected first by x-ray examination and effective treatment started sooner as a result, two Miami, Fla., radiologists have reported.

"Acute epiglottitis," or inflammation of the mouth of the windpipe, has had a varied mortality rate among children aged two to five, "ranging from eight per cent up to as high as 26 deaths in 29 cases," the two doctors said today in the May issue of Radiology, a medical journal. They also noted:

"Acute eopiglottitis usually runs a rapid course and without adequate treatment often terminates fatally, making early diagnosis and treatment of the greatest importance....The disease can be recognized easily radiographically, and virtually all deaths are preventable."

Drs. Catherine A. Poole and Donald H. Altman, both associated with the University of Miami School of Medicine, said that the condition "is not familiar to many physicians and can, even in the hands of experts, present a confusing clinical picture," but they also noted:

"The diagnosis may readily be established with airway roentgenograms (x-ray films of the windpipe), without the necessity of further manipulation and laryngoscopy."

Their report noted that x-ray appearance of epiglottitis has a distinct x-ray characteristic, "and should not be confused with those seen in croup or laryngotracheobronchitis (other diseases of the respiratory system)."

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

C. S. DUDLEY

My wife and I have returned from a wonderful G. and T. vacation. I had not intended to write anything about it, but people ask me why I don't. So here I do. Not that it is a chore. I find myself talking of almost nothing else.

We went by bus to Florida, along the Gulf Coast, down the east coast of Florida to Miami, and up the west coast and doubled back by way of New Orleans, with a stop of a day and night in Alexandria, La., to visit Mrs. Dudley's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schlick. Mr. Schlick is a retired Omaha bookbinder, who last worked in Alexandria and now is so much at home in his house in the woods near the city that he has almost, I think, acquired a southern accent.

We had two days under the palms in Miami Beach and then, the climax of all, a cruise to Nassau in the Bahama Islands aboard the S. S. Bahama Star. It was a night cruise over and another night cruise back and two days in Nassau, with the ship as our hotel. Nassau, is a quaint old English town, however with some very modern stores, where the people speak with an English accent and carriages and automobiles pass to the left. In Miami and Nassau we saw thousands of various blooming trees and brightly colored parrots, things one doesn't come across in our beloved Colorado. If we had had more time in the Bahamas we might have gone to San Salvador and stood, I like to say, in the footprints Columbus made when he landed there in 1492.

When we left Colorado Springs Willis Armstrong, chairman of the board of directors of the Colorado Springs National Bank, gave us a letter of introduction. He cracked us up to the sky and wrote he was enclosing a clipping of my column, with my picture on it, for further identification. My wife showed the letter to several women at our table in the dining saloon of the ship, and the hostess, Jane Smith, got onto it and took us up onto the bridge to meet Capt. Andrea Amatruda, master of the ship, who showed us the manner of navigating the huge craft. Capt. Amatruda has sailed in many parts of the world, and I had an extremely interesting conversation with him about his experiences and those of my paternal grandfather, Capt. George Dudley, of Winterport, Me., who made many voyages across the Atlantic and the Pacific in sailing ships he commanded before the Civil War. My grandfather would be away from home for months at a time, sometimes a year. I have recently been reading some of his letters, one written when he was off the Malabar Coast of India. He wrote that he had had no sleep for three nights as the ship was in a calm, drifting toward shore, and had got so close that from it old heathen temples could be seen. He had to take advantage of every puff of wind to set the sails to keep the ship from going aground or being wrecked. Finally a good wind came and the ship was got out to sea. A pig was killed and all aboard had roast pork.

Capt. Dudley sailed around the Horn to San Francisco in 1849 and lost his ship when it was burned in the harbor at Hong Kong. He returned to the United States and enlisted his services in the Civil War.

When on the Malabar Coast, he had picked up half a cargo at Bombay and was going around to Calcutta for the other half. He wrote that before long he would be in the Irish Sea, the roughest piece of water he knew.

I saw him only once, when I was a child. He had a bagful of clay pipes, and I think he gave my brother Arthur and I most of them to blow soap bubbles with.

Capt. Amatruda told us that he had been at sea since he was a boy of 17. He had sailed in much of the world before becoming a master, when he was still a mate. He said his home was in Genoa, Italy, where his parents still live. He told us about a statue of Christ which has been set up under water in the bottom of the harbor there, and is illuminated.

The Bahama Star I have been told is a former trans-Atlantic liner. Mrs. Dudley and I had never been aboard a ship like it before. There were many kinds of entertainment and the meals were banquets. The ship on each cruise sailed before dinner and docked after breakfast. It was truly restful traveling, as John Norton of Colorado Springs had told me sea travel would be. And Nassau was delightful.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Is Education a By-Product

Yesterday we began a discussion of federal financing of institutions of higher learning. We have, we believe, fairly summed up the case in favor of federal funds as presented by the president of Princeton University, Robert Goheen.

Now we would like to point out some of the problems which we believe have either been substantially overlooked or played down for one or more reasons.

First let us realize that when it comes to higher education, this nation has always relied primarily upon private universities and colleges. Altho some tax exemption has been available, there has been little more than this from either federal or state governments which have assisted in any way the operation of our private institutions of higher learning.

Contrast this to primary and secondary schools. Here the tax hand has been heavy and decisive for more than a hundred years. The question calls for comparison. Have our primary and secondary schools, under the management of taxing bodies, done an outstanding job because tax funds were available to them? Could they have done a better job in a state of financial independence?

There is a growing body of evidence that our tax-supported schools — whether they are supported by local, state or national taxation is a mere technicality—have not held to a high standard of scholarship.

Is it not true that many colleges and universities have had to adopt courses in remedial English and mathematics because the graduates of tax-supported institutions cannot read, do not know the alphabet and may have little sound knowledge respecting the simple arithmetic and mathematical processes?

Has there not been a tendency in all tax-supported schools to make "education that is available to all" compulsory? Is it not possible that tax support in our colleges may ultimately engender this same emphasis upon general education rather than upon education in special fields?

From the standpoint of justice, is it proper to tax the entire population of the nation only to make the benefits of those taxes available to a few scholars in certain sciences? If everyone is to be taxed for education in higher institutions, could not a case be built which would demand an equal access to the "benefits" from those tax dollars?

Is not this the precise situation now in the South where Negroes are contending, and with justice on their side, that so long as they pay taxes in support of schools, they have a right to be enrolled along with others who pay taxes or who are the offspring of other taxpayers?

How can tax "benefits" for all be avoided in institutions of higher learning, if the same criteria are followed? And, in fact, when everybody "benefits" from taxes, nobody benefits as everyone ends paying for his own "benefits."

We may grant for the moment that when the federal government makes a contract with a university or college for some specific piece of research, the training which occurs in the process of the research is a by-product of the educational process and thus, that the government is entitled to buy the product that its tax dollars command.

But permit us to inquire if this is what a college or a university should establish as its fundamental premise. . .that the education and training of students enrolled is a by-product of its major function.

Is the institution there as an extension of the state, to serve it with its full resources? Or is the institution in existence to provide education and training for its enrollees? Why not let the by-products come from the graduates and let the institutions of higher learning provide the graduates?

Heat and Warmth

More Dollars—More Freedom

In all the many arguments set forth as to the "blessings" and the "benefits" to be derived from federal financing in schools of higher learning, we have seen nothing from the pens of the scholars relating to the result of this constant tax drain insofar as it affects the wage earners and producers in the nation.

Even were we to concede, which we have no intention of doing, each of the "benefits" and each of the "blessings" these institutions derive from the inflow of vast new millions for their handling, what is the overall result on the people in general?

President Goheen of Princeton was pleased to use the argument that all the dollars his institution had received were actually in the "Nation's Service."

But is it in the national service, or the national interest, to practice predation upon the body politic so that some special segment of that body can be benefited?

Is not this tendency to call upon the federal government for money for education, a tendency that can only result in having the government rather than individual persons decide how much and what kind of education should be made available?

If the government taxes everyone and uses the money to provide advanced education to some, what of those who are deprived of their own choices insofar as education is concerned?

It may be, as is contended, that Princeton's freedom has been enhanced by having its hands on more dollars. If more dollars expand Princeton's freedom, then it must be true that those who now have less dollars — not as a result of their own choice but as a result of the government's choice — have less freedom. Are we seeking a nation in which schools shall be free to do as they please, but people are to be restrained and may not do as they please?

The difference between private support of education and tax support of education is well known to any private institution that has had to raise many millions of dollars since its inception. Surely, there can be no doubt in the minds of these educators that the private method is superior, even if more challenging.

Nor can we accept the idea, which is often offered, that ONLY the government can get its hands on so MUCH money. All of the money that is used for education or for anything else is first earned in the market place.

The real question is not the amount of money but the method of collecting it. Perhaps there are certain things that will only be researched when government is in the saddle. It is said of the Hitler regime that experiments were conducted on living human beings and that without Hitler these experiments might not have occurred. How true.

It is probably true right now that certain experiments in the art of mass killing are being sponsored by the government and only the government will do this. Is this comparable to the Hitler research programs? Some may think so. Is it proper to tax those persons who do not approve of mass killing for the money to experiment in these fields? If so, then there can be no such thing as a fixed standard of right and wrong.

And what of the tendency of students trained in universities where they well know federal funds provided their education? Is it not reasonable to assume that these students, when graduated, will have a tendency to seek employment in government offices? Might this be supposed to INCREASE the size of the already overwhelming central state? Can a logical argument be found which would lead us to assume that by the process of expanding federal financing in higher education, the size of the federal government will be reduced?

A—This crane-type structure is used to erect, assembly and service large rockets or missiles. It may be placed directly over the launching site and rolled away just before firing.

Socialist Propaganda

By G. BOARDMAN, Ph.D.

You'll have to hand it to the members of the socialist conglomerate. The socialists never stop selling and they utilize every available method of communication, even the comic strips which aren't even comical. Take a look at this line: "Where else can a little kid like me just walk in and for absolutely nothing be allowed to borrow a book like this one about Sam Snead?" The final balloon encloses this, "You're right, libraries are wonderful."

Then there was the young fellow who asked an elderly gentleman if he was going catfishing. The elderly gentleman told the young man he hadn't missed a day since his retirement. The young man says that's what he'd like and the fisherman says, "Fishing every day. A social security check every month." Finally, the comic strip artist puts these words into the mouth of the elderly gentleman, "Poor devil! His youth is against him."

These are recent examples of current pro-socialism propaganda. I've been told that more adults read comic strips than editorial pages but if an adult reads both, the examples I've used give you a good idea of what the columnist who believes in freedom is bucking against, with the odds stacked heavily against him.

I haven't looked at a comic strip in a good many years but lately my wife has been reading odds and ends from comic strip balloons and most of the time I haven't been as attentive as I would be if she was reading a news or editorial item. Finally, she shoved the items I've just reported to you under my nose with the command, "Read these darned things. What are they doing in THIS newspaper?" She's right, of course. You'd expect to find this kind of stuff in something edited and published by Norman Thomas but Mr. Thomas has never bothered with anything of this kind. There's no need for him to bother: plenty of private enterprise newspappers publish this kind of hogwash and PAY FOR IT!

I don't know much about the newspaper business but I've read a great deal about freedom of the press and I suppose newspapers or the owners, publishers and editors of newspapers believe the socialists deserve all the breaks they hand to the socialists on a silver platter. I agree with them. Freedom includes the right to cut your own throat or starve or take a flying jump at the moon.

On the other hand, freedom of the press doesn't seem to include much in the way of encouragement for comic strip artists who might want to put forth a little stern opposition to socialism while trying to be funny about the whole thing.

After spending too much time thinking about this comic strip, pro-socialism propaganda for several days, I haven't found anything resembling a good solution to the problem of combatting this facet of the con game of socialism. I believe a good many publishers and editors and owners of newspaper properties may not glance at the comic strips. It's entirely possible that my expression of opinion on this subject may motivate some concentrated attention on the matter and make no mistake about this, my wife will continue to scan the comic strips and call socialist propaganda to my attention and I will report a few examples to you from time to time.

"Oh, they're just comic strips. Nobody pays attention to the comics." I can hear this kind of conversation without a hearing aid all the way from our ghost town residence. Don't try to fool yourselves, comic strips have as much impact on children as textbooks and even more impact on adults who haven't bothered to learn to think. I've listened to barber shop comments on the antics of comic-strip characters for too many years. Sure, you can combat comic strip socialist propaganda by teaching your children what socialism is and its degrading influence, but will you?

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Headless Foreign Aid Horsemen

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

In the nineteenth century in England they used to speak of "St. George's Cavalry" — meaning money that was spent abroad to buy the allegiance of other nations or to stir up local rebellions that would benefit the British position in the world. The justification for using St. George's Cavalry was that it kept Britain from having to fight wars directly. On the record the British used their monetary substitute for troops widely. They defeated Napoleon with a very small commitment of British soldiers, and they kept out of large-scale wars for a century thereafter without visible loss of prestige, real estate or power.

Since World War II there have been many attempts to justify the U.S. foreign aid program as a twentieth century variant of the horsemen of St. George who used to ride for Britain. But the U.S. monetary horsemen seem to be headless. For instance, they have ridden in Cambodia since 1945 to the tune of $248.6 million in economic aid and $85.9 in military aid, making a total of $334.-5 million. Surely that ought to be sufficient to earn a little gratitude, you might think. But the news from Cambodia is that this "neutralist" monarchy in southeast Asia has just signed a document pledging its support to the foreign policies, not of the U.S. and its allies, but of Red China. Included in the specifics of the agreement is Cambodian endorsement of the Red Chinese claim to Formosa.

NOWHERE

In other parts of the world the American versions of St. George's horsemen have been galloping off in all directions and getting nowhere. There is Brazil, to which $1.9 billion has been sent in hopes that the nation might get its skyrocketing inflation under control and somehow pull the teeth of the Communists who are trying to exploit the sufferings of landless peasants in the Brazilian northeast.

If the deployment of our own St. George's Cavalry serves to keep the largest nation in Latin America from going the way of Castro's Cuba, we can count our foreign aid to Brazil as being money well spent. But when Brazilian President Joao Goulart urges his own leftist supporters to keep their eyes on what he does, not on what he says, it is obvious that promises may not always match performances in Brazil.

The curious thing about our aid to Goulart's government is that it has been extended without any hint of real reciprocity. Brazil sells coffee and buys wheat, which would seem to set the stage for some sort of barter deal connected with our aid program. But we go on paying money for Brazilian coffee while Brazil takes wheat from Soviet Russia. This does not mean that our own St. George's Cavalry has our own St. Brazilian war, but it does indicate that it has been outflanked in a rather important battle.

Elsewhere in the world St. George's Cavalry has ridden into cul de sacs. We have provided Haiti with $100 million in aid — and the fantastic Haitian dictator just announced that he had already been re-elected president in an election that was scheduled for the following week.

BIG GRAB

Indonesia got $670 million — and thumbed its nose at the West by grabbing Dutch New Guinea. Cuba got $52 million, and then, in accordance with Castro's idea of gratitude, grabbed $1 billion in U.S. property. India has had $3.9 billion, and is currently angling for funds to build a state owned steel mill at Bokaro. The United States Steel Corporation has advised our government that the proposed steel mill, which would be built near coal and iron sources, would be practical, but private steel companies in India operate at costs approximately fifteen per cent below the costs of existing government mills, so why not lend the money to private Indian steel companies to expand?

Venezuela has had $274 millions in U.S. aid — and in view of this oil-rich nation's proximity to the Panama Canal few Americans would begrudge a penny of the money. Even so, it is a little disconcerting to hear, from Cuban exile sources, that Khrushchev has promised Mao Tse-tung that when Venezuela is subverted by the Communists its relatively unpopulated savannas will be turned over to China to help solve the problem of where to put all those extra Red Chinese.

Question Box

Question No. 244: "Is it moral for a tax-exempt institution to accept the services of government police and fire protection and roads — without offering to pay for those services?"

In the first place, we do not know of any completely tax-exempt institution. Of course, the tax-exempt institution is an artificial entity and the people who support it pay various kinds of taxes.

What most people do not understand is that most of the taxes that most people pay are indirect or hidden taxes. Every time they buy something, about 33 per cent of it is taxes. It being hidden, they do not think they pay very much in taxes, so they keep on voting for more and more government action that costs more and more money and deprives the individual of the right to develop his own faculties.

In the first place, the man who uses the roads certainly pays gasoline tax, and we believe many tax-exempt organizations pay gasoline tax when they buy gasoline.

And the fire departments certainly should not be owned by the city or the county or the government. They should be owned by insurance companies, and then the man who had a vacant lot wouldn't be obliged to pay taxes, or the man who had a fireproof building that cost twice as much to build as another one of the same size, wouldn't be paying two or three times as much in taxes for fire protection as he pays for a government-owned fire department. Competition would make the insurance companies charge the market price for the services. Of course, the police department should be supported on a voluntary basis, as all services should be supported on a voluntary basis.

The only argument we can think of is that if some people pay taxes, all people should pay taxes. But if no one should be robbed, it seems irrational to force others to be robbed.

A friend of ours said if a robber had a group of people lined up against the wall and was taking their jewels and their money, if some lady slipped her diamond ring down into her shoe, he wouldn't feel it was fair for him to steal from her, for she would have a perfect right to do it and it would certainly be moral for her to do it. And if it is moral to keep from being robbed, then a tax-exemption proposition seems to be moral.

The immoral thing is making anybody pay taxes, not exempting some. We want a universal exemption of taxation and want the government supported voluntarily because the citizen believes that it is to his advantage to support the government, just as he buys everything else on the market because he thinks he can't afford to do without it, because he thinks it is to his advantage to buy the service. But so long as the government has the power to use force to make people pay, we have immorality and wickedness in taxes.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

New Zealand Grows—In Reverse

From Chicago Tribune

Under the heading, "How to Progress Backward," the Economist of London tells the sad story of New Zealand's adventures with "planned prosperity." For some years, that country's socialist-minded government has been toying with the New Frontier's theory that if you can bring about full employment, everything else will take care of itself.

The purpose of the planned economy, according to the New Frontier's philosopher, Walt Whitman Rostow, is to lead a country from what he scornfully calls the "traditional society" to his Nirvana, "the age of mass consumption." New Zealand's experiment has led it around in a circle and back to the starting point.

The steps necessary to insure full employment have made this almost inevitable. The country has been obliged to reject any change which permits a job to be done by fewer people. Thus, New Zealand is perhaps the only country where automatic elevators are regularly manned by operators. The white dividing lines on highways are painted by hand. And if a milkman persuades his customer to buy more milk, he is not rewarded; instead, a portion of his route is taken away and given to a new man. Any industry which offers employment — no matter what it makes or how inefficiently it makes it — is considered deserving of government support—meaning, primarily, import restrictions to protect it against competition.

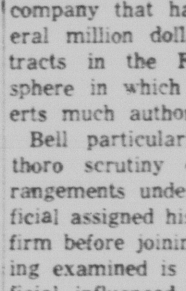
The theory is that with full employment everybody will have money and be able to buy more. In practice, productivity has gone down, prices have tended to rise, and New Zealanders have lost the opportunity to buy foreign-made goods which are less costly than their own.

Important industrial and marketing decisions, moreover, have been placed in the hands of public servants who, as the Economist notes, "have no financial interest in the outcome to their decision." It makes no difference to them whether the decisions are right or worng. This, the Economist, is "a trick well worth imitating by any society which wishes to damp down the rate of economic growth."

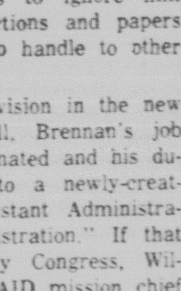
Under the New Frontier, the United States seems to be the first in line for the dubious distinction of following New Zealand downward in economic growth. Apparently in the Kennedy gospel of "getting the country moving again," it doesn't make any difference in which direction you move.

Allen-Scott Report

High Ranking Aid Official Under Fire



ROBERT ALLEN



PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Robert Kennedy is slated to rule on a conflict-of-interest case that could have far-reaching adverse effect on the President's $4.8 billion foreign aid budget.

The explosive case, under FBI investigation for weeks, involves a high official of the Agency for International Development, which administers all economic and technical aid to foreign nations.

At the request of AID Director David Bell, the Justice Department has dug into this official's financial relations with a company that has received several million dollars in aid contracts in the Far East — a sphere in which the official exerts much authority within AID.

Bell particularly asked for a thoro scrutiny of "trust" arrangements under which this official assigned his holdings in the firm before joining AID. Also being examined is whether this official influenced the granting of contracts to the concern since joining the AID agency.

In recent months, this official has been a leading advocate within AID that surplus food stock be given to Red China.

Attorney General Kennedy's impending decision is being closely watched by two congressional committees, one of them the House Foreign Aid Appropriations Subcommittee, headed by Representative Otto Passman, D-La., long a militant foe of large-scale foreign aid spending. This group is preparing to start hearings on the President's $4.8 billion foreign aid budget.

If the attorney general does nothing about the conflict-of-interest case, Representative Passman is authoritatively understood to be set to launch a reverberating investigation of the affair.

Senator John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the investigating committee which already is looking into alleged corruption in the aid program in Iran, is also eyeing the conflict-of-interest case.

A big scandal in the foreign aid program at this crucial period could seriously damage it. Such a furore could build up powerful steam behind the growing demand for drastic cuts up to $2 billion.

SKINNING THE CAT

Another high AID official, in no way involved in the conflict-of-interest affair, is earmarked to be ousted from his job by August 1.

He is Bernard T. Brennan, deputy administrator for administration and No. 3 man in the agency.

The White House has sent legislation to Congress to abolish Brennan's job because the holdover from the Eisenhower administration is adamantly refusing to quit.

In an effort to pressure him to depart, Brennan has been stripped of virtually all work. White House aides passed the word to AID authorities to ignore him and route functions and papers that he used to handle to other officials.

Under a provision in the new foreign aid bill, Brennan's job would be eliminated and his duties assigned to a newly-created post, "Assistant Administrator for Administration." If that is approved by Congress, William O. Hall, AID mission chief in Pakistan, is slated to replace Brennan.

FOREIGN FLASHES

The communications base the Navy is planning to build in Western Australia will cost $120 million. That's the estimate given the House Appropriations Committee. A Navy report reveals a giant transmitter will be located near Learmouth, Australia, and be capable of contacting Polaris submarines anywhere in the southern hemisphere. The base, which will house around 2,000 Americans, will have constant and direct contact with Washington and all surface vessels, submarines and aircraft operating south of the equator . . . . The feathers are about to fly in the U.S.-German poultry war. Vince Pringle, president of the American Poultry Institute, has retained a firm of German lawyers to wage a court battle under Germany's anti-product discrimination laws against slanderous statements about American poultry. More than 300 ant-U.S. poultry articles have been published in West Germany in recent months, according to a Pringle survey. Most of these articles charged U.S. chickens are germ carriers.

Premier Khrushchev has invited Alfred Krupp, denazified German munitions mogul, to take part in a $1 billion Siberian industrialization program. Khrushchev wants Krupp to organize a West German combine to supply numerous industrial installations, including steel mills and cement factories, in Siberia. According to U.S. Intelligence, the offer was made to Krupp in a Kremlin meeting with Khrushchev early this month. Berthold Beitz, Krupp's general manager, who accompanied him to Moscow, is now touring Siberia. Krupp predicted to U.S. embassy officials in Moscow that once Chancellor Adenauer steps out, the new West German government will approve Krupp's participation in the Siberian industralization project. Krupp now heads a consortium of more than 25 firms building steel and cement plants in India.

To The Point

The Graven Public Image

By RUSSELL KIRK

Mr. Edward R. Murrow, chief of the United States Information Service, says that racial discrimination in America is our greatest handicap in "promoting a favorable image" of this country in foreign parts. That idea is of doubtful accuracy. And I doubt, indeed, whether we should be manufacturing "public images" at all.

Graven images are forbidden in Holy Writ. Sometimes I think that Jehovah had in mind, among other forms of images, the notion of the "public-relations image," or false face created by the arts of mass communication.

Professor Daniel J. Boorstin, of the University of Chicago, published some months ago a good book, "The Image, or What Happened to the American Dream." He says that we ought to be concerned with ideals and realities, not "images."

"We suffer unwittingly from our own idolatry," Mr. Boorstin writes. "The more images we present to people, the more irrelevant and perverse and unattractive they find us. Why? The image, because it invites comparison, is irrelevant. Few people are not sensible enough to see that the image does not relate to them. Our images suggest arrogance: in them we set ourselves up as a mold for the world. Even the most belligerent and unrealistic Communist ideals do not seem to do that. Instead, they present people with standards of perfection which they are supposed to apply to themselves."

Nearly all the talk of Africans and Asiatics resenting "racial discrimination" in America is hypocrisy or nonsense. For nearly every one of the "emerging nations" or new members of the U.N.O. engages in forms of "discrimination" far more severe than anything encountered in these United States. Saudi Arabia will not allow a Jew to live within its frontiers, tolerates a few Christians only if they remain within foreign compounds, and holds hundreds of thousands of black slaves. Abyssinia, too, still has millions of serfs or slaves. The Moslem states of North Africa have driven out nearly all Jews — who had lived there for thousands of years. Whites are in danger of their lives in many of the new African states. Christians are being pushed out of the Sudan. All racial minorities are suspect and harried in Indonesia. And Soviet Russia, of course, "liquidates" whole peoples.

So it is improbable that the ruling cliques of Asiatics and African states are seriously concerned over the difficulties of some colored Americans in being served at department-store lunch-counters. When they talk the language of a holier-than-thou attitude in racial relationships, it is only because they resent American power — or hope to extract something more in the way of American foreign aid.

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Is Education a By-Product

Yesterday we began a discussion of federal financing of institutions of higher learning. We have, we believe, fairly summed up the case in favor of federal funds as presented by the president of Princeton University, Robert Goheen.

Now we would like to point out some of the problems which we believe have either been substantially overlooked or played down for one or more reasons.

First let us realize that when it comes to higher education, this nation has always relied primarily upon private universities and colleges. Altho some tax exemption has been available, there has been little more than this from either federal or state governments which have assisted in any way the operation of our private institutions of higher learning.

Contrast this to primary and secondary schools. Here the tax hand has been heavy and decisive for more than a hundred years. The question calls for comparison. Have our primary and secondary schools, under the management of taxing bodies, done an outstanding job because tax funds were available to them? Could they have done a better job in a state of financial independence?

There is a growing body of evidence that our tax-supported schools — whether they are supported by local, state or national taxation is a mere technicality—have not held to a high standard of scholarship.

Is it not true that many colleges and universities have had to adopt courses in remedial English and mathematics because the graduates of tax-supported institutions cannot read, do not know the alphabet and may have little sound knowledge respecting the simple arithmetic and mathematical processes?

Has there not been a tendency in all tax-supported schools to make "education that is available to all" compulsory? Is it not possible that tax support in our colleges may ultimately engender this same emphasis upon general education rather than upon education in special fields?

From the standpoint of justice, is it proper to tax the entire population of the nation only to make the benefits of those taxes available to a few scholars in certain sciences? If everyone is to be taxed for education in higher institutions, could not a case be built which would demand an equal access to the "benefits" from those tax dollars?

Is not this the precise situation now in the South where Negroes are contending, and with justice on their side, that so long as they pay taxes in support of schools, they have a right to be enrolled along with others who pay taxes or who are the offspring of other taxpayers?

How can tax "benefits" for all be avoided in institutions of higher learning, if the same criteria are followed? And, in fact, when everybody "benefits" from taxes, nobody benefits as everyone ends paying for his own "benefits."

We may grant for the moment that when the federal government makes a contract with a university or college for some specific piece of research, the training which occurs in the process of the research is a by-product of the educational process and thus, that the government is entitled to buy the product that its tax dollars command.

But permit us to inquire if this is what a college or a university should establish as its fundamental premise. . .that the education and training of students enrolled is a by-product of its major function.

Is the institution there as an extension of the state, to serve it with its full resources? Or is the institution in existence to provide education and training for its enrollees? Why not let the by-products come from the graduates and let the institutions of higher learning provide the graduates?

Heat and Warmth

More Dollars—More Freedom

In all the many arguments set forth as to the "blessings" and the "benefits" to be derived from federal financing in schools of higher learning, we have seen nothing from the pens of the scholars relating to the result of this constant tax drain insofar as it affects the wage earners and producers in the nation.

Even were we to concede, which we have no intention of doing, each of the "benefits" and each of the "blessings" these institutions derive from the inflow of vast new millions for their handling, what is the overall result on the people in general?

President Goheen of Princeton was pleased to use the argument that all the dollars his institution had received were actually in the "Nation's Service."

But is it in the national service, or the national interest, to practice predation upon the body politic so that some special segment of that body can be benefited?

Is not this tendency to call upon the federal government for money for education, a tendency that can only result in having the government rather than individual persons decide how much and what kind of education should be made available?

If the government taxes everyone and uses the money to provide advanced education to some, what of those who are deprived of their own choices insofar as education is concerned?

It may be, as is contended, that Princeton's freedom has been enhanced by having its hands on more dollars. If more dollars expand Princeton's freedom, then it must be true that those who now have less dollars — not as a result of their own choice but as a result of the government's choice — have less freedom. Are we seeking a nation in which schools shall be free to do as they please, but people are to be restrained and may not do as they please?

The difference between private support of education and tax support of education is well known to any private institution that has had to raise many millions of dollars since its inception. Surely, there can be no doubt in the minds of these educators that the private method is superior, even if more challenging.

Nor can we accept the idea, which is often offered, that ONLY the government can get its hands on so MUCH money. All of the money that is used for education or for anything else is first earned in the market place.

The real question is not the amount of money but the method of collecting it. Perhaps there are certain things that will only be researched when government is in the saddle. It is said of the Hitler regime that experiments were conducted on living human beings and that without Hitler these experiments might not have occurred. How true.

It is probably true right now that certain experiments in the art of mass killing are being sponsored by the government and only the government will do this. Is this comparable to the Hitler research programs? Some may think so. Is it proper to tax those persons who do not approve of mass killing for the money to experiment in these fields? If so, then there can be no such thing as a fixed standard of right and wrong.

And what of the tendency of students trained in universities where they well know federal funds provided their education? Is it not reasonable to assume that these students, when graduated, will have a tendency to seek employment in government offices? Might this be supposed to INCREASE the size of the already overwhelming central state? Can a logical argument be found which would lead us to assume that by the process of expanding federal financing in higher education, the size of the federal government will be reduced?

Socialist Propaganda

By G. BOARDMAN, Ph.D.

You'll have to hand it to the members of the socialist conglomerate. The socialists never stop selling and they utilize every available method of communication, even the comic strips which aren't even comical. Take a look at this line: "Where else can a little kid like me just walk in and for absolutely nothing be allowed to borrow a book like this one about Sam Snead?" The final balloon encloses this, "You're right, libraries are wonderful."

Then there was the young fellow who asked an elderly gentleman if he was going catfishing. The elderly gentleman told the young man he hadn't missed a day since his retirement. The young man says that's what he'd like and the fisherman says, "Fishing every day. A social security check every month." Finally, the comic strip artist puts these words into the mouth of the elderly gentleman, "Poor devil! His youth is against him."

These are recent examples of current pro-socialism propaganda. I've been told that more adults read comic strips than editorial pages but if an adult reads both, the examples I've used give you a good idea of what the columnist who believes in freedom is bucking against, with the odds stacked heavily against him.

I haven't looked at a comic strip in a good many years but lately my wife has been reading odds and ends from comic strip balloons and most of the time I haven't been as attentive as I would be if she was reading a news or editorial item. Finally, she shoved the items I've just reported to you under my nose with the command, "Read these darned things. What are they doing in THIS newspaper?" She's right, of course. You'd expect to find this kind of stuff in something edited and published by Norman Thomas but Mr. Thomas has never bothered with anything of this kind. There's no need for him to bother: plenty of private enterprise newspapers publish this kind of hogwash and PAY FOR IT!

I don't know much about the newspaper business but I've read a great deal about freedom of the press and I suppose newspapers or the owners, publishers and editors of newspapers believe the socialists deserve all the breaks they hand to the socialists on a silver platter. I agree with them. Freedom includes the right to cut your own throat or starve or take a flying jump at the moon.

On the other hand, freedom of the press doesn't seem to include much in the way of encouragement for comic strip artists who might want to put forth a little stern opposition to socialism while trying to be funny about the whole thing.

After spending too much time thinking about this comic strip, pro-socialism propaganda for several days, I haven't found anything resembling a good solution to the problem of combatting this facet of the con game of socialism. I believe a good many publishers and editors and owners of newspaper properties may not glance at the comic strips. It's entirely possible that my expression of opinion on this subject may motivate some concentrated attention on the matter and make no mistake about this, my wife will continue to scan the comic strips and call socialist propaganda to my attention and I will report a few examples to you from time to time.

"Oh, they're just comic strips. Nobody pays attention to the comics." I can hear this kind of conversation without a hearing aid all the way from our ghost town residence. Don't try to fool yourselves, comic strips have as much impact on children as textbooks and even more impact on adults who haven't bothered to learn to think. I've listened to barber shop comments on the antics of comic-strip characters for too many years. Sure, you can combat comic strip socialist propaganda by teaching your children what socialism is and its degrading influence, but will you?

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

In the nineteenth century in England they used to speak of "St. George's Cavalry" — meaning money that was spent abroad to buy the allegiance of other nations or to stir up local rebellions that would benefit the British position in the world. The justification for using St. George's Cavalry was that it kept Britain from having to fight wars directly. On the record the British used their monetary substitute for troops widely. They defeated Napoleon with a very small commitment of British soldiers, and they kept out of large-scale wars for a century thereafter without visible loss of prestige, real estate or power.

Since World War II there have been many attempts to justify the U.S. foreign aid program as a twentieth century variant of the horsemen of St. George who used to ride for Britain. But the U.S. monetary horsemen seem to be headless. For instance, they have ridden in Cambodia since 1945 to the tune of $248.6 million in economic aid and $85.9 in military aid, making a total of $334.5 million. Surely that ought to be sufficient to earn a little gratitude, you might think. But the news from Cambodia is that this "neutralist" monarchy in southeast Asia has just signed a document pledging its support to the foreign policies, not of the U.S. and its allies, but of Red China. Included in the specifics of the agreement is Cambodian endorsement of the Red Chinese claim to Formosa.

NOWHERE

In other parts of the world the American versions of St. George's horsemen have been galloping off in all directions and getting nowhere. There is Brazil, to which $1.9 billion has been sent in hopes that the nation might get its skyrocketing inflation under control and somehow pull the teeth of the Communists who are trying to exploit the sufferings of landless peasants in the Brazilian northeast.

If the deployment of our own St. George's Cavalry serves to keep the largest nation in Latin America from going the way of Castro's Cuba, we can count our foreign aid to Brazil as being money well spent. But when Brazilian President Joao Goulart urges his own leftist supporters to keep their eyes on what he does, not on what he says, it is obvious that promises may not always match performances in Brazil.

The curious thing about our aid to Goulart's government is that it has been extended without any hint of real reciprocity. Brazil sells coffee and buys wheat, which would seem to set the stage for some sort of barter deal connected with our aid program. But we go on paying money for Brazilian coffee while Brazil takes wheat from Soviet Russia. This does not mean that our own St. George's Cavalry has our own St. Brazilian war, but it does indicate that it has been outflanked in a rather important battle.

Elsewhere in the world St. George's Cavalry has ridden into cul de sacs. We have provided Haiti with $100 million in aid — and the fantastic Haitian dictator just announced that he had already been re-elected president in an election that was scheduled for the following week.

BIG GRAB

Indonesia got $670 million — and thumbed its nose at the West by grabbing Dutch New Guinea. Cuba got $52 million, and then, in accordance with Castro's idea of gratitude, grabbed $1 billion in U.S. property. India has had $3.9 billion, and is currently angling for funds to build a state owned steel mill at Bokaro. The United States Steel Corporation has advised our government that the proposed steel mill, which would be built near coal and iron sources, would be practical, but private steel companies in India operate at costs approximately fifteen per cent below the costs of existing government mills, so why not lend the money to private Indian steel companies to expand?

Venezuela has had $274 millions in U.S. aid — and in view of this oil-rich nation's proximity to the Panama Canal few Americans would begrudge a penny of the money. Even so, it is a little disconcerting to hear, from Cuban exile sources, that Khrushchev has promised Mao Tse-tung that when Venezuela is subverted by the Communists its relatively unpopulated savannas will be turned over to China to help solve the problem of where to put all those extra Red Chinese.

Question Box

Question No. 244: "Is it moral for a tax-exempt institution to accept the services of government police and fire protection and roads — without offering to pay for those services?"

In the first place, we do not know of any completely tax-exempt institution. Of course, the tax-exempt institution is an artificial entity and the people who support it pay various kinds of taxes.

What most people do not understand is that most of the taxes that most people pay are indirect or hidden taxes. Every time they buy something, about 33 per cent of it is taxes. It being hidden, they do not think they pay very much in taxes, so they keep on voting for more and more government action that costs more and more money and deprives the individual of the right to develop his own faculties.

In the first place, the man who uses the roads certainly pays gasoline tax, and we believe many tax-exempt organizations pay gasoline tax when they buy gasoline.

And the fire departments certainly should not be owned by the city or the county or the government. They should be owned by insurance companies, and then the man who had a vacant lot wouldn't be obliged to pay taxes, or the man who had a fireproof building that cost twice as much to build as another one of the same size, wouldn't be paying two or three times as much in taxes for fire protection as he pays for a government-owned fire department. Competition would make the insurance companies charge the market price for the services. Of course, the police department should be supported on a voluntary basis, as all services should be supported on a voluntary basis.

The only argument we can think of is that if some people pay taxes, all people should pay taxes. But if no one should be robbed, it seems irrational to force others to be robbed.

A friend of ours said if a robber had a group of people lined up against the wall and was taking their jewels and their money, if some lady slipped her diamond ring down into her shoe, he wouldn't feel it was fair for him to steal from her, for she would have a perfect right to do it and it would certainly be moral for her to do it. And if it is moral to keep from being robbed, then a tax-exemption proposition seems to be moral.

The immoral thing is making anybody pay taxes, not exempting some. We want a universal exemption of taxation and want the government supported voluntarily because the citizen believes that it is to his advantage to support the government, just as he buys everything else on the market because he thinks he can't afford to do without it, because he thinks it is to his advantage to buy the service. But so long as the government has the power to use force to make people pay, we have immorality and wickedness in taxes.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

From Chicago Tribune

Under the heading, "How to Progress Backward," the Economist of London tells the sad story of New Zealand's adventures with "planned prosperity." For some years, that country's socialist-minded government has been toying with the New Frontier's theory that if you can bring about full employment, everything else will take care of itself.

The purpose of the planned economy, according to the New Frontier's philosopher, Walt Whitman Rostow, is to lead a country from what he scornfully calls the "traditional society" to his Nirvana, "the age of mass consumption." New Zealand's experiment has led it around in a circle and back to the starting point.

The steps necessary to insure full employment have made this almost inevitable. The country has been obliged to reject any change which permits a job to be done by fewer people. Thus, New Zealand is perhaps the only country where automatic elevators are regularly manned by operators. The white dividing lines on highways are painted by hand. And if a milkman persuades his customer to buy more milk, he is not rewarded; instead, a portion of his route is taken away and given to a new man. Any industry which offers employment — no matter what it makes or how inefficiently it makes it — is considered deserving of government support—meaning, primarily, import restrictions to protect it against competition.

The theory is that with full employment everybody will have money and be able to buy more. In practice, productivity has gone down, prices have tended to rise, and New Zealanders have lost the opportunity to buy foreign-made goods which are less costly than their own.

Important industrial and marketing decisions, moreover, have been placed in the hands of public servants who, as the Economist notes, "have no financial interest in the outcome to their decision." It makes no difference to them whether the decisions are right or worng. This, the Economist, is "a trick well worth imitating by any society which wishes to damp down the rate of economic growth."

Under the New Frontier, the United States seems to be the first in line for the dubious distinction of following New Zealand downward in economic growth. Apparently in the Kennedy gospel of "getting the country moving again," it doesn't make any difference in which direction you move.

Allen-Scott Report

ROBERT ALLEN

High Ranking Aid Official Under Fire

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Robert Kennedy is slated to rule on a conflict-of-interest case that could have far-reaching adverse effect on the President's $4.8 billion foreign aid budget.

The explosive case, under FBI investigation for weeks, involves a high official of the Agency for International Development, which administers all economic and technical aid to foreign nations.

At the request of AID Director David Bell, the Justice Department has dug into this official's financial relations with a company that has received several million dollars in aid contracts in the Far East — a sphere in which the official exerts much authority within AID.

Bell particularly asked for a thoro scrutiny of "trust" arrangements under which this official assigned his holdings in the firm before joining AID. Also being examined is whether this official influenced the granting of contracts to the concern since joining the AID agency.

In recent months, this official has been a leading advocate within AID that surplus food stock be given to Red China.

Attorney General Kennedy's impending decision is being closely watched by two congressional committees, one of them the House Foreign Aid Appropriations Subcommittee, headed by Representative Otto Passman, D-La., long a militant foe of large-scale foreign aid spending. This group is preparing to start hearings on the President's $4.8 billion foreign aid budget.

If the attorney general does nothing about the conflict-of-interest case, Representative Passman is authoritatively understood to be set to launch a reverberating investigation of the affair.

Senator John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the investigating committee which already is looking into alleged corruption in the aid program in Iran, is also eyeing the conflict-of-interest case.

A big scandal in the foreign aid program at this crucial period could seriously damage it. Such a furore could build up powerful steam behind the growing demand for drastic cuts up to $2 billion.

SKINNING THE CAT

Another high AID official, in no way involved in the conflict-of-interest affair, is earmarked to be ousted from his job by August 1.

He is Bernard T. Brennan, deputy administrator for administration and No. 3 man in the agency.

The White House has sent legislation to Congress to abolish Brennan's job because the holdover from the Eisenhower administration is adamantly refusing to quit.

In an effort to pressure him to depart, Brennan has been stripped of virtually all work. White House aides passed the word to AID authorities to ignore him and route functions and papers that he used to handle to other officials.

Under a provision in the new foreign aid bill, Brennan's job would be eliminated and his duties assigned to a newly-created post, "Assistant Administrator for Administration." If that is approved by Congress, William O. Hall, AID mission chief in Pakistan, is slated to replace Brennan.

FOREIGN FLASHES

The communications base the Navy is planning to build in Western Australia will cost $120 million. That's the estimate given the House Appropriations Committee. A Navy report reveals a giant transmitter will be located near Learmouth, Australia, and be capable of contacting Polaris submarines anywhere in the southern hemisphere. The base, which will house around 2,000 Americans, will have constant and direct contact with Washington and all surface vessels, submarines and aircraft operating south of the equator . . . . The feathers are about to fly in the U.S.-German poultry war. Vince Pringle, president of the American Poultry Institute, has retained a firm of German lawyers to wage a court battle under Germany's anti-product discrimination laws against slanderous statements about American poultry. More than 300 ant-U.S. poultry articles have been published in West Germany in recent months, according to a Pringle survey. Most of these articles charged U.S. chickens are germ carriers.

Premier Khrushchev has invited Alfred Krupp, denazified German munitions mogul, to take part in a $1 billion Siberian industrialization program. Khrushchev wants Krupp to organize a West German combine to supply numerous industrial installations, including steel mills and cement factories, in Siberia. According to U.S. Intelligence, the offer was made to Krupp in a Kremlin meeting with Khrushchev early this month. Berthold Beitz, Krupp's general manager, who accompanied him to Moscow, is now touring Siberia. Krupp predicted to U.S. embassy officials in Moscow that once Chancellor Adenauer steps out, the new West German government will approve Krupp's participation in the Siberian industralization project. Krupp now heads a consortium of more than 25 firms building steel and cement plants in India.

To The Point

The Graven Public Image

By RUSSELL KIRK

Mr. Edward R. Murrow, chief of the United States Information Service, says that racial discrimination in America is our greatest handicap in "promoting a favorable image" of this country in foreign parts. That idea is of doubtful accuracy. And I doubt, indeed, whether we should be manufacturing "public images" at all.

Graven images are forbidden in Holy Writ. Sometimes I think that Jehovah had in mind, among other forms of images, the notion of the "public-relations image," or false face created by the arts of mass communication.

Professor Daniel J. Boorstin, of the University of Chicago, published some months ago a good book, "The Image, or What Happened to the American Dream." He says that we ought to be concerned with ideals and realities, not "images."

"We suffer unwittingly from our own idolatry," Mr. Boorstin writes. "The more images we present to people, the more irrelevant and perverse and unattractive they find us. Why? The image, because it invites comparison, is irrelevant. Few people are not sensible enough to see that the image does not relate to them. Our images suggest arrogance: in them we set ourselves up as a mold for the world. Even the most belligerent and unrealistic Communist ideals do not seem to do that. Instead, they present people with standards of perfection which they are supposed to apply to themselves."

Nearly all the talk of Africans and Asiatics resenting "racial discrimination" in America is hypocrisy or nonsense. For nearly every one of the "emerging nations" or new members of the U.N.O. engages in forms of "discrimination" far more severe than anything encountered in these United States. Saudi Arabia will not allow a Jew to live within its frontiers, tolerates a few Christians only if they remain within foreign compounds, and holds hundreds of thousands of black slaves. Abyssinia, too, still has millions of serfs or slaves. The Moslem states of North Africa have driven out nearly all Jews — who had lived there for thousands of years. Whites are in danger of their lives in many of the new African states. Christians are being pushed out of the Sudan. All racial minorities are suspect and harried in Indonesia. And Soviet Russia, of course, "liquidates" whole peoples.

So it is improbable that the ruling cliques of Asiatics and African states are seriously concerned over the difficulties of some colored Americans in being served at department-store lunch-counters. When they talk the language of a holier-than-thou attitude in racial relationships, it is only because they resent American power — or hope to extract something more in the way of American foreign aid.

American Contractor Missing in Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —Military units north of Saigon searched without success today for a missing American civilian contractor whose bullet-riddled jeep was found Saturday in Viet Cong-infested territory.

The missing man, Arthur A. Krause, 28, of Onarga, Ill., an employe of the Philco Corp. had started out alone from the city of Da Nang, 380 miles north of here and had driven about 30 miles south.

Bullet holes were in the windshield of his vehicle and burns were on the seat, but no blood stains were found.

AMA Continues First Aid Information for the Family

Editor's note: The directions that follow represent simple, concise recommendations for first aid in common emergencies. They supplement but do not replace instruction in first aid techniques. Every person should receive basic first aid instruction if possible. Knowing what to do and what not to do in an emergency can help to avoid further injury, ease pain, and may even prevent disability and death. First aid can be a life-saving skill in either individual injury or disaster situations.

If there is injury to the spine or neck, do not move victim or allow him to be moved until proper stretchers are available. A physician should supervise moving the victim if possible.

Call a physician immediately. Keep the victim warm and quiet. Dispel crowds of onlookers. Watch breathing and be prepared to start mouth-to-mouth breathing—but do not move the head.

First aid for broken bones should do no more than prevent further injury. There are two types of fractures:

Closed, when the bone is broken but the skin has not been punctured, and

Open or compound, when the skin is broken as well as the bone.

Fracture should be suspected if the part does not have a normal appearance or function. Do not move the injured person until the suspected fracture site has been splinted unless the victim is in imminent danger. Call a physician.

For a closed fracture, place the limb in as natural position as possible without causeing discomfort to the victim.

Apply splints. They must be long enough to extend well beyond the joints above and below the fracture. Any firm material can be used: board, pole, metal rod, or even a thick magazine or thick folded newspaper.

Use clothing or other soft material to pad splints to prevent skin injury.

For an open fracture, apply a pressure dressing to control bleeding. Place a pad—clean handkerchief, clean cloth, etc.—over the wound and press firmly with your hand or both hands. If you haven't a pad or bandage, close the wound with your hand or fingers. Apply pressure directly over the wound.

Hold the pad firmly in place with a strong bandage—neckties, cloth strips, etc. Keep the victim lying down, and call a physician; apply splints as outlined in procedure for closed fractures without trying to straighten the limb or return it to a natural position.

Treat dislocations as closed fractures. Place arm in sling for shoulder dislocation. Be sure that the opposite shoulder supports the weight of the arm.

Care for sprains and strains as a fracture if there is any doubt that the injury is a sprain or strain. Place the injured part at rest, and elevate the part if possible. Apply cold compresses or ice pack for several hours. Consult a physician.

Do not apply heat in any form for at least 24 hours. Heat would increase swelling and pain.

In the home care of minor wounds, it is more important to prevent infection:

Never put your mouth over a wound. The mouth harbors germs that could infect the wound. Do not breathe on the wound;

Do not allow fingers, used handkerchiefs, or other soiled material to touch the wound;

Do not use an antiseptic on the wound;

Immediately cleanse wound and surrounding skin with soap and warm water;

Hold a sterile pad firmly over the wound until the bleeding stops. Then change pad, and bandage loosely with a triangular or roller bandage;

Replace sterile pad and bandage as necessary to keep them clean and dry.

In deep chest wounds, it is important to prevent air from passing throu the wound. The lung will collapse unless this is done.

Place a gauze or cloth pad over the wound. Hold the pad in place with firm pressure. A belt drawn snugly around the chest should be effective in holding the wound closed. The band around the chest should not unduly restrict breathing.

Knowing when to see a physician is most important in first aid. See a physician if:

There is spurting bleeding (this is an emergency);

Slow bleeding continues beyond 4 to 10 minutes;

There is foreign material in the wound that does not wash out easily;

The wound is a deep puncture wound;

The wound is long or wide and may require stitches;

A nerve or tendon may be cut (particularly in hand wounds);

The wound is on the face or wherever a noticeable scar would be undersirable;

The wound is of a type that cannot be completely cleansed;

The wound has been in contact with unclean soil or manure;

The wound is from a bite (animal or human);

SFC. GEORGE A. MEYERS

* * *

A Ft. Carson medic who takes special pride in serving at the home of the 5th Division's 10th Infantry is Sfc George R. Meyers of the Ft. Carson Army Hospital. Meyers enlisted for duty with the olden Rifles in July, 1935 at Ft. Thomas, about 100 miles from Ft. Knox, Kentucky.

It dosen't seem like so many years ago, but Meyers felt that his world as a recruit was entirely different from today's Army.

Every year the 10th went on maneuvers—hiking the entire 107 miles to Ft. Knox for training. Average rate of march was 15 miles a day, or whatever distance was most convenient for water holes.

The only men who rode were officers. Two horses in each company were assigned to officers; the other officers owned their own mounts.

"Not a single man ever feel out out on the march," Meyers recalls. "And in those days a Pfc commanded a squad; now the job calls for a staff sergeant."

And the pay is quite different. New infantrymen worked hard for their expert rifleman's rating, for this meant an extra $5 each month.

But perhaps the biggest difference is that the men there were trained to blind obedience, Meyers notes, in stark contrast with today's Army where each soldier is taught to thing and use initiative.

Meyers takes pride in the fact that his family is career military. His father, a retired master sergeant, and his son, Pvt Eugene Meyers is now attending CID School at Ft. Devens.

A pleasent thought in retrospect was the cost of cigarettes, then 11 cents a package. But no one bought cigarettes says Meyers, not even the battalion commanders. Sfc Meyers continued.

Each man bought a carton of Bull Durham at 76 cents a carton and the supply lasted everyone for the entire month.

The 10th was part of V Corps at that time, but even then the Goloen Riflemen wore the Red Diamond patch on their sleeves. But chevrons were far fewer—in the entire regiment. Meyers recalls only five master sergeants.

Reenlistment was also something different. It started with a suggestion from the company commander who had to accompany him to the finance office for final pay. In proper military procedure, Meyers walked a step behind and one to the right of the officer. The officer inquired whether the young soldiers had given thought to reenlistment. He hadn't.

On their return, the first sergeant asked the same question. Meyers had plans only to visit his mother.

The sergeant offered him 10 days leave and promotion to Pfc if he would reenlist — this was within his authority. Meyers agreed and is glad he did.

And one of the finest recollections was the esprit de corps. "Even yet," says Meyers, "I'm just as proul of the 10th Inrantry as I was then. No one ever dreamed of running down his own unit."

Nursing Home Operators Say State Unfair

DENVER (UPI)— Two nursing home operators charge here that the state was trying to put private nursing homes out of business with an arbitrary and unfair contract.

"They're asking us to buy a pig in a poke," said Virgirl Davis, former president of the Colorado Nursing Home Association, "and we're fighting it."

Mrs. Helen Douthit, current president of the association, said "ever inreasing bureaucratic regulations are making it impossible for us to operate."

They challenged the State Welfare Board to consider their own organization's proposals for rescuing Colorado's beset old-age pension medicare fund, and said they would try to see Gov. John Love to present their views to him.

The state board will meet this month to make a decision on how to handle spiraling costs in the medicare program, and to vote on the proposed contract. It includes tighter control of drugs.

American Contractor Missing in Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Military units north of Saigon searched without success today for a missing American civilian contractor whose bullet-riddled jeep was found Saturday in Viet Cong-infested territory.

The missing man, Arthur A. Krause, 28, of Onarga, Ill., an employe of the Philco Corp. had started out alone from the city of Da Nang, 380 miles north of here and had driven about 30 miles south.

Bullet holes were in the windshield of his vehicle and burns were on the seat, but no blood stains were found.

AMA Continues First Aid Information for the Family

Editor's note: The directions that follow represent simple, concise recommendations for first aid in common emergencies. They supplement but do not replace instruction in first aid techniques. Every person should receive basic first aid instruction if possible. Knowing what to do and what not to do in an emergency can help to avoid further injury, ease pain, and may even prevent disability and death. First aid can be a life-saving skill in either individual injury or disaster situations.

If there is injury to the spine or neck, do not move victim or allow him to be moved until proper stretchers are available. A physician should supervise moving the victim if possible.

Call a physician immediately. Keep the victim warm and quiet. Dispel crowds of onlookers. Watch breathing and be prepared to start mouth-to-mouth breathing—but do not move the head.

First aid for broken bones should do no more than prevent further injury. There are two types of fractures:

Closed, when the bone is broken but the skin has not been punctured, and

Open or compound, when the skin is broken as well as the bone.

Fracture should be suspected if the part does not have a normal appearance or function. Do not move the injured person until the suspected fracture site has been splinted unless the victim is in imminent danger. Call a physician.

For a closed fracture, place the limb in as natural position as possible without causeing discomfort to the victim.

Apply splints. They must be long enough to extend well beyond the joints above and below the fracture. Any firm material can be used: board, pole, metal rod, or even a thick magazine or thick folded newspaper.

Use clothing or other soft material to pad splints to prevent skin injury.

For an open fracture, apply a pressure dressing to control bleeding. Place a pad—clean handkerchief, clean cloth, etc.—over the wound and press firmly with your hand or both hands. If you haven't a pad or bandage, close the wound with your hand or fingers. Apply pressure directly over the wound.

Hold the pad firmly in place with a strong bandage—neckties, cloth strips, etc. Keep the victim lying down, and call a physician; apply splints as outlined in procedure for closed fractures without trying to straighten the limb or return it to a natural position.

Treat dislocations as closed fractures. Place arm in sling for shoulder dislocation. Be sure that the opposite shoulder supports the weight of the arm.

Care for sprains and strains as a fracture if there is any doubt that the injury is a sprain or strain. Place the injured part at rest, and elevate the part if possible. Apply cold compresses or ice pack for several hours. Consult a physician.

Do not apply heat in any form for at least 24 hours. Heat would increase swelling and pain.

In the home care of minor wounds, it is more important to prevent infection:

Never put your mouth over a wound. The mouth harbors germs that could infect the wound. Do not breathe on the wound;

Do not allow fingers, used handkerchiefs, or other soiled material to touch the wound;

Do not use an antiseptic on the wound;

Immediately cleanse wound and surrounding skin with soap and warm water;

Hold a sterile pad firmly over the wound until the bleeding stops. Then change pad, and bandage loosely with a triangular or roller bandage;

Replace sterile pad and bandage as necessary to keep them clean and dry.

In deep chest wounds, it is important to prevent air from passing throu the wound. The lung will collapse unless this is done.

Place a gauze or cloth pad over the wound. Hold the pad in place with firm pressure. A belt drawn snugly around the chest should be effective in holding the wound closed. The band around the chest should not unduly restrict breathing.

Knowing when to see a physician is most important in first aid. See a physician if:

There is spurting bleeding (this is an emergency);

Slow bleeding continues beyond 4 to 10 minutes;

There is foreign material in the wound that does not wash out easily;

The wound is a deep puncture wound;

The wound is long or wide and may require stitches;

A nerve or tendon may be cut (particularly in hand wounds);

The wound is on the face or wherever a noticeable scar would be undersirable;

The wound is of a type that cannot be completely cleansed;

The wound has been in contact with unclean soil or manure;

The wound is from a bite (animal or human);

Carson Medic Recalls Old-Time Soldiering

SFC. GEORGE A. MEYERS

* * *

It dosen't seem like so many years ago, but Meyers felt that his world as a recruit was entirely different from today's Army.

Every year the 10th went on maneuvers—hiking the entire 107 miles to Ft. Knox for training. Average rate of march was 15 miles a day, or whatever distance was most convenient for water holes.

The only men who rode were officers. Two horses in each company were assigned to officers; the other officers owned their own mounts.

"Not a single man ever feel out out on the march," Meyers recalls. "And in those days a Pfc commanded a squad; now the job calls for a staff sergeant."

And the pay is quite different. New infantrymen worked hard for their expert rifleman's rating, for this meant an extra $5 each month.

But perhaps the biggest difference is that the men there were trained to blind obedience. Meyers notes, in stark contrast with today's Army where each soldier is taught to thing and use initiative.

Meyers takes pride in the fact that his family is career military. His father, a retired master sergeant, and his son, Pvt Eugene Meyers is now attending CID School at Ft. Devens.

A pleasent thought in retrospect was the cost of cigarettes, then 11 cents a package. But no one bought cigarettes says Meyers, not even the battalion commanders. Sfc Meyers continued.

On their return, the first sergeant asked the same question. Meyers had plans only to visit his mother.

The sergeant offered him 10 days leave and promotion to Pfc if he would reenlist — this was within his authority. Meyers agreed and is glad he did.

And one of the finest recollections was the esprit de corps. "Even yet," says Meyers, "I'm just as proul of the 10th Inrantry as I was then. No one ever dreamed of running down his own unit."

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOSE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I wash a load of clothes almost every day and, of course, I starch some pieces. I do not throw away my leftover starch water. I pour it in a half-gallon jar and put it in the refrigerator to use the next day. I always mark the jar with adhesive tape so the children won't think it is a new kind of drink!

I wash—rain or shine—because I have several lines fixed up in my garage. When hanging up sheets I hang other clothes over them and they get dry just as fast and saves clothesline space. The next day I take them in and put another load on the line. I am so used to hanging them in my garage now that I don't even think about the lines in my yard.

I used my pillow slips for my baby bassinette, when the children were small, in place of sheets. Much easier to put on and they don't wrinkle the way a sheet does.

I also use pillow slips for chair backs in my kitchen over my plastic and chrome set sometimes. Sure is cool in summer. Easy to remove and wash, too. —Mary S. Beach

Dear Heloise:

For a quick-drying hair-set, I put my curlers in a bowl of hot water. Drain the water, leaving the curlers in the bowl. Shake each curler as it is used and then roll hair. Cover the hair after it is rolled up with a "damp" hairnet. Just enough moisture for curls but they will dry in a jiffy.

For a real quickie — just roll your hair with completely dry curlers and then cover the head tightly with a damp hairnet. —J. K.

Dear Heloise:

I have a trick for making hamburgers. I just use a large jar lid and line it with wax paper and press the meat with it. The waxed paper releases the hamburger patty and they are all exactly the same size. It's so easy. —Mrs. L. Freitas

Dear Heloise:

Do you know that if you glue a rubber fruit jar ring on the bottom of your kitten's or dog's eating bowl that it won't slip and slide across the waxed floor in your kitchen?

My kitten had trouble because she always licks one side of the bowl and it scoots across he kitchen floor. My mother told me to do this and it solved our problem. —Debra Sands

Dear Heloise:

If you have an invalid in the house, or just a temporary sick-bed patient, it's a grand idea to drag out that lazy susan and put it on the bedside table.

Put the medicine bottles and pills in the middle of the lazy susan with a glass of water.

In each individual section put all the little things the patient is likely to need, such as cigarettes, matches, medicine spoons, facial tissue, etc. Then when the bed patient needs something it saves you many steps as he can just rotate "Susan"—also it prevents cluttering up the bedside table.

Children especially love this. I always put the alarm clock in the middle of the gadget and set the alarm—so when it goes off they know it's time to take their pills. I put the pill bottle next to the clock. In other spaces I put their crayons, scissors, pencils etc. —Ruth L.

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers as space permits. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

Education Is Praised Highly by Educator

FORT COLLINS (AP) — Education is the only means by which a nation can cope with the problems of a modern world, Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, told the graduating class of Colorado State University.

"Once upon a time," the noted Michigan educator said here that "the American people had this all straight in their minds. The early pioneers built a schoolhouse soon after they built their homes—often before they built the church.

"They opened the doors of Colorado State University while Indians were massacring well-meaning farmers 50 miles to the west. They knew what was important. They chose education and backed their choice with their scanty dollars.

"Do we of this day have less wisdom, less courage than those whose heir we are? What we have today was made possible by those who made their choice, and properly, in days long faded into history. What legacy do we leave to the genrations to come after us?

Dr. Hannah said the impending crisis in education is not the crisis of collegs and universities, "but the crisis of Americans themselves—of a society becoming increasingly complex and difficult to manage."

Goren on Bridge

By CHARLES H. GOREN

By CHARLS H. GORN

Q. 1—As South you hold:
Spades, A-9; Hearts, 10-8-6-5-4; Diamonds, A-Q-10; Clubs, A-K-10.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Hrt.	Pass	3 Hrts.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—This is a very powerful hand opposite a partner who has jumped the bidding. In normal circumstances it is our practice to show aces in this case, but it will be seen that there is not sufficient space to permit the showing of all three aces. Our suggested call, therefore, is five hearts. Partner will deduce from this that you have all the outside aces for, if you had only two aces, you would show each of them. He will realize, therefore, that your great concern is with the hearts.

Q. 2—As South, after your right hand opponent opens with one spade you hold:
Spades, K-6; Hearts, A-9-5-2; Diamonds, A-Q-7; Clubs, A-J-10-8.

What action do you take?

A.—Double. The alternate call of one notrump is not our first choice in this case. Our objection is based to some extent on the fact that we have but one spade stopper, and to another because of the holding of four hearts. A heart contract might easily be lost by failure to double.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
Spades, A-10-8-4; Hearts, 7-2; Diamonds, 9-6-4-3; Clubs, A-K-Q.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 Dia.	Pass	1 Spd.	2 Hrts.
Pass	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—A mere simple raise at this point would not do justice to your holding. You have 14 points in support of partner's bid and should insist upon a game contract, either by giving a double raise in diamonds or by a temporizing bid of three clubs. The latter is our preference, for it may permit partner to contract for three notrump if he holds a heart stopper.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
Spades, K-Q-8-5-3; Hearts, A-8-5; Diamonds, 6-3; Clubs, A-9-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Spd.	Pass	3 Dia.	Pass
3 Spds.	Pass	4 Spds.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand, possessing as it does two first round controls, contains, in addition to a good trump suit, the essential ingredients of a slam. Take your choice as to the form of that action. In fact, with a conservative partner we might bid a slam directly.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
Spades, A-K-7-2; Hearts, 10-7-3; Diamonds, A-8-4; Clubs, Q-6-5.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 Spd.	Pass
2 Hrts.	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Inasmuch as partner has previsouly passed, you must be convinced that you are not going places. This is definitely a part score hand, and there is nothing wrong with hearts as trump.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
Spades, 10-7-5-3; Hearts, K-Q; Diamonds, K-7-3; Clubs, A-10-5-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 Spd.	Pass
3 Spds.	Pass	4 Clbs.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner appears to be fishing around for a slam with full knowledge that you were unable to open the bidding. This is just about as fine a hand as any one could expect from a passing partner, and you should be pleased to cooperate by bidding five clubs.

Q. 7—Partner opens with one heart, and you hold:
Spades, 6-4; Hearts, K-Q-J-3; Diamonds, J-10-2; Clubs, A-J-5-3.

What is your response?

A.—A direct raise to three hearts is our outstanding choice. While you may choose to temporize with a bid of two clubs, we cannot see anything is to be gained by such action.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
Spades, A-5; Hearts, A-10-9-8-4-2; Diamonds, Q-4; Clubs, A-K-6.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Hrt.	Pass	1 Spd.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Inasmuch as your hand has a trick taking power of seven tricks, a jump is indicated, and the obvious jump to three hearts is the approved procedure.

Black bean soup is traditionally served with slices of lemon and wedges of hard-cooked egg, but some tradition-breakers insist that fluffs of sour cream dusted with freshly-ground nutmeg really do justice to this good soup.

Light Voting Reported In Sicilian Election

Three million persons were eligible to vote, but the turnout appeared so light election officials allowed parties to get out loudspeakers and sound trucks and urge people to the polls.

Results of the election probably will be known tonight.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOSE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I wash a load of clothes almost every day and, of course, I starch some pieces. I do not throw away my leftover starch water. I pour it in a half-gallon jar and put it in the refrigerator to use the next day. I always mark the jar with adhesive tape so the children won't think it is a new kind of drink!

I wash—rain or shine—because I have several lines fixed up in my garage. When hanging up sheets I hang other clothes over them and they get dry just as fast and saves clothesline space. The next day I take them in and put another load on the line. I am so used to hanging them in my garage now that I don't even think about the lines in my yard.

I used my pillow slips for my baby bassinette, when the children were small, in place of sheets. Much easier to put on and they don't wrinkle the way a sheet does.

I also use pillow slips for chair backs in my kitchen over my plastic and chrome set sometimes. Sure is cool in summer. Easy to remove and wash, too. —Mary S Beach

Dear Heloise:

For a quick-drying hair-set, I put my curlers in a bowl of hot water. Drain the water, leaving the curlers in the bowl. Shake each curler as it is used and then roll hair. Cover the hair after it is rolled up with a "damp" hairnet. Just enough moisture for curls but they will dry in a jiffy.

For a real quickie — just roll your hair with completely dry curlers and then cover the head tightly with a damp hairnet. —J. K.

Dear Heloise:

I have a trick for making hamburgers. I just use a large jar lid and line it with wax paper and press the meat with it. The waxed paper releases the hamburger patty and they are all exactly the same size. It's so easy. —Mrs. L. Freitas

Dear Heloise:

Do you know that if you glue a rubber fruit jar ring on the bottom of your kitten's or dog's eating bowl that it won't slip and slide across the waxed floor in your kitchen?

My kitten had trouble because she always licks one side of the bowl and it scoots across he kitchen floor. My mother told me to do this and it solved our problem. —Debra Sands

Dear Heloise:

If you have an invalid in the house, or just a temporary sick-bed patient, it's a grand idea to drag out that lazy susan and put it on the bedside table.

In each individual section put all the little things the patient is likely to need, such as cigarettes, matches, medicine spoons, facial tissue, etc. Then when the bed patient needs something it saves you many steps as he can just rotate "Susan"—also it prevents cluttering up the bedside table.

Children especially love this. I always put the alarm clock in the middle of the gadget and set the alarm—so when it goes off they know it's time to take their pills. I put the pill bottle next to the clock. In other spaces I put their crayons, scissors, pencils etc. —Ruth L.

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers as space permits. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

Education Is Praised Highly by Educator

FORT COLLINS (AP) — Education is the only means by which a nation can cope with the problems of a modern world, Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, told the graduating class of Colorado State University.

"Once upon a time," the noted Michigan educator said here that "the American people had this all straight in their minds. The early pioneers built a schoolhouse soon after they built their homes —often before they built the church.

"They opened the doors of Colorado State University while Indians were massacring well-meaning farmers 50 miles to the west. They knew what was important. They chose education and backed their choice with their scanty dollars.

"Do we of this day have less wisdom, less courage than those whose heir we are? What we have today was made possible by those who made their choice, and properly, in days long faded into history. What legacy do we leave to the genrations to come after us?

Dr. Hannah said the impending crisis in education is not the crisis of collegs and universities, "but the crisis of Americans themselves—of a society becoming increasingly complex and difficult to manage."

Goren on Bridge

By CHARLES H. GOREN

By CHARLS H. GORN

Q. 1—As South you hold:
Spades, A-9; Hearts, 10-8-6-5-4; Diamonds, A-Q-10; Clubs, A-K-10.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Hrt.	Pass	3 Hrts.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—This is a very powerful hand opposite a partner who has jumped the bidding. In normal circumstances it is our practice to show aces in this case, but it will be seen that there is not sufficient space to permit the showing of all three aces. Our suggested call, therefore, is five hearts. Partner will deduce from this that you have all the outside aces for, if you had only two aces, you would show each of them. He will realize, therefore, that your great concern is with the hearts.

Q. 2—As South, after your right hand opponent opens with one spade you hold:
Spades, K-6; Hearts, A-9-5-2; Diamonds, A-Q-7; Clubs, A-J-10-8.

What action do you take?

A.—Double. The alternate call of one notrump is not our first choice in this case. Our objection is based to some extent on the fact that we have but one spade stopper, and to another because of the holding of four hearts. A heart contract might easily be lost by failure to double.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
Spades, A-10-8-4; Hearts, 7-2; Diamonds, 9-6-4-3; Clubs, A-K-Q.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 Dia.	Pass	1 Spd.	2 Hrts.
Pass	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—A mere simple raise at this point would not do justice to your holding. You have 14 points in support of partner's bid and should insist upon a game contract, either by giving a double raise in diamonds or by a temporizing bid of three clubs. The latter is our preference, for it may permit partner to contract for three notrump if he holds a heart stopper.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
Spades, K-Q-8-5-3; Hearts, A-8-5; Diamonds, 6-3; Clubs, A-9-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Spd.	Pass	3 Dia.	Pass
3 Spds.	Pass	4 Spds.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand, possessing as it does two first round controls, contains, in addition to a good trump suit, the essential ingredients of a slam. Take your choice as to the form of that action. In fact, with a conservative partner we might bid a slam directly.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
Spades, A-K-7-2; Hearts, 10-7-3; Diamonds, A-8-4; Clubs, Q-6-5.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 Spd.	Pass
2 Hrts.	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Inasmuch as partner has previsouly passed, you must be convinced that you are not going places. This is definitely a part score hand, and there is nothing wrong with hearts as trump.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
Spades, 10-7-5-3; Hearts, K-Q; Diamonds, K-7-3; Clubs, A-10-5-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 Spd.	Pass
3 Spds.	Pass	4 Clbs.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner appears to be fishing around for a slam with full knowledge that you were unable to open the bidding. This is just about as fine a hand as any one could expect from a passing partner, and you should be pleased to cooperate by bidding five clubs.

Q. 7—Partner opens with one heart, and you hold:
Spades, 6-4; Hearts, K-Q-J-3; Diamonds, J-10-2; Clubs, A-J-5-3.

What is your response?

A.—A direct raise to three hearts is our outstanding choice. While you may choose to temporize with a bid of two clubs, we cannot see anything is to be gained by such action.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
Spades, A-5; Hearts, A-10-9-8-4-2; Diamonds, Q-4; Clubs, A-K-6.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Hrt.	Pass	1 Spd.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Inasmuch as your hand has a trick taking power of seven tricks, a jump is indicated, and the obvious jump to three hearts is the approved procedure.

Black bean soup is traditionally served with slices of lemon and wedges of hard-cooked egg, but some tradition-breakers insist that fluffs of sour cream dusted with freshly-ground nutmeg really do justice to this good soup.

Light Voting Reported In Sicilian Election

Three million persons were eligible to vote, but the turnout appeared so light election officials allowed parties to get out loud-speakers and sound trucks and urge people to the polls.

Results of the election probably will be known tonight.

Looking At Hollywood

BETTY HUTTON TO OPEN IN 'ANNIE GET YOUR GUN'

HOLLYWOOD, — Betty Hutton started her career in "Panama Hattie" for the late Buddy De Sylva. "Now he's walked back into my life," she told me, "in the form of his stepson, Dave Shelly, who owns a new theater in Anaheim which I'll open in 'Annie Get Your Gun' on June 2." Dave told Betty that De Sylva would have wanted it that way. Betty will wine and dine a group of stars at the Brown Derby and take them to the theater in buses to watch the performance. Sounds like good old Hollywoood showmanship. After that she'll be back on Broadway in musical version of "The Matchmaker" for David Merrick. Betty's coming in to let me have a look at her. "I look pretty crazy," she said, "and I don't want you to think I'm an old bag just because I have a couple of daughters who are 15 and 16. Also a 10-month-old baby. And I love my husband, Pete Candoli."

Audrey Hepburn had a shattering experience after her arrival here. Her Yorkshire terrier, who'd traveled all over the world with her, walked out onto the street and was killed. Mel Ferrer said they'd been living so quietly in Switzerland, he became confused with all the traffic. Mel got Audrey and the baby settled, then flew back to Madrid or three more weeks of "Roman Empire." He plays a blind man in it. He's great. They were both excited about Cecil Beaton's costumes for "My Fair lady." Warners reopened its wardrobe department with 80 people. It's like the good old days.

Bette Davis, home but still not sure what city she's in, says, "BD (her daughter) collected a whole mess of new beaux. I finally realized I was getting on. No doubt about it, I'd had it. Like going back a thousand years." Bette said the closest she came to romance was meeting Casey Stengel: "I don't think anybody could be cuter."

She made a deal for a picture with Carlo Ponti; another to costar with Shelley Winters in "Faster, Faster," from Bill Marchand's play. "The title sounds like you," I said. "It sounds like the world," said Bette. "You realize how fast we're going when you get on a jet."

Many fans took flowers to Marilyn Monroe's grave on her birthday and said prayers. Whitey Snyder, her make-up man, knew she loved white and purple stocks, so he took them with this note: "Happy birthday, dear Marilyn. Whitey."

The Reece Milners' reception for Rod Taylor and his beautiful bride Mary went beyond midnight. Friends came and left and then came back. Jane Fonda, who once gave me an interview about how she was against marriage sure didn't look it. Two days later she was kissing Rod on the set. She'll linger after this picture is ended.

Barbara Rush Cowan told me the baby is expected within a month. Showers for her are coming down like rain.

The Tom Mays dropped by before going on to another party. If the Mays are your friends, you don't need any more. For his 80th birthday, people came from New York, London, Paris, and Rome.

Newest Music Craze Styled 'Bluegrass'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's newest music craze is a style called "Bluegrass," according to HiFi-Stereo Review magazine, which describes it as a combination of improvised country-style rhythm, virtuoso banjo- and-guitar playing and real ballads. The "Bluegrass" style was perfected by one of the Southland's favorite musical groups, Lester Flatt and the Foggy Mountain Boys, the magazine said.

Looking At Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, — Betty Hutton started her career in "Panama Hattie" for the late Buddy De Sylva. "Now he's walked back into my life," she told me, "in the form of his stepson, Dave Shelly, who owns a new theater in Anaheim which I'll open in 'Annie Get Your Gun' on June 2." Dave told Betty that De Sylva would have wanted it that way. Betty will wine and dine a group of stars at the Brown Derby and take them to the theater in buses to watch the performance. Sounds like good old Hollywoood showmanship. After that she'll be back on Broadway in musical version of "The Matchmaker" for David Merrick. Betty's coming in to let me have a look at her. "I look pretty crazy," she said, "and I don't want you to think I'm an old bag just because I have a couple of daughters who are 15 and 16. Also a 10-month-old baby. And I love my husband, Pete Candoli."

Audrey Hepburn had a shattering experience after her arrival here. Her Yorkshire terrier, who'd traveled all over the world with her, walked out onto the street and was killed. Mel Ferrer said they'd been living so quietly in Switzerland, he became confused with all the traffic. Mel got Audrey and the baby settled, then flew back to Madrid or three more weeks of "Roman Empire." He plays a blind man in it. He's great. They were both excited about Cecil Beaton's costumes for "My Fair lady." Warners reopened its wardrobe department with 80 people. It's like the good old days.

Bette Davis, home but still not sure what city she's in, says, "BD (her daughter) collected a whole mess of new beaux. I finally realized I was getting on. No doubt about it, I'd had it. Like going back a thousand years." Bette said the closest she came to romance was meeting Casey Stengel: "I don't think anybody could be cuter."

She made a deal for a picture with Carlo Ponti; another to costar with Shelley Winters in "Faster, Faster," from Bill Marchand's play. "The title sounds like you," I said. "It sounds like the world," said Bette. "You realize how fast we're going when you get on a jet."

Many fans took flowers to Marilyn Monroe's grave on her birthday and said prayers. Whitey Snyder, her make-up man, knew she loved white and purple stocks, so he took them with this note: "Happy birthday, dear Marilyn. Whitey."

The Reece Milners' reception for Rod Taylor and his beautiful bride Mary went beyond midnight. Friends came and left and then came back. Jane Fonda, who once gave me an interview about how she was against marriage sure didn't look it. Two days later she was kissing Rod on the set. She'll linger after this picture is ended.

Barbara Rush Cowan told me the baby is expected within a month. Showers for her are coming down like rain.

The Tom Mays dropped by before going on to another party. If the Mays are your friends, you don't need any more. For his 80th birthday, people came from New York, London, Paris, and Rome.

Newest Music Craze Styled 'Bluegrass'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's newest music craze is a style called "Bluegrass," according to HiFi-Stereo Review magazine, which describes it as a combination of improvised country-style rhythm, virtuoso banjo- and-guitar playing and real ballads. The "Bluegrass" style was perfected by one of the Southland's favorite musical groups, Lester Flatt and the Foggy Mountain Boys, the magazine said.

Tobaccos Lowered in Another Scare

NEW YORK (AP)—Tobaccos were lower on another health scare and the stock market settled lower in active trading early this afternoon.

Although the general run of key stocks declined from fractions to a point, some wider losses hit blue chips represented in the averages and these were depressed.

The market was absorbing some further profit taking, brokers said. In some instances stocks recovered briskly after initial losses.

The tobaccos were upset by a report of the American Heart Association, linking cigarette smoking and heart disease. Some tobacco issues were off 2 or 3 points.

Reports that steel shipments may be heading for a 10 per cent to 15 per cent decline in July accompanied a moderate decline by the top steelmakers. The recently strong rails were lower as concern grew about the possibility of a nationwide strike Wednesday.

Oils, aerospace issues, electronics, office equipments, drugs, oils, and chemicals were among the losers.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 2.1 to 271.2, a sharp loss. The industrials were off 3.5, rails 1.2, and utilities .3.

Declines of about 2 apiece by du Pont, Woolworth, Air Reduction and Liggett & Myers weighed on the average. Aso pulling down the average, Allied Chemical dropped more than a point, United Aircraft and U. S. Steel about a point each, General Motors and American Telephone fractions.

"It seems to be just a correction in individual stocks," said one analyst. "There seems no indication of a wide-open break."

Chrysler was swamped by a preponderance of sell orders and delayed an hour in opening. Then it fell 1⅞ to 62 on blocks of 13,700 and 20,800 shares. It more than erased the loss in later dealings.

IBM was off about 4, Philip Morris about 3, Lorillard, Smith-Douglas and Litton Industries more than a point each.

Losses of about a point were taken by American Tobacco, Pan American World Airways, Royal Dutch, Reynolds Tobaccos, Polaroid and Caterpillar.

McGraw-Hill was unchanged at 27¾ on 88,000 shares, insuring it a place on the list of volume leaders.

North American Aviation was unchanged. Sunbeam was fractionally lower despite a dividend boost. Kaiser Aluminum was steady after a price-bolstering move but other aluminums declined, Alcoa losing about 2.

American Stock Exchange prices moved irregularly lower in moderately active trading. Syntex dropped about 2 points and Technical Operations lost more than a point. Fractional losers included Sperry Rand warrants, Signal Oil "A," Great Basins Petroleum, Rc group and Occidental Petroleum. Up fractionally were Gulf American Land, National Petroleum and Ross Products. Brillo picked up a point.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. Government bonds edged higher.

Sudden Death Playoff Slated For Rock Tourney

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI)—A three-foot putt dropped by Barbara Romack and a similar one missed by Shirley Englehorn on the third hole of a sudden death playoff decided the $10,000 Rock City Women's Open golf tournament here Sunday.

Both women had 212 scores for the three 18-hole rounds to tie for first place and move into the sudden death playoff for the $1,500 first-prize money.

On the third hole of the playoff on the Valley Brook Golf and Country Club course near here, Miss Romack dropped a three-foot putt. Miss Englehorn, with a slightly shorter putt, watched her ball jump in the hole and bounce back out. She left with $1,250 second-place prize money.

DJ Industrial Average Flirting With Old Record

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones industrial stock price index is flirting with a new high after an 18-month lapse from the old and still champion figure. The Associated Press price average already has broken into new high ground. Standard & Poor's industrial index also is in at least striking distance of a new peak.

The averages are followed closely in board rooms and living rooms. Even the sophisticated who know that any index can't tell all of the market story, but only give a reasonably accurate account of the over-all ups and downs over the months and years, want to know how their favorites closed.

But out of the 17 million Americans who now own stocks, many newcomers—and some old timers—are vague as to how an index is figured hour by hour, how it changes with the times, how the stocks on it are chosen, and how good a guide it really is.

Take the widely quoted Dow Jones industrial uaverage. It began in 1897 with 12 stocks, was expanded to 20 in 1916, and to the present 30 in 1928.

Yet American Tobacco and General Electric are the only stocks on the present index that were on the original one.

The first chemical and the first oil were put on the list in 1924 to reflect growing importance of before that.

The 30 stocks always are candidates for change, should industry emphasis change as it does rapidly in these postwar years or fortunes of particular companies make some other stock more representative of their industry. There were no changes in the last two years, despite turbulent upswings and crashes in the market, but there were four changes in 1958.

The Dow Jones industrial index closed at 722.41 last Friday. Its historical peak was 734.9 December 13, 1961. But neither figure indicates as some might guess the average price for the 30 stocks. Their actual prices range from 0246.75, Du Pont, to $29.37, American Tobacco, and their average price is a lot closer to $71 than to 722.41.

Similarly, when the index goes up or down five points, it doesn't mean a change of $5 as the unsophisticated often think, an average of 50 cents a share would be a lot closer.

The reason for this is largely due to stock splits since the various companies were put on the list. This cut the market value of the individual new shares, roughly in proportion to the size of the stock split, and would throw the index out of relation to its level of the day before.

So the divisor for calculating the latest position of the 30 stonfs is adjusted downward. And the divisor also has to be adjusted when stocks are substituted to bring the newcomers into line with the survivors.

Thus, the sum of the prices of the 30 stocks on today's Dow Jones industrial index isn't divided by a simple 30, but because of the many complicated changes over the years by 2.914. That's why the index reads 722.41 rather than $71.13.

Critics of the index as a guide to the stock market as a whole complain that the many changes over the years, both in the makeup of the list and in the arithmetic used, have given it false values in the public's eyes.

They also charge, often with good reason, that many of the stocks on the list—most in the blue-chip category—may be currently stagnant while traders are interested mainly in other stocks. Example: Those considered growth stocks in the frenzied bull market of 1961.

Navy Won't Give Away Electronic Secrets to Reds

EDITOR'S NOTE — Russian bomber flights over U.S. aircraft carriers, seemingly at will, have raised some questions as to the value of the flattop as a weapon. Actually, these flights are a form of electronic warfare in which the United States is being invited to give away secrets. Here is a report by a veteran Associated Press military affairs writer.

By BEM PRICE
AP Military Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy's top airman said today Russian planes — and any first rate Sea Scout — could pretty well locate any U.S. aircraft carrier in peacetime and the Navy couldn't care less.

But there was one point in the interview Vice Adm. William A. Schoech, deputy chief of naval operations for air, wanted to make quite clear:

Schoech said he was fed up with people who have concluded that because Russian bombers have flown over U.S. carriers six times in the last year, the carrier is now worthless as a weapon.

"We made no attempt to classify the going and coming of our ships," Schoech said. "We do this deliberately because if we practiced security movements we would be giving the Russians the best possible exercise in coping with us in wartime.

"We do our best," he continued, "not to give away our wartime patterns. There is a real danger in going into war when your opponent has all the dope on you."

The admiral pointed out that the Ranger was traveling nonstop from Japan to the United States via the northern Great Circle route, that thousands of people in Japan and the United States knew when she was leaving and when she was arriving and that she was making no effort to maintain radio silence.

"Any good Sea Scout with a plotting board and a radio sitting at home could have located her," the admiral said.

"But," he added, "when we keep our electronic mouths shut, they can't find us."

This business of Russians flying over carriers is all very friendly on the surface, with both sides waggling wings and waving.

Briefly, it is a form of electronic warfare in which each side tries to determine the efficiency and range of the other's detection devices, the characteristics of the electronic counter-measures and even the counter-counter-measures.

Schoech characterized it as a "cat and mouse game," one in which the United States has declined to play.

Even so, he hinted ever so slightly that it is a game in which the United States is learning far more about the efficiency of Soviet devices than vice versa.

What goes on in this field of electronic warfare is so sensitive to the nation's security that some of the very top people in government have asked that they be kept in ignorance of advances lest they let something slip inadvertently.

In any event, there are certain reporters in this town who know roughly at what range the Navy can detect, track and destroy hostile aircraft — and it is farther than the 100 miles at which Ranger aircraft began "escorting" the Russian bombers.

These reporters know, too, Navy orders that hostile action on the part of approaching Soviet bombers — evasive action, activation of radar blinding gear, opening of bomb doors — is to be met with hostile action.

On flyovers of the sort practiced by the Soviets, incidentally, a good bit of the electronic gear aboard a carrier is shut down. No point in giving away secrets for free.

From time to time, just for example, Soviet and U.S.fighters have been known to intrude into hostile territory briefly or to make bee line flights which might be interpreted on radar as an intent to intrude.

The purpose of these flights is to estimate the range of the enemy's detection equipment and the reaction time of the defensive forces, both ground and air.

"I think it is unfortunate that there are those who keep pecking away at things like this through ignorance," Schoech said of those who feel the Soviet flights spell the end of the carrier as an effective weapon.

He denied that carriers were dangerously vulnerable.

"We are talking about degrees vulnerability," he said. "Certainly a big air base on land which cannot be moved and which can be poinpointed is vulnerable. If you could pin a carrier down to an operating area of, say, a hundred miles, it would be just about as vulnerable as a big air base.

"But you don't — and you can not now program a ballistic missile to hit a carrier."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jerome H. Goldberg of Ira Haupt & Co. feels that based on the quality of buying in the past two or three days, it should be soon before record highs are reached.

However, Goldberg notes, despite the level of the Dow-Jones industrial average, the disparity of individual price action again points to the necessity for continued selectivity.

J. W. Sparks & Co. suggests that investors hold onto everything, at least into mid-summer or fall, and wait until the market becomes considerably more speculative on increased volume before taking profits.

Harvey Deutsch and Edward Gillard of Purcell, Graham & Co. say that indications now point to the industrial average scoring an all time high very shortly. The analysts feel that recent profit taking has been readily absorbed and the base for a summer rally is firmly laid. They point out that secondary issues are attracting more attention and the market seems to be moving into a more speculative phase.

Bache & Co. says it is encouraged by the return of quality leadership to the market and it regards the buildup in trading activity in the past few sessions as favorable, "since it will take a good deal of volume to get through the psychological barrier of the record 734.91 record high in the Dow Jones industrials."

Sylvan Epstein of Reuben Rose & Co. says he would not want to predict the end of the current advance since the market is in a very strong trend with no major signs of weakness. Epstein feels the logical course appears to remain with good situations until there is some reason to suspect deterioration.

Colorado Oil, Gas Peddles Properties

DENVER (UPI)— Colorado Oil & Gas Corp. has sold its Canadian oil and gas properties to Burmah Oil Co. Ltd., Glasgow, Scotland, international oil company, for about $9.5 million.

The sale included wells now producing about 2,000 barrels of crude oil and natural gas a day and about 250,000 acres of nonproducing leaseholdings and other exploration rights, according to a Colorado oil announcement.

Colorado Oil said it would retain one-half interest in 50,000 acres of Athabasca tar sands in Alberta, Canada, where several major producers are seeking to develop the equivalent of crude oil from the tar sands.

Tobaccos Lowered in Another Scare

NEW YORK (AP)—Tobaccos were lower on another health scare and the stock market settled lower in active trading early this afternoon.

Although the general run of key stocks declined from fractions to a point, some wider losses hit blue chips represented in the averages and these were depressed.

The market was absorbing some further profit taking, brokers said. In some instances stocks recovered briskly after initial losses.

The tobaccos were upset by a report of the American Heart Association, linking cigarette smoking and heart disease. Some tobacco issues were off 2 or 3 points.

Reports that steel shipments may be heading for a 10 per cent to 15 per cent decline in July accompanied a moderate decline by the top steelmakers. The recently strong rails were lower as concern grew about the possibility of a nationwide strike Wednesday.

Oils, aerospace issues, electronics, office equipments, drugs, oils, and chemicals were among the losers.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 2.1 to 271.2, a sharp loss. The industrials were off 3.5, rails 1.2, and utilities .3.

Declines of about 2 apiece by du Pont, Woolworth, Air Reduction and Liggett & Myers weighed on the average. Aso pulling down the average, Allied Chemical dropped more than a point, United Aircraft and U. S. Steel about a point each, General Motors and American Telephone fractions.

"It seems to be just a correction in individual stocks," said one analyst. "There seems no indication of a wide-open break."

Chrysler was swamped by a preponderance of sell orders and delayed an hour in opening. Then it fell 1⅞ to 62 on blocks of 13,700 and 20,800 shares. It more than erased the loss in later dealings.

IBM was off about 4, Philip Morris about 3, Lorillard, Smith-Douglas and Litton Industries more than a point each.

Losses of about a point were taken by American Tobacco, Pan American World Airways, Royal Dutch, Reynolds Tobaccos, Polaroid and Caterpillar.

McGraw-Hill was unchanged at 27¾ on 88,000 shares, insuring it a place on the list of volume leaders.

North American Aviation was unchanged. Sunbeam was fractionally lower despite a dividend boost. Kaiser Aluminum was steady after a price-bolstering move but other aluminums declined, Alcoa losing about 2.

American Stock Exchange prices moved irregularly lower in moderately active trading. Syntex dropped about 2 points and Technical Operations lost more than a point. Fractional losers included Sperry Rand warrants, Signal Oil "A," Great Basins Petroleum, Rc group and Occidental Petroleum. Up fractionally were Gulf American Land, National Petroleum and Ross Products. Brillo picked up a point.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. Government bonds edged higher.

Sudden Death Playoff Slated For Rock Tourney

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI)—A three-foot putt dropped by Barbara Romack and a similar one missed by Shirley Englehorn on the third hole of a sudden death playoff decided the $10,000 Rock City Women's Open golf tournament here Sunday.

Both women had 212 scores for the three 18-hole rounds to tie for first place and move into the sudden death playoff for the $1,500 first-prize money.

On the third hole of the playoff on the Valley Brook Golf and Country Club course near here, Miss Romack dropped a three-foot putt. Miss Englehorn, with a slightly shorter putt, watched her ball jump in the hole and bounce back out. She left with $1,250 second-place prize money.

DJ Industrial Average Flirting With Old Record

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones industrial stock price index is flirting with a new high after an 18-month lapse from the old and still champion figure. The Associated Press price average already has broken into new high ground. Standard & Poor's industrial index also is in at least striking distance of a new peak.

The averages are followed closely in board rooms and living rooms. Even the sophisticated who know that any index can't tell all of the market story, but only give a reasonably accurate account of the over-all ups and downs over the months and years, want to know how their favorites closed.

But out of the 17 million Americans who now own stocks, many newcomers—and some old timers—are vague as to how an index is figured hour by hour, how it changes with the times, how the stocks on it are chosen, and how good a guide it really is.

Take the widely quoted Dow Jones industrial uaverage. It began in 1897 with 12 stocks, was expanded to 20 in 1916, and to the present 30 in 1928.

Yet American Tobacco and General Electric are the only stocks on the present index that were on the original one.

The first chemical and the first oil were put on the list in 1924 to reflect growing importance of before that.

The 30 stocks always are candidates for change, should industry emphasis change as it does rapidly in these postwar years or fortunes of particular companies make some other stock more representative of their industry. There were no changes in the last two years, despite turbulent upswings and crashes in the market, but there were four changes in 1956.

The Dow Jones industrial index closed at 722.41 last Friday. Its historical peak was 734.9 December 13, 1961. But neither figure indicates as some might guess the average price for the 30 stocks. Their actual prices range from 0246.75, Du Pont, to $29.37, American Tobacco, and their average price is a lot closer to $71 than to 722.41.

Similarly, when the index goes up or down five points, it doesn't mean a change of $5 as the unsophisticated often think, an average of 30 cents a share would be a lot closer.

The reason for this is largely due to stock splits since the various companies were put on the list. This cut the market value of the individual new shares, roughly in proportion to the size of the stock split, and would throw the index out of relation to its level of the day before.

So the divisor for calculating the latest position of the 30 stonfs is adjusted downward. And the divisor also has to be adjusted when stocks are substituted to bring the newcomers into line with the survivors.

Thus, the sum of the prices of the 30 stocks on today's Dow Jones industrial index isn't divided by a simple 30, but because of the many complicated changes over the years by 2.914. That's why the index reads 722.41 rather than $71.13.

Critics of the index as a guide to the stock market as a whole complain that the many changes over the years, both in the makeup of the list and in the arithmetic used, have given it false values in the public's eyes.

They also charge, often with good reason, that many of the stocks on the list—most in the blue-chip category—may be currently stagnant while traders are interested mainly in other stocks. Example: Those considered growth stocks in the frenzied bull market of 1961.

Navy Won't Give Away Electronic Secrets to Reds

EDITOR'S NOTE — Russian bomber flights over U.S. aircraft carriers, seemingly at will, have raised some questions as to the value of the flattop as a weapon. Actually, these flights are a form of electronic warfare in which the United States is being invited to give away secrets. Here is a report by a veteran Associated Press military affairs writer.

By BEM PRICE
AP Military Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy's top airman said today Russian planes — and any first rate Sea Scout — could pretty well locate any U.S. aircraft carrier in peacetime and the Navy couldn't care less.

But there was one point in the interview Vice Adm. William A. Schoech, deputy chief of naval operations for air, wanted to make quite clear:

Schoech said he was fed up with people who have concluded that because Russian bombers have flown over U.S. carriers six times in the last year, the carrier is now worthless as a weapon.

"We made no attempt to classify the going and coming of our ships," Schoech said. "We do this deliberately because if we practiced security movements we would be giving the Russians the best possible exercise in coping with us in wartime.

"We do our best," he continued, "not to give away our wartime patterns. There is a real danger in going into war when your opponent has all the dope on you."

The admiral pointed out that the Ranger was traveling non-stop from Japan to the United States via the northern Great Circle route, that thousands of people in Japan and the United States knew when she was leaving and when she was arriving and that she was making no effort to maintain radio silence.

"Any good Sea Scout with a plotting board and a radio sitting at home could have located her," the admiral said.

"But," he added, "when we keep our electronic mouths shut, they can't find us."

This business of Russians flying over carriers is all very friendly on the surface, with both sides waggling wings and waving.

Briefly, it is a form of electronic warfare in which each side tries to determine the efficiency and range of the other's detection devices, the characteristics of the electronic counter-measures and even the counter-counter-measures.

Schoech characterized it as a "cat and mouse game," one in which the United States has declined to play.

Even so, he hinted ever so slightly that it is a game in which the United States is learning far more about the efficiency of Soviet devices than vice versa.

What goes on in this field of electronic warfare is so sensitive to the nation's security that some of the very top people in government have asked that they be kept in ignorance of advances lest they let something slip inadvertently.

In any event, there are certain reporters in this town who know roughly at what range the Navy can detect, track and destroy hostile aircraft — and it is farther than the 100 miles at which Ranger aircraft began "escorting" the Russian bombers.

These reporters know, too, Navy orders that hostile action on the part of approaching Soviet bombers — evasive action, activation of radar blinding gear, opening of bomb doors — is to be met with hostile action.

On flyovers of the sort practiced by the Soviets, incidentally, a good bit of the electronic gear aboard a carrier is shut down. No point in giving away secrets for free.

From time to time, just for example, Soviet and U.S. fighters have been known to intrude into hostile territory briefly or to make bee line flights which might be interpreted on radar as an intent to intrude.

The purpose of these flights is to estimate the range of the enemy's detection equipment and the reaction time of the defensive forces, both ground and air.

"I think it is unfortunate that there are those who keep pecking away at things like this through ignorance," Schoech said of those who feel the Soviet flights spell the end of the carrier as an effective weapon.

He denied that carriers were dangerously vulnerable.

"We are talking about degrees vulnerability," he said. "Certainly a big air base on land which cannot be moved and which can be poinpointed is vulnerable. If you could pin a carrier down to an operating area of, say, a hundred miles, it would be just about as vulnerable as a big air base.

"But you don't — and you can not now program a ballistic missile to hit a carrier."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jerome H. Goldberg of Ira Haupt & Co. feels that based on the quality of buying in the past two or three days, it should be soon before record highs are reached.

However, Goldberg notes, despite the level of the Dow-Jones industrial average, the disparity of individual price action again points to the necessity for continued selectivity.

J. W. Sparks & Co. suggests that investors hold onto everything, at least into mid-summer or fall, and wait until the market becomes considerably more speculative on increased volume before taking profits.

Harvey Deutsch and Edward Gillard of Purcell, Graham & Co. say that indications now point to the industrial average scoring an all time high very shortly. The analysts feel that recent profit taking has been readily absorbed and the base for a summer rally is firmly laid. They point out that secondary issues are attracting more attention and the market seems to be moving into a more speculative phase.

Bache & Co. says it is encouraged by the return of quality leadership to the market and it regards the buildup in trading activity in the past few sessions as favorable, "since it will take a good deal of volume to get through the psychological barrier of the record 734.91 record high in the Dow Jones industrials."

Sylvan Epstein of Reuben Rose & Co. says he would not want to predict the end of the current advance since the market is in a very strong trend with no major signs of weakness. Epstein feels the logical course appears to remain with good situations until there is some reason to suspect deterioration.

Colorado Oil, Gas Peddles Properties

DENVER (UPI)— Colorado Oil & Gas Corp. has sold its Canadian oil and gas properties to Burmah Oil Co. Ltd., Glasgow, Scotland, international oil company, for about $9.5 million.

The sale included wells now producing about 2,000 barrels of crude oil and natural gas a day and about 250,000 acres of nonproducing leaseholdings and other exploration rights, according to a Colorado oil announcement.

Colorado Oil said it would retain one-half interest in 50,000 acres of Athabasca tar sands in Alberta, Canada, where several major producers are seeking to develop the equivalent of crude oil from the tar sands.

HOT DOG! — John Polliard, electrical lineman with the Air Force Academy's Directorate of Facilities Support, demonstrates a unique audio-visual aid he has designed to two very attentive elementary school students. Mr. Polliard's machine uses a hot dog to demonstrate the destructive effects of high voltage on the human body. The demonstration is startlingly graphic. The electrician will receive a $20 award for his idea through the Academy beneficial suggestion program.

Local Residents To Be Contacted By Survey Workers

Local residents will help determine national trends in employment and unemployment when they answer questions in the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey during the week of June 17, it was announced today by Director Francis H. Wilmer of the Census Bureau regional office at Denver.

Earlier surveys indicated a monthly average of nearly 67 million Americans employed and 4.5 million looking for work during the first four months of 1963.

The facts collected locally will be sent to Washington for processing in the Census Bureau's electronic computers, and national estimates of the June employment situation will be released early in July by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U. S. Department of Labor.

Families interviewed in the survey here and in the 356 other sample areas in the country are chosen to provide representation in the sample for all types of areas and all major groups of the Nation's population. They are selected by address rather than by name, and the information they contribute to the survey remains confidential in the Census Bureau's records. Only statistical totals are published.

Census Bureau interviewers who will visit local families in June include:

Girl Scout Summer Sessions Filling Rapidly

Miss Janet Canty, director of Sky High Ranch, the Girl Scout established camp, has announced that the summer sessions are filling rapidly. The one-week sessions are already closed, she stated, but there are still a few vacancies in the two week sessions.

Miss Canty urged that campers register as soon as possible for the session of their choice. The first session opens June 24 and Miss Canty suggests that campers or parents who are interested should contact the Girl Scout Service Center, 518 N. Nevada Ave., without delay.

The established camp program this summer will be enriched by the adition of many program possibilities. These include a kiln to be used to process native red and gray clay, sixteen-foot teepees for the primitive units whose theme will center on Indian lore, fishing in the small lake created by a newly erected dam and horseback riding using the mounts provided by Elkhorn Stables in Green Mountain Falls.

The Girl Scouts, which are an agency of the United Fund, believe that camping is an integral part of the total program, and are hopeful that all 5,000 girls in the council may have an opportunity to participate in some way.

Anyone who is interested in insuring that a girl may go to camp by providing a campership is urged to call Mrs. J. T. Meserow, executive director.

The figures were taken from the annual secretary's reports of the two districts for the school and fiscal year of 1961-62, beginning on July 1, 1961 and ending on June 30, 1962.

The Edison Public School District, No. 57 J, is joint with Lincoln and Pueblo Counties, had 91 students and seven personnel for instruction and administration. The students were divided thus:

New Gem Book By Professor Pearl Published

Colorado College Prof. Richard M. Pearl explains in his new book, "Wonders of Gems," how really valuable gems still can be found today by the person who knows how and where to look.

The handsome book, illustrated with 28 photographs, has just been published by Dodd, Mead and Company of New York. It sells for $3.

Prof. Pearl tells how the caveman first saw and saved pretty stones, explains the backgrounds and beauties of the monthly birthstones, and recounts romantic tales connected with famous gems and their owners.

This is the second book by the Colorado College geologist in the Dodd, Mead popular Wonder Book Series. His earlier work in the series, "Wonders of Rocks and Minerals," was named one of the 100 best scientific books of 1961 by the New York Public Library and the Library Journal.

Prof. Pearl, who joined the faculty at Colorado College here in 1946, is the author of numerous books in the fields of geology and mineralogy. He has received awards from organizations on four continents.

He helped to form the Colorado Mineral Society, the Rocky Mountain Federation of Mineral Societies, and the American Federation of Mineralogical Societies, and has been president of each.

"In order to be considered a gem, a substance must combine three important features," Prof. Pearl explains in his new book. "One is beauty, another is rarity, and the third is durability. These make gems desirable, valuable and long lasting."

UNUSUAL RETIREMENT — Retired Gen. Benjamin Chidlaw sits in an executive chair which was the subject of an unusual retirement ceremony today at North American Air Defense Command headquarters. After more than 12 years of "good and faithful" service under four generals, the chair was retired by Gen. John K. Gerhart, NORAD commander in chief. The chair saw service first with Gen. Chidlaw when he was commander of the USAFs air materiel command. Gen. Chidlaw brought the chair to Colorado Springs in 1951 when he became commander of Air Defense Command. When he retired in 1955 as commander in chief of Continental Air Defense Command, Gen. Chidlaw bequeathed the chair to his successor, Gen. Earle E. Partridge, now retired, who later became the first commander in chief of NORAD when it was formed in 1957. The chair then served Gen. (retired) Laurence S. Kuter and lastly Gen. Gerhart. After its "honorable" retirement from military service, the chair was presented to Gen. Chidlaw as a memento of his many years in the service of his country. Looking on left to right are: Gen. Denver Reserve Unit Is Now At Ft. Carson

Its missions are varied and so are its areas of operation. But all the work of the 244th Engineer Battalion (Construction), a Reserve unit with headquarters at Denver here at Ft. Carson for its two weeks of summer training, has common ground.

For one thing, the projects provide the unit with excellent training. Active duty gives the engineers a chance to practice what they have been training for thru the year during their weekly meetings.

But perhaps more important, the projects are beneficial to Ft. Carson. There is work to be done, and the men handling these tasks are highly skilled professionals.

Almost 75 per cent of the 362 men have been to college. Many are attending at the present time. Many of the Reservists hold full time jobs with engineering firms.

Work projects are only part of the schedule. Classroom and normal day-to-day training such as physical training is not forgotten, marksmanship is also stressed. The men will qualify with both 30 and 50 caliber machineguns.

During the past week, the engineers have lived in garrison. Next week, the battalion moves to Nakamura bivouac area for field training.

This is the fourth consecutive year that Lt. Col. Emmett L. Lane's troops have taken summer training at Carson. It is also about the only time during the year that the entire battalion gets together, for its units are widely separated.

Headquarters and Company D are located in Denver. Company A is in Boulder, while Company B makes its home at Fort Collins, except for one construction platoon located at Sterling.

Company C is at Cheyenne, Wyo., with one of its construction platoons at Scottsbluffs, Neb.

Patrol Warns Drivers to Shun Hitchhikers

"Stay clear of hitchhikers."

This warning from State Patrol headquarters.

"There are still some drivers who feel guilty when they turn down a 'thumb bum' on the highway," says Chief Carrel, "yet there is no reason to feel any obligation toward these moochers. You wouldn't open your home to a stranger; why permit one to enter your car?

"Strict enforcement of the state law which probhibits soliciting rides from the highway has given Colorado the reputation of being one of the toughest states for hitchhikers," the patrol chief stated, "but there are still some who attempt to evade the law by making their pitch from roadside service stations and cafes."

Carrel pointed out that there have been no hitchhike murders in Colorado for some time, but warned soft-hearted motorists who find it difficult to say "no" that hitchhike murders have occurred in the past.

"When you permit a stranger to enter your car," Carrel said, "you have nothing to gain, and everything to lose. Don't gamble with your life by picking up hitchhikers."

League Says Annex Law Veto Blow to Program

The Colorado League of Municipalities has termed the vetoed annexation bill as the "heart" of its legislative program and said its failure wiped out what could have been a most successful year.

In the June issue of the League's magazine, "Colorado Municipalities," a story summarizing the League's legislative successes declared that because of the vetoed bill, "What could have been reported as a year of significant municipal progress. . . . must now be summarized as a year of moderate gains only."

The bill, S. B. 257, would have given municipalities the power to annex adjacent areas without benefit of residents' consent under certain conditions.

It was sneaked thru the closing moments of the general assembly after two previous bills had been defeated in the Senate.

Lee Dorr of Ivywild, a leader in the fight against the proposed bill, said that the opposition's principal objection was to the fact that residents were denied the right to vote on annexation.

"It was the big objection to this bill and to the one proposed last year," Dorr said. "They kept the bill hidden and when they brought it out they pushed it thru."

Dorr said he and other opponents have tried to compromise with the League offering their support if the right to vote is included in the measure, but so far their efforts have failed.

"They simply refuse to include in the bill the right to vote for people who might be affected," Dorr said.

The League, in the magazine article, said the problem of annexation was "the state's most critical urban growth need."

"Most significantly," the article said, "the legislature recognized the critical nature of the urban growth problem by passing S.B. 257, the League's proposal to modernize the annexation law. Unfortunately for the citizens of our towns and cities, progress in annexation revision was thwarted by gubernatorial action for the second time in two years."

Gov. Love vetoed the bill on May 6 after a storm of opposition was raised by residents of areas which might be affected by the bill.

Opposition locally was led by residents of unincorporated areas and the county commissioners who descended on the governor's office either in person or by virtue of hundreds of letters and telegrams.

"The heart of the League's legislative program was lost," when the governor vetoed the bill, the article said.

Local Residents To Be Contacted By Survey Workers

Local residents will help determine national trends in employment and unemployment when they answer questions in the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey during the week of June 17, it was announced today by Director Francis H. Wilmer of the Census Bureau regional office at Denver.

Earlier surveys indicated a monthly average of nearly 67 million Americans employed and 4.5 million looking for work during the first four months of 1963.

The facts collected locally will be sent to Washington for processing in the Census Bureau's electronic computers, and national estimates of the June employment situation will be released early in July by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U. S. Department of Labor.

Families interviewed in the survey here and in the 356 other sample areas in the country are chosen to provide representation in the sample for all types of areas and all major groups of the Nation's population. They are selected by address rather than by name, and the information they contribute to the survey remains confidential in the Census Bureau's records. Only statistical totals are published.

Girl Scout Summer Sessions Filling Rapidly

Miss Janet Canty, director of Sky High Ranch, the Girl Scout established camp, has announced that the summer sessions are filling rapidly. The one-week sessions are already closed, she stated, but there are still a few vacancies in the two week sessions.

Miss Canty urged that campers register as soon as possible for the session of their choice. The first session opens June 24 and Miss Canty suggests that campers or parents who are interested should contact the Girl Scout Service Center, 518 N. Nevada Ave., without delay.

The established camp program this summer will be enriched by the adition of many program possibilities. These include a kiln to be used to process native red and gray clay, sixteen-foot teepees for the primitive units whose theme will center on Indian lore, fishing in the small lake created by a newly erected dam and horseback riding using the mounts provided by Elkhorn Stables in Green Mountain Falls.

The Girl Scouts, which are an agency of the United Fund, believe that camping is an integral part of the total program, and are hopeful that all 5,000 girls in the council may have an opportunity to participate in some way.

Anyone who is interested in insuring that a girl may go to camp by providing a campership is urged to call Mrs. J. T. Meserow, executive director.

State Jaycee Group Named Outstanding

The Colorado Junior Chamber of Commerce has been named the outstanding Jaycee state in the nation and will lead the parade of states at the annual Jaycee National convention to be held later this month in Louisville, Ky.

Announcement of the honor was made by Gov. John A. Love and Eric W. Schmidt, president of the state Jaycees.

The honor marks the first time in the 30-year history of the state organization that Colorado has placed in the top 10 in the parade of states competition.

Colorado earned the number one ranking by excelling in the area of Community Development, the top external program for the U.S. Jaycees. Every chapter in the state participated in a project to better its community.

The state also excelled in membership increase jumping from 2,040 to 3,240 members during the past year. At the same time, 17 new chapters brought the state total from 41 to 58.

Patrol Warns Drivers to Shun Hitchhikers

This warning from State Patrol headquarters.

"There are still some drivers who feel guilty when they turn down a 'thumb bum' on the highway," says Chief Carrel, "yet there is no reason to feel any obligation toward these moochers. You wouldn't open your home to a stranger; why permit one to enter your car?

"Strict enforcement of the state law which prohibits soliciting rides from the highway has given Colorado the reputation of being one of the toughest states for hitchhikers," the patrol chief stated, "but there are still some who attempt to evade the law by making their pitch from roadside service stations and cafes."

Carrel pointed out that there have been no hitchhike murders in Colorado for some time, but warned soft-hearted motorists who find it difficult to say "no" that hitchhike murders have occurred in the past.

"When you permit a stranger to enter your car," Carrel said, "you have nothing to gain, and everything to lose. Don't gamble with your life by picking up hitchhikers."

JC WAGON BACK ON INFO TRAIL —.. The Colorado Springs Jaycee Information wagon is back on the trail for tourists after being absent for about two years. League Says Annex Law Veto Blow to Program

The Colorado League of Municipalities has termed the vetoed annexation bill as the "heart" of its legislative program and said its failure wiped out what could have been a most successful year.

In the June issue of the League's magazine, "Colorado Municipalities," a story summarizing the League's legislative successes declared that because of the vetoed bill, "What could have been reported as a year of significant municipal progress. . . . must now be summarized as a year of moderate gains only."

The bill, S. B. 257, would have given municipalities the power to annex adjacent areas without benefit of residents' consent under certain conditions.

It was sneaked thru the closing moments of the general assembly after two previous bills had been defeated in the Senate.

Lee Dorr of Ivywild, a leader in the fight against the proposed bill, said that the opposition's principal objection was to the fact that residents were denied the right to vote on annexation.

"It was the big objection to this bill and to the one proposed last year," Dorr said. "They kept the bill hidden and when they brought it out they pushed it thru."

Dorr said he and other opponents have tried to compromise with the League offering their support if the right to vote is included in the measure, but so far their efforts have failed.

"They simply refuse to include in the bill the right to vote for people who might be affected," Dorr said.

The League, in the magazine article, said the problem of annexation was "the state's most critical urban growth need."

"Most significantly," the article said, "the legislature recognized the critical nature of the urban growth problem by passing S.B. 257, the League's proposal to modernize the annexation law. Unfortunately for the citizens of our towns and cities, progress in annexation revision was thwarted by gubernatorial action for the second time in two years."

Gov. Love vetoed the bill on May 6 after a storm of opposition was raised by residents of areas which might be affected by the bill.

Opposition locally was led by residents of unincorporated areas and the county commissioners who descended on the governor's office either in person or by virtue of hundreds of letters and telegrams.

"The heart of the League's legislative program was lost," when the governor vetoed the bill, the article said.

Dodgers, White Sox Rule Majors

Chicago Takes Top Spot As Radatz Stops Birds

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

They call Dick Radatz "The Monster." And with good reason, the way the burly Boston strongboy has been terrorizing the American League countryside.

Radatz' latest conquest came at Baltimore Sunday in a Red Sox victory in 14 innings that shouldered the Orioles out of first place. The 6-foot-6, 245-pound fastballer again showed why he is rated as one of the best relievers in baseball by muscling his way through six scoreless innings, striking out 10 Orioles in the process.

Radatz' stout effort was backed by the Chuck Schilling-Russ Nixon hitting combination that produced the tying run in the ninth and the winning run in the 14th.

With Baltimore losing, the Chicago White Sox jumped into the lead by one-half game with a 4-3 squeaker over Kansas City. Ron Hansen doubled home the deciding run in the ninth and starter-turned reliever Juan Pizarro registered a fine pitching performance for the White Sox.

Also in the AL — four home runs powered the New York Yankees over Detroit 6-2, ending a three-game losing string for the Bombers; Ken McBride, on a day of personal tragedy, pitched the Los Angeles Angels to a 4-2 victory over Minnsota; and Cleveland hammered out 16 hits in whipping Washington, 7-3.

Radatz, who established himself as a relief star in his rookie season last year, improved his record to 4-1 in the cliffhanger at Baltimore. The 25-year-old right-hander has worked in 19 games, finished 17 and is unscored upon in his last 12 appearances covering 22 innings.

In his six innings against the Orioles, he yielded two singles—one an infield dribbled — and an intentional walk. In addition to the 10 Baltimore strikeouts, there were five foul pop outs.

Baltimore took a 2-1 lead in the first against Earl Wilson and it wasn't until the ninth that the Red Sox caught up, when Nixon doubled and came in on Schilling's two-out single. Boston finally settled it in the 14th off Stu Miller when Nixon singled, Radatz sacrificed and Schilling again hit a two-out single.

Pizarro, one of the White Sox' starting aces, made an emergency relief appearance at Kansas City with two on and none out in the eighth. An infield hit and a double play enabled the A's to tie the score at 3-3, but Pizarro held them the rest of the way, striking out four.

Meanwhile, Hansen sent home the winner in the top of the ninth with his double, following Pete Ward's single, a sacrifice and a ground out. Pizarro now is 6-2 and the loser, Bill Fischer, is 7-2.

Harry Bright, Tom Tresh, Clete Boyer and Hector Lopez all homered for the Yankees and southpaw Whitey Ford pitched an eight-hitter in winning his eighth against three losses.

The victory was only the second in the last eight games for New York and only the second in eight meetings this year with the Tigers.

McBride, whose brother was killed in an automobile accident only hours before game time, allowed seven hits before being lifted with two on and one out in the ninth against the Twins. Reliver Mel Nelson stopped the last-ditch threat. The Angels overcame a two-run deficit in the fourth with three runs against Jim Perry, the clincher crossing on Ed Sadlowski's single.

Vic Davalillo, Woodie Held and Fred Whitfield had three hits each as the Indians completed a three-game sweep at Washington. Gary Bell, 3-4, won it with six relief innings and the loss went to Senator starter Tom Cheney, 5-7.

Top Seeds In Men's Net Finals

But the highlight of Sunday's matches was between two gals—Kathleen Dunlevy and Mrs. Dorothy Bradley. The 17-year old Miss Dunlevy won the women's singles crown when she rallied after losing the first set, 5-7, to win the last two, 6-2, 6-3.

Bennett, a Colorado Springs attorney, fought off the tourney's top challenger, Larry Owens, to defeat the Air Force netter, 8-6, 10-8, in the most evenly played match in the men's singles competition. It was the day's longest match, requiring two hours of steady playing. Altho Owens encounter volley difficulties, he battled the number two seeded player in the tournament down to the wire.

Ellwanger qualified for the finals, stated this Saturday, when he downed Cy Dyer, 6-2, 6-3, in the semi-final round. The resident of Denver will clash with Bennett this Saturday for the men's single championship. Ellwanger has also qualified in the senior division by defeating Paul Liston, 6-1, 6-1.

Ron Biddle and Bennett will meet this Tuesday to decide who plays Ellwanger this Saturday for the senior division title. Biddle won the quarter-final match last Saturday over Mike Carrithers, 6-0, 6-1.

In the men's doubles competition, the Hatton brothers, Tom and Jim, gave their older counterparts Dobson West and Bill Ellwanger a run for their money before losing, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4. Tom is a junior at Colorado State University and is a member of the tennis team there while 17-year old Jim is a student at Cheyenne Mountain High School. The youngsters were stiff competition for their older opponents but experience won the match for Ellwanger and West.

Action was to continue today with several boys and girls divisions beginning first round play. All matches are being played on the Monument Valley Park courts, and tournament officials were leaving some of the brackets unfinished until this afternoon with the chance of last-minute entries.

National Open Qualifying Set Today Thruout Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dow Finsterwald, Jack Fleck and Deane Beman, all former national champions, were among those required to qualify over 36 holes of medal play today as the final stage of eliminations began to pick a 150-man field for the U.S. Open Golf Championship.

Thirty berths in the championship proper, scheduled June 20-22 at The Country Club, Brookline, Mass., were at stake at six locations.

Finsterwald, former PGA champ, was among 31 pros and amateurs seeking seven berths in the Cincinnati sectional. Fleck, former Open king, headed the field of 42 going after nine berths at Chicago, and Beman, former U.S. and British Amateur titlist, was among 31 trying for six berths at Washington, D.C. Elsewhere, there were two spots available at Denver, four at Kansas C and two at Portland, Ore.

Ninety-nine places are to be filled in the Tuesday eliminations, bringing to 129 the number of survivors from an original non-exempt list of 2,403. Of the entry list of 2,424, defending champion Jack Nicklaus and 20 others received total exemptions from the two stages of qualifying.

DENVER (AP)—This was qualifying day for 11 professionals and 2 amateurs seeking two sectional berths in the U.S. Open Golf Tournament.

Buzz Garvin and Art Severson, both of Colorado Springs.

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—After three fights and 40 rounds, Emile Griffith and Luis Rodriguez are as close as a couple of teen-agers in a movie balcony.

Chances are they'll fight again. Chances are that it will be close, controversial and inconclusive.

"Sure, I'd fight him again," Griffith said after he had regained the world welterweight title for a record third time with a split, 15-round decision over the Cuban exile Saturday night.

"Why not?" Griffith asked. "Everytime we fight we make money. That's what we're here for."

"We gave them a rematch," Rodriguez' manager Angelo Dundee said with obvious bitterness. "I hope they have the courtesy to give us one."

Griffith's managers, Gil Clancy and Howard Albert were non-committal. But Henry Markson, general manager of Madison Square Garden, seemed less than enthusiastic.

"These two men are so evenly matched that they have fought three times now and still no one knows for sure which one is really the better fighter," he said. "Who knows that a fourth fight would change the situation?"

Griffith, a 24-year-old native of the Virgin Islands who now lives in New York, won the first fight with Rodriguez, a split, 10-round decision before either was champion. Rodriguez, 25 and a native Cuban now fighting out of Miami, won the welterweight title when he scored a unanimous but loudly disputed decision over Griffith March 2 in Los Angeles.

Saturday, a crowd of 8,061 and a national television audience saw Griffith regain the crown in a split decision. Referee Jimmy Devlin and judge Tony Rossi voted for Griffith, 9-6 and 8-7 in rounds. Judge Joe Armstrong had it 10-5 for Rodriguez.

"I beat him inside," Griffith said later. "He was beginning to feel it in the later rounds. I'm very happy, but I'd feel much better if I'd knocked him out. Then there wouldn't be any doubt about it."

Ringside writers didn't agree. A poll of the writers actively covering the fight had it in favor of Rodriguez 9-4. The Associated Press had Rodriguez in front 8-6-1. A majority of the writers covering the Los Angeles fight, won by Rodriguez, favored Griffith.

"Luis dominated the fight all the way," Dundee said. "He made Griffith do the leading, had him lunging and missing badly. All he didn't do was knock him out."

"I did my best," Luis said. "What else can you say?"

Each fighter went in a 146½ pounds. They were even money at fight time. Rodriguez collected $40,000, Griffith $37,500.

Boros New Threat for Open After Victory in Buick Golf

The solid man from North Carolina breezed around the 7,280-yard Warwick Hills "monster" course in two more sub-par showings Sunday for a 14-under-par total of 274, five strokes ahead of the field.

Boros' performance, in which he led from the start of play Friday after Thursday's rain-out, broke the Buick Open record by eight strokes. All his four rounds were sub-par.

Pocketing $9,000 in top prize money, Boros planned to put in two practice rounds in New York today prior to Tuesday's 36-hole metropolitan sectional qualifications for the open June 20-22 at Brookline, Mass.

With his 66-71-68-69 string, Boros led runner-up Dow Finsterwald by five strokes. Dow shot a 279. George Bayer was third with 280.

With a recent money-winning streak, including two tournament victories and two second places, Boros went into third place in the pros' 1963 cash earnings.

The North Carolinian's comeback after an injury-plagued 1962 season has brought him $43,325 in winnings. Jack Nicklaus leads with $57,615 and Tony Lema is second with $49,006.

Boros' 274 in the Buick broke the tournament record of 282 which Finsterwald and Art Wall Jr. set together in 1959. Finsterwalk, Bayer and George Knudson, fourth with 281, also broke the 1959 record.

West Coast Showdown Coming in Senior Loop

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers prepared today for another showdown with San Francisco after concluding a road trip with a five-game winning streak, a slim hold on the National League lead and a theory that where there's a Wills there's a way.

The Wills leading the way is Maury, the little speedster who has turned slugger since recovering from an injury and led Los Angeles to five straight victories—the latest an 11-8 conquest of the Chicago Cubs Sunday.

Wills missed the first part of the road trip due to a calcium deposit on a toe of his left foot, and the Dodgers proceeded to lose seven of 10 games while falling four lengths off the pace. Then Wills rejoined the club. They haven't lost since.

Wills followed up a four-hit performance Saturday with a 3-for-5 effort against the Cubs Sunday, driving in three key runs with a bases loaded double in the sixth inning. That gave Wills 11 hits in 22 at-bats, a torrid .500 pace, since returning.

The spurt has raised Wills' average from .252 to .290 and revitalized a slumping Los Angeles attack just in time for the start of a two-game series tonight against third-place San Francisco.

The Giants are two games behind following their seventh straight loss, 3-0 at Houston as reliever Hal (Skinny) Brown pitched one-hit ball for the Colts over the final 6 1-3 innings in the first Sunday night game in major league history.

Second-place St. Louis, one-half game back, set the doubleheader pattern for the day by splitting with New York, losing 8-7 before walloping the Mets 10-4. Philadelphia edged Cincinnati 8-7 in 10 innings but the Reds won 3-1 behind John Tsitouris' four-hitter. Pittsburgh's Bob Friend blanked Milwaukee 4-0, then the Braves took the nightcap 5-3.

Despite three homers by the Cubs' Ernie Banks, the Dodgers had the bigger bombers with Wills combining with Tommy Davis. Since Wills has returned, Davis has hit at a .455 clip. He was 4-for-5, including a homer, against the Cubs, raising his average to .329. Larry Sherry, working in relief of Sandy Koufax, was the winner. Dick Ellsworth, 8-4, took the loss.

Brown, 39-year-old right-hander acquired from the New York Yankees, came on with two out in the third when Dick Farrell suffered a leg spasm. Willie Mays led off the fourth with an infield single, then Brown set the Giants down in order the rest of the way. He struck out six and did not allow a walk. Run-producing singles by Carl Warwick and John Bateman accounted for the first two Houston runs off Jack Sanford, 7-5, and Howie Goss' double drove in the other.

The Mets benefited from Cardinal errors by Bill White and Stan Musial, collecting four runs on the two muffs to take a large step to the opening game victory. In the nightcap, the Cards piled up nine runs in the seventh and eighth innings — four coming on an inside-the-park grand slam homer by Tim McCarver. White also homered in support of Ray Sadecki, 3-4.

Tsitouris got all the support he needed in the Reds' nightcap triumph on homers by Vada Pinson and Pete Rose who accounted for another run with a sacrifice fly. The Reds led the opener 7-2 behind Bob Purkey going into the ninth but homers by Don Demeter, Jim Lemon and John Callison—his second of the game—tied the score. The Phillies than pushed the winner across in the 10th on Bobby Wine's infield single.

Friend, 8-4, won the opener for the Pirates with home run support from Ted Savage and Donn Clendenon and a two-run double by Roberto Clemente. Warren Spahn, 8-3, got credit for the Braves' nightcap triumph with Bob Shaw's relief help. Mack Jones' double was the big blow of a decisive two-run eight inning helped along by three Pirate errors.

Phil Johnson Hurls No-No In Legion

Four doubleheaders initiated the 1963 American Legion "B" Division, Sunday. The West Side and Ent AFB teams were the only squads to clinch double victories.

Behind the strong arm of Phil Johnson, the Ent nine copped the first game over Rush, 10-0, as the Ent chucker threw a no-hitter. Barrie Riddoch, who pitched for Cheyenne Mountain this year to the Indians' sixth consecutive Pikes Peak League crown, was credited with the second triumph for the Ent team as they won again, 10-0.

The West Side club belted out a pair of wins over Security on the latter team's home field. Danny Gieck, formerly of Harrison High School, was the winning pitcher for the West Side crew in the opening encounter, 6-2. Rick Tofoya of Palmer chucked the West Side nine to their second triumph of the day, 7-6. Both games went nine innings.

Wayne Mitcehll, who was hailed the top pitcher in the PPL this season, won his duel over Wasson's Bob Kochis to record a 4-2 triumph over Hasty House in a seven-inning contest at the Air Academy High field. Kochis was a member of the Wasson pitching staff that advanced to the State Class AAA finals.

But Bill Brandt rallied for the Hasty House crew in the second game to pitch his team over the Academy High squad, 9-8. Mitchell took the loss for the second tilt.

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

They call Dick Radatz "The Monster." And with good reason, the way the burly Boston strongboy has been terrorizing the American League countryside.

Radatz' latest conquest came at Baltimore Sunday in a Red Sox victory in 14 innings that shouldered the Orioles out of first place. The 6-foot-6, 245-pound fastballer again showed why he is rated as one of the best relievers in baseball by muscling his way through six scoreless innings, striking out 10 Orioles in the process.

Radatz' stout effort was backed by the Chuck Schilling-Russ Nixon hitting combination that produced the tying run in the ninth and the winning run in the 14th.

With Baltimore losing, the Chicago White Sox jumped into the lead by one-half game with a 4-3 squeaker over Kansas City. Ron Hansen doubled home the deciding run in the ninth and starter-turned reliever Juan Pizarro registered a fine pitching performance for the White Sox.

Also in the AL — four home runs powered the New York Yankees over Detroit 6-2, ending a three-game losing string for the Bombers; Ken McBride, on a day of personal tragedy, pitched the Los Angeles Angels to a 4-2 victory over Minnsota; and Cleveland hammered out 16 hits in whipping Washington, 7-3.

Radatz, who established himself as a relief star in his rookie season last year, improved his record to 4-1 in the cliffhanger at Baltimore. The 25-year-old right-hander has worked in 19 games, finished 17 and is unscored upon in his last 12 appearances covering 22 innings.

In his six innings against the Orioles, he yielded two singles—one an infield dribbled — and an intentional walk. In addition to the 10 Baltimore strikeouts, there were five foul pop outs.

Baltimore took a 2-1 lead in the first against Earl Wilson and it wasn't until the ninth that the Red Sox caught up, when Nixon doubled and came in on Schilling's two-out single. Boston finally settled it in the 14th off Stu Miller when Nixon singled, Radatz sacrificed and Schilling again hit a two-out single.

Pizarro, one of the White Sox' starting aces, made an emergency relief appearance at Kansas City with two on and none out in the eighth. An infield hit and a double play enabled the A's to tie the score at 3-3, but Pizarro held them the rest of the way, striking out four.

Meanwhile, Hansen sent home the winner in the top of the ninth with his double, following Pete Ward's single, a sacrifice and a ground out. Pizarro now is 6-2 and the loser, Bill Fischer, is 7-2.

Harry Bright, Tom Tresh, Clete Boyer and Hector Lopez all homered for the Yankees and southpaw Whitey Ford pitched an eight-hitter in winning his eighth against three losses.

The victory was only the second in the last eight games for New York and only the second in eight meetings this year with the Tigers.

McBride, whose brother was killed in an automobile accident only hours before game time, allowed seven hits before being lifted with two on and one out in the ninth against the Twins. Reliver Mel Nelson stopped the last-ditch threat. The Angels overcame a two-run deficit in the fourth with three runs against Jim Perry, the clincher crossing on Ed Sadlowski's single.

Vic Davalillo, Woodie Held and Fred Whitfield had three hits each as the Indians completed a three-game sweep at Washington. Gary Bell, 3-4, won it with six relief innings and the loss went to Senator starter Tom Cheney, 5-7.

Top Seeds In Men's Net Finals

But the highlight of Sunday's matches was between two gals—Kathleen Dunlevy and Mrs. Dorothy Bradley. The 17-year old Miss Dunlevy won the women's singles crown when she rallied after losing the first set, 5-7, to win the last two, 6-2, 6-3.

Bennett, a Colorado Springs attorney, fought off the tourney's top challenger, Larry Owens, to defeat the Air Force netter, 8-6, 10-8, in the most evenly played match in the men's singles competition. It was the day's longest match, requiring two hours of steady playing. Altho Owens encounter volley difficulties, he battled the number two seeded player in the tournament down to the wire.

Ellwanger qualified for the finals, stated this Saturday, when he downed Cy Dyer, 6-2, 6-3, in the semi-final round. The resident of Denver will clash with Bennett this Saturday for the men's single championship. Ellwanger has also qualified in the senior division by defeating Paul Liston, 6-1, 6-1.

Ron Biddle and Bennett will meet this Tuesday to decide who plays Ellwanger this Saturday for the senior division title. Biddle won the quarter-final match last Saturday over Mike Carrithers, 6-0, 6-1.

In the men's doubles competition, the Hatton brothers, Tom and Jim, gave their older counterparts Dobson West and Bill Ellwanger a run for their money before losing, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4. Tom is a junior at Colorado State University and is a member of the tennis team there while 17-year old Jim is a student at Cheyenne Mountain High School. The youngsters were stiff competition for their older opponents but experience won the match for Ellwanger and West.

Action was to continue today with several boys and girls divisions beginning first round play. All matches are being played on the Monument Valley Park courts, and tournament officials were leaving some of the brackets unfinished until this afternoon with the chance of last-minute entries.

Rematch Remains Undecided In Griffith-Rodriguez Duel

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—After three fights and 40 rounds, Emile Griffith and Luis Rodriguez are as close as a couple of teen-agers in a movie balcony.

Chances are they'll fight again. Chances are that it will be close, controversial and inconclusive.

"Sure, I'd fight him again," Griffith said after he had regained the world welterweight title for a record third time with a split, 15-round decision over the Cuban exile Saturday night.

"Why not?" Griffith asked. "Everytime we fight we make money. That's what we're here for."

"We gave them a rematch," Rodriguez' manager Angelo Dundee said with obvious bitterness. "I hope they have the courtesy to give us one."

Griffith's managers, Gil Clancy and Howard Albert were noncommittal. But Henry Markson, general manager of Madison Square Garden, seemed less than enthusiastic.

"These two men are so evenly matched that they have fought three times now and still no one knows for sure which one is really the better fighter," he said. "Who knows that a fourth fight would change the situation?"

Griffith, a 24-year-old native of the Virgin Islands who now lives in New York, won the first fight with Rodriguez, a split, 10-round decision before either was champion. Rodriguez, 25 and a native Cuban now fighting out of Miami, won the welterweight title when he scored a unanimous but loudly disputed decision over Griffith March 2 in Los Angeles.

Saturday, a crowd of 8,061 and a national television audience saw Griffith regain the crown in a split decision. Referee Jimmy Devlin and judge Tony Rossi voted for Griffith, 9-6 and 8-7 in rounds. Judge Joe Armstrong had it 10-5 for Rodriguez.

"I beat him inside," Griffith said later. "He was beginning to feel it in the later rounds. I'm very happy, but I'd feel much better if I'd knocked him out. Then there wouldn't be any doubt about it."

Ringside writers didn't agree. A poll of the writers actively covering the fight had it in favor of Rodriguez 9-4. The Associated Press had Rodriguez in front 8-6-1. A majority of the writers covering the Los Angeles fight, won by Rodriguez, favored Griffith.

"Luis dominated the fight all the way," Dundee said. "He made Griffith do the leading, had him lunging and missing badly. All he didn't do was knock him out."

"I did my best," Luis said. "What else can you say?"

Each fighter went in a 146½ pounds. They were even money at fight time. Rodriguez collected $40,000, Griffith $37,500.

Boros New Threat for Open After Victory in Buick Golf

The solid man from North Carolina breezed around the 7,280-yard Warwick Hills "monster" course in two more sub-par showings Sunday for a 14-under-par total of 274, five strokes ahead of the field.

Boros' performance, in which he led from the start of play Friday after Thursday's rain-out, broke the Buick Open record by eight strokes. All his four rounds were sub-par.

Pocketing $9,000 in top prize money, Boros planned to put in two practice rounds in New York today prior to Tuesday's 36-hole metropolitan sectional qualifications for the open June 20-22 at Brookline, Mass.

With his 66-71-68-69 string, Boros led runner-up Dow Finsterwald by five strokes. Dow shot a 279. George Bayer was third with 280.

With a recent money-winning streak, including two tournament victories and two second places, Boros went into third place in the pros' 1963 cash earnings.

The North Carolinian's comeback after an injury-plagued 1962 season has brought him $43,325 in winnings. Jack Nicklaus leads with $57,615 and Tony Lema is second with $49,006.

Boros' 274 in the Buick broke the tournament record of 282 which Finsterwald and Art Wall Jr. set together in 1959. Finsterwalk, Bayer and George Knudson, fourth with 281, also broke the 1959 record.

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers prepared today for another showdown with San Francisco after concluding a road trip with a five-game winning streak, a slim hold on the National League lead and a theory that where there's a Wills there's a way.

The Wills leading the way is Maury, the little speedster who has turned slugger since recovering from an injury and led Los Angeles to five straight victories—the latest an 11-8 conquest of the Chicago Cubs Sunday.

Wills missed the first part of the road trip due to a calcium deposit on a toe of his left foot, and the Dodgers proceeded to lose seven of 10 games while falling four lengths off the pace. Then Wills rejoined the club. They haven't lost since.

Wills followed up a four-hit performance Saturday with a 3-for-5 effort against the Cubs Sunday, driving in three key runs with a bases loaded double in the sixth inning. That gave Wills 11 hits in 22 at-bats, a torrid .500 pace, since returning.

The spurt has raised Wills' average from .252 to .290 and revitalized a slumping Los Angeles attack just in time for the start of a two-game series tonight against third-place San Francisco.

The Giants are two games behind following their seventh straight loss, 3-0 at Houston as reliever Hal (Skinny) Brown pitched one-hit ball for the Colts over the final 6 1-3 innings in the first Sunday night game in major league history.

Second-place St. Louis, one-half game back, set the doubleheader pattern for the day by splitting with New York, losing 8-7 before walloping the Mets 10-4. Philadelphia edged Cincinnati 8-7 in 10 innings but the Reds won 3-1 behind John Tsitouris' four-hitter. Pittsburgh's Bob Friend blanked Milwaukee 4-0, then the Braves took the nightcap 5-3.

Despite three homers by the Cubs' Ernie Banks, the Dodgers had the bigger bombers with Wills combining with Tommy Davis. Since Wills has returned, Davis has hit at a .455 clip. He was 4-for-5, including a homer, against the Cubs, raising his average to .329. Larry Sherry, working in relief of Sandy Koufax, was the winner. Dick Ellsworth, 8-4, took the loss.

Brown, 39-year-old right-hander acquired from the New York Yankees, came on with two out in the third when Dick Farrell suffered a leg spasm. Willie Mays led off the fourth with an infield single, then Brown set the Giants down in order the rest of the way. He struck out six and did not allow a walk. Run-producing singles by Carl Warwick and John Bateman accounted for the first two Houston runs off Jack Sanford, 7-5, and Howie Goss' double drove in the other.

The Mets benefited from Cardinal errors by Bill White and Stan Musial, collecting four runs on the two muffs to take a large step to the opening game victory. In the nightcap, the Cards piled up nine runs in the seventh and eighth innings — four coming on an inside-the-park grand slam homer by Tim McCarver. White also homered in support of Ray Sadecki, 3-4.

Tsitouris got all the support he needed in the Reds' nightcap triumph on homers by Vada Pinson and Pete Rose who accounted for another run with a sacrifice fly. The Reds led the opener 7-2 behind Bob Purkey going into the ninth but homers by Don Demeter, Jim Lemon and John Callison—his second of the game—tied the score. The Phillies than pushed the winner across in the 10th on Bobby Wine's infield single.

Friend, 8-4, won the opener for the Pirates with home run support from Ted Savage and Donn Clendenon and a two-run double by Roberto Clemente. Warren Spahn, 8-3, got credit for the Braves' nightcap triumph with Bob Shaw's relief help. Mack Jones' double was the big blow of a decisive two-run eight inning helped along by three Pirate errors.

Phil Johnson Hurls No-No In Legion

Four doubleheaders initiated the 1963 American Legion "B" Division, Sunday. The West Side and Ent AFB teams were the only squads to clinch double victories.

Behind the strong arm of Phil Johnson, the Ent nine copped the first game over Rush, 10-0, as the Ent chucker threw a no-hitter. Barrie Riddoch, who pitched for Cheyenne Mountain this year to the Indians' sixth consecutive Pikes Peak League crown, was credited with the second triumph for the Ent team as they won again, 10-0.

In addition to his performance on the mound in the first tilt, Johnson also belted a homer along with teammate Ted Garcia at the Rush diamond.

The West Side club belted out a pair of wins over Security on the latter team's home field. Danny Gieck, formerly of Harrison High School, was the winning pitcher for the West Side crew in the opening encounter, 6-2. Rick Tofoya of Palmer chucked the West Side nine to their second triumph of the day, 7-6. Both games went nine innings.

Wayne Mitcehll, who was hailed the top pitcher in the PPL this season, won his duel over Wasson's Bob Kochis to record a 4-2 triumph over Hasty House in a seven-inning contest at the Air Academy High field. Kochis was a member of the Wasson pitching staff that advanced to the State Class AAA finals.

But Bill Brandt rallied for the Hasty House crew in the second game to pitch his team over the Academy High squad, 9-8. Mitchell took the loss for the second tilt.

Prep Tracksters Show Well

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The first United States Track and Field Federation championship meet demonstrated several things collegiate leaders were hailing today and they all didn't involve the USTFF's efforts to show the Amateur Athletic Union it wasn't needed.

Track coaches, among them Johnny Morriss of University of Houston, the meet director, pointed to the fact that the schoolboys were at last being given a chance to show they could compete with the best.

The meet, held Friday and Saturday, was a one-division affair where the youngsters could run and throw against the top men and not have to wait until they were in college.

Randy Matson, the giant Pampa, Tex., schoolboy, was the shining example. He not only competed, he made it possible for the Federation to start out with a 60-foot shot putter.

Matson, in competition for only the second time with the 16-pound shot, had a throw of 60 feet 6 inches to win over a field of collegians. He also finished second in the discus throw with 169-7½.

Then there was James White, the Dallas schoolboy who ran third in the 220-yard dash around a curve in a time of 21.5.

Morriss forecast that the Federation meet would become even bigger than the NCAA because it is operated as an open meet with the schoolboys, freshmen and track club members eligible to compete. The AAU does this but the schoolboys usually enter the junior division.

The meet saw Warren Brattlof of Rice vault 16 feet 1¼ inches, going over 16 feet for the first time, to put the Federation in the top class along with a 60-foot shot put. It almost had a 4-minute mile as Cal Elmore of Wichita raced to 4:02.2.

The half-mile was outstanding, too, with Bill Cornell of Southern Illinois doing 1:49.3 and Nate Adams of Purdue ran the 100 in 09.4.

Robert Green of Southern Ilinois did the high hurdles in 13.9 while Billy Hardin of Louisiana State did the 440-yard hurdles in 51.3 to give the meet stature.

Morriss said the Federation was talking about having the meet next year in the same location as the NCAA and that they both be held in the East since the Olympic trials were to be in New York.

Islanders Sweep Two From Denver

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oklahoma City may make honest men out of soothsayers yet. So far the 89ers' unimpressive record has embarrassed the pre-season oracle that picked them for top honors in the Pacific Coast League's Southern Division.

But Sunday the Oklahomans showed their power by trouncing the San Diego Padres 9-4 with 16 hits in the first game of a doubleheader and 6-3 with a four-home run attack in the second.

In other games, Hawaii swept a doubleheader from Denver 7-2 and 9-8, Portland and Seattle traded three-hit shutouts with the Rainiers taking the first 1-0 and the Beavers the second 2-0 and Spokane blanked Tacoma 1-0 in a single game. Bad weather postponed Dallas-Fort Worth's contest at Salt Lake City.

Ben Johnson got the victory for the 89ers in the opener with strong support from Dave Roberts and Carrol Hardy who cracked three hits apiece. Jim Saul's grandslam homer for the losers in the seventh did little more than upset Johnson's shutout. George Williams homered twice for Oklahome in the nightcap. John Weekly and winning pitcher Jim Golden belted the other homers.

Hawaii won the opener on a four-run rally in the first inning, but had to come from behind with a three-run eighth inning to take the second from the Bears.

Hal Kolstad pitched the three-hitter for Seattle in the opener and the Rainiers put three singles together for the game's only run in the sixth inning. Norm Bass proved he could be as stingy as Kolstad by holding Seattle to three hits in the nightcap. Portland got an unearned run in the second inning and another on Chet Boak's homer in the sixth.

Tacoma outhit Spokane, nine singles to four, but couldn't put them into a useful combination. Spokane got its run on two walks, a fly and a sacrifice in the third inning.

Softball Teams Split Twin Bill In Exhibition

The Englewood Merchants and Navajo Hogans (formerly the Westside Merchants of the Colorado Springs softball league) split down the middle in an exhibition softball series Sunday evening at Memorial Park.

Altho striking out 14 batters in the seven-inning game, Jim Swilley was charged with the loss in the opener with Englewood taking a 1-0 lead in the fourth and then sealing the 4-0 victory in the sixth with three more runs. Marion Davies hurled a two-hitter for the visitors.

The Hogans came right back in the nightcap, however, with Bob Gieck pitching a six-hitter. The big blows of the game were in the fourth when Dave Guiterrez homered and was followed by Dick Classen's double for the winners. Six Englewood errors were prime factors in the game, with the Hogans scoring four times in the 6-2 win as a result of the bobbles.

OMAHA (AP) — The nation's eight top college baseball teams opened fire today in the scramble for the College World Series championship.

The double elimination play will continue through Saturday, if necessary. Otherwise the tourney ends Friday night. This is the 14th year straight the collegians have played their annual showdown at Omaha.

Seventh-ranked Arizona meets eight-rated Penn State in the opening game at noon, EST. Bob Fenton, Penn State southpaw who has pitched two no-hitters this season, faces Arizona's Al Beccaccio. Penn State is 13-4 this year, Arizona 35-15.

In the second game at 3 p.m., Florida State (25-11) meets second-ranked Western Michigan (24-4) which boasts the most fearsome hitting in the series with a team average of .295.

Third-ranked Texas (19-5) faces fifth-ranked Southern California (32-15) in the third contest at 7 p.m. The game will match right-handers — the Longhorn's Bob Myer (10-2) and the Trojan's Walt Peterson (11-3).

Missouri, (23-6) intent on living up to its ranking as No. 1 in the nation, meets Holy Cross (12-7), ranked No. 4, in the final first-day game at 9:15 p.m.

Hailstorm Delays Tourney

LONGMONT (AP)—A 45-minute rain and hail storm only delayed Tom Reed's victory Sunday in the Longmont Invitational Golf Tournament.

Earlier, he whipped defending champion Kent Nelson of Longmont 3 and 2 and Lew Fowler of Boulder 1 up in 10 holes.

Medal honors went to Hal Ottaway of Longmont, who carded a 66 over the par-68 Sunset Course.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Broadcasting Company has announced it plans to televise live by Telstar the Irish Sweepstakes Derby at the Curragh June 29. It would mark the first time a sports event was telecast live from Europe.

Who's been drinking the Antique Bourbon?

Now it seems that the People are rallying to our cause. Can it be we've started a trend?

If we have, it's a backward trend. Because we set out to recapture in Antique Bourbon the character of the legendary Kentucky bourbons of the early 1900's. Robust. Mellow. Remarkably smooth, by present-day standards.

We use old-fangled methods. Slow and gentle. And we put far more corn in our sour mash than is required of bourbons nowadays.

Our older admirers believe that we've succeeded: for them, Antique Bourbon recalls the great pre-Prohibition bourbons.

But even if you don't have that long a memory we think you'll find Antique Bourbon just plain satisfying.

Give it a try. (Or have you been at it already?)

Prep Tracksters Show Well

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The first United States Track and Field Federation championship meet demonstrated several things collegiate leaders were hailing today and they all didn't involve the USTFF's efforts to show the Amateur Athletic Union it wasn't needed.

Track coaches, among them Johnny Morriss of University of Houston, the meet director, pointed to the fact that the schoolboys were at last being given a chance to show they could compete with the best.

The meet, held Friday and Saturday, was a one-division affair where the youngsters could run and throw against the top men and not have to wait until they were in college.

Randy Matson, the giant Pampa, Tex., schoolboy, was the shining example. He not only competed, he made it possible for the Federation to start out with a 60-foot shot putter.

Matson, in competition for only the second time with the 16-pound shot, had a throw of 60 feet 6 inches to win over a field of collegians. He also finished second in the discus throw with 169-7½.

Then there was James White, the Dallas schoolboy who ran third in the 220-yard dash around a curve in a time of 21.5.

Morriss' son, Johnny Jr., who is only a junior in high school, was fourth in the high jump with 6 feet 4 inches.

Morriss forecast that the Federation meet would become even bigger than the NCAA because it is operated as an open meet with the schoolboys, freshmen and track club members eligible to compete. The AAU does this but the schoolboys usually enter the junior division.

The meet saw Warren Brattlof of Rice vault 16 feet 1¼ inches, going over 16 feet for the first time, to put the Federation in the top class along with a 60-foot shot put. It almost had a 4-minute mile as Cal Elmore of Wichita raced to 4:02.2.

The half-mile was outstanding, too, with Bill Cornell of Southern Illinois doing 1:49.3 and Nate Adams of Purdue ran the 100 in 09.4.

Robert Green of Southern Ilinois did the high hurdles in 13.9 while Billy Hardin of Louisiana State did the 440-yard hurdles in 51.3 to give the meet stature.

Morriss said the Federation was talking about having the meet next year in the same location as the NCAA and that they both be held in the East since the Olympic trials were to be in New York.

Islanders Sweep Two From Denver

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oklahoma City may make honest men out of soothsayers yet. So far the 89ers' unimpressive record has embarrassed the pre-season oracle that picked them for top honors in the Pacific Coast League's Southern Division.

But Sunday the Oklahomans showed their power by trouncing the San Diego Padres 9-4 with 16 hits in the first game of a doubleheader and 6-3 with a four-home run attack in the second.

In other games, Hawaii swept a doubleheader from Denver 7-2 and 9-8, Portland and Seattle traded three-hit shutouts with the Rainiers taking the first 1-0 and the Beavers the second 2-0 and Spokane blanked Tacoma 1-0 in a single game. Bad weather postponed Dallas-Fort Worth's contest at Salt Lake City.

Ben Johnson got the victory for the 89ers in the opener with strong support from Dave Roberts and Carrol Hardy who cracked three hits apiece. Jim Saul's grandslam homer for the losers in the seventh did little more than upset Johnson's shutout. George Williams homered twice for Oklahome in the nightcap. John Weekly and winning pitcher Jim Golden belted the other homers.

Hawaii won the opener on a four-run rally in the first inning, but had to come from behind with a three-run eighth inning to take the second from the Bears.

Hal Kolstad pitched the three-hitter for Seattle in the opener and the Rainiers put three singles together for the game's only run in the sixth inning. Norm Bass proved he could be as stingy as Kolstad by holding Seattle to three hits in the nightcap. Portland got an unearned run in the second inning and another on Chet Boak's homer in the sixth.

Tacoma outhit Spokane, nine singles to four, but couldn't put them into a useful combination. Spokane got its run on two walks, a fly and a sacrifice in the third inning.

Softball Teams Split Twin Bill In Exhibition

The Englewood Merchants and Navajo Hogans (formerly the Westside Merchants of the Colorado Springs softball league) split down the middle in an exhibition softball series Sunday evening at Memorial Park.

Altho striking out 14 batters in the seven-inning game, Jim Swilley was charged with the loss in the opener with Englewood taking a 1-0 lead in the fourth and then sealing the 4-0 victory in the sixth with three more runs. Marion Davies hurled a two-hitter for the visitors.

The Hogans came right back in the nightcap, however, with Bob Gieck pitching a six-hitter. The big blows of the game were in the fourth when Dave Guiterrez homered and was followed by Dick Classen's double for the winners. Six Englewood errors were prime factors in the game, with the Hogans scoring four times in the 6-2 win as a result of the bobbles.

Wildcats, Lions Start College World Series

OMAHA (AP) — The nation's eight top college baseball teams opened fire today in the scramble for the College World Series championship.

The double elimination play will continue through Saturday, if necessary. Otherwise the tourney ends Friday night. This is the 14th year straight the collegians have played their annual showdown at Omaha.

Seventh-ranked Arizona meets eight-rated Penn State in the opening game at noon, EST. Bob Fenton, Penn State southpaw who has pitched two no-hitters this season, faces Arizona's Al Beccaccio. Penn State is 13-4 this year, Arizona 35-15.

In the second game at 3 p.m., Florida State (25-11) meets second-ranked Western Michigan (24-4) which boasts the most fearsome hitting in the series with a team average of .295.

Third-ranked Texas (19-5) faces fifth-ranked Southern California (32-15) in the third contest at 7 p.m. The game will match right-handers — the Longhorn's Bob Myer (10-2) and the Trojan's Walt Peterson (11-3).

Missouri, (23-6) intent on living up to its ranking as No. 1 in the nation, meets Holy Cross (12-7), ranked No. 4, in the final first-day game at 9:15 p.m.

Hailstorm Delays Tourney

LONGMONT (AP)—A 45-minute rain and hail storm only delayed Tom Reed's victory Sunday in the Longmont Invitational Golf Tournament.

Earlier, he whipped defending champion Kent Nelson of Longmont 3 and 2 and Lew Fowler of Boulder 1 up in 10 holes.

Medal honors went to Hal Ottaway of Longmont, who carded a 66 over the par-68 Sunset Course.

Direct Arms Aid To Congo Is Planned

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States plans direct arms aid in the Congo to get a military foothold in the heart of Africa, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia says.

Mobutu is visiting countries which have shown interest in helping the Congo reequip its armed forces, but no aid agreements have been reported.

North Korea Refuses To Tell About Pilots

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP)—For the fourth time, Communist North Korea today refused to divulge the fate of two U.N. command helicopter pilots captured May 17.

"You can inform the relatives and friends" of the two U.S. Army captains "that they received a proper blow from our defensive forces for their hostile act," North Korean Secretary Col. Han Jukyong told the mixed Military Armistice Commission (MAC).

The Communists in three previous MAC meetings have refused to give any hint of whether the two pilots were still alive and have ignored U.N. demands for their return.

A helicopter carrying Capt. Ben Stutts, 30, of Florence, Ala., and Capt. Charleton W. Voltz, 26, of Frankfort, Mich., was forced down in North Korea. The U.N. command said the pilots made a navigational error.

DEAR ABBY: A nurse wrote that a married woman visited a doctor at the hospital regularly and she implied that something shady was going on. I am that woman. For three years I've been seeing the doctor about chronic headaches caused by the nervous tension of an unhappy home life. My doctor, being the most patient, understanding man in the world, has helped me to face my problems and adjust to them. Last year I was dumbfounded when my doctor confided to me that "his" home life was worse than mine. He trusts me and discusses everything with me. His wife recently took an overdose of sleeping pills and he said if he didn't have me to talk to he would have had a nervous breakdown. He helped me when I needed it and now I can't let him down, no matter what. —ABOVE SUSPICION IN SCARSDALE

DEAR ABBY: About the married woman who made a habit of going to the hospital regularly to see a doctor: I think she is my wife. Her weakness has always been doctors. If there is a good-looking doctor within a hundred miles, she'll find him and keep him busy with one complaint or another. Can you tell me if the letter came from Elmira, New York? —"BILL"

DEAR ABBY: Why can't people mind their own business? I am the woman who goes to the hospital so often. The nurse got it all wrong. I am not seeing a doctor, I'm seeing an engineer. It's not about love, it's about money. We bet the horses together. — NOT GUILTY (BRENTWOOD)

DEAR ABBY: Our entire hospital staff is up in arms about the nurse who wrote the letter reporting the married woman who visits the doctor regularly behind closed doors. We nurses at that hospital think you ought to know that no doctor would even attempt to get away with such carryings-on in his hospital. In the first place, every minute of the doctor's time is scheduled, and even if he wanted to, he wouldn't have the time. The nurse who wrote that letter has been mad about the doctor for years, and he has refused to look at her. "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." —THE BELLES OF ST. MARY'S

DEAR ABBY: I am sure that letter about the married woman visiting the hospital so often to see the doctor was meant for me. I wish you would put this in the paper for that long-nosed nurse to see. Yes, I am seeing a doctor at the hospital frequently, and if you are so curious about whether I am getting a treat instead of a treatment, why don't you ask the doctor? You might be surpised to learn that I am taking a series of shots for a combination of 1 6 allergies. —NOTHING TO HIDE (Baton Rouge, La.)

Music Programs Are Taken to Negro Schools

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly 200 students crammed into the stuffy gymnasium of the Benjamin Wright Raymond School to hear selections from Mozart, Dvorak and Debussy played by a quartet.

They loved it and understood it.

After the concert the students, all between the ages of 9 and 12, besieged the pleased artists with questions and demands for autographs.

The students were all Negroes. The musicians were not.

The concert here was part of an ambitious program sponsored by five white Chicago-area housewives and a grammar school principal who thinks culture may be a vital key to the solution of the nation's race problems.

The women, headed by Helen B. Kolar, 43, selected the Raymond School in 1961 to begin a voluntary pilot program in exposing children to the arts. The program is known as "Urban Gateway" the group as the Institute for Cultural Deevlopment.

The school is situated in the heart of the South Side of Chicago, an area considered the largest Negro urban section in the United States.

All its students are Negro. Thirty per cent come from families receiving public assistance. Eighty per cent live in public housing. Other homes often are slums. The average IQ is 93.

"I started the program," said Mrs. Kolar, an amateur artist, "because I'm convinced that the only way the Negro is going to solve his present dilemma is by pulling himself up by the bootstraps."

"For Negroes to be a part of culture, they must be able to participate in the culture. They must be introduced to art as children," she said.

Feed manufacture now is a $4 billion business which, it is estimated, has reached only about one-third of its potential.

Growing Favorite Son Movement Forecast for GOP

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—A growing favorite son movement appears likely to force aspirants for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination to scramble for convention support in next year's primaries.

Minnesota Republicans are the latest to come up with the idea of withholding their vote from New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and other leading possibilities while they assess developments at the nominating convention.

They are talking of backing former Rep. Walter R. Judd, the 1960 party keynoter, in what national committeeman George Etzell described as more than just a favorite son candidacy. Judd was defeated in last year's election.

The practical effect of a Judd candidacy would be to rope off Minnesota's 26 votes in the early convention balloting and encourage a stalemate from which some nominee other than Rockefeller or Goldwater might emerge. Friends of Michigan's Gov. George Romney think he might benefit by such a circumstance.

Romney may be a favorite son and similar movements are possible in California, Colorado, Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. These states and Minnesota will cast a combined total of 354 votes in a convention where the winning nominee will need a minimum of 655.

While the prospect of such holdouts cuts both ways, Rockefeller's potential convention vote strength in the eight states is regarded as greater than Goldwater's.

Uncertainty over voter reaction to Rockefeller's divorce and remarriage seems to be spurring the favorite son trend.

Not many GOP leaders are willing to accept at this point the assessment of Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., on a taped television program Sunday, that controversy over the governor's marital status is "a temporary factor and he will come back stronger than ever."

The thinking is that both Rockefeller and Goldwater are being pushed into a position where they will have to demonstrate voter appeal in the presidential primaries if they expect to bid strongly for the nomination.

Goldwater, who says he isn't a candidate, has laid down the rule that he won't give consent to the entry of his name in primaries, where that is required.

Rockefeller, expected to be an announced candidate by fall, can be counted upon to enter selected primaries.

Voice of State Department Will Be Changing

By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The voice of the State Department is changing.

Lincoln White, who for years has given newsmen and the public the department's view of foreign affairs, has received a new job: Consul general in Melbourne, Australia.

Taking his place in the spotlight will be Richard I. Phillips, 52, a career officer with a quick grin and—when he is able to—a quick answer to newsmen's questions.

Phillips, who once practiced law in Buenos Aires, Argentina, will succeed the veteran White about June 24. Formal announcement of Phillips' appointment is expected in the next few days.

Phillips, born April 2, 1911, in Artesia, N.M., attended the University of Southern California, getting his bachelor's degree in 1932 and his law degree in 1934. He went to South America and practiced law in Buenos Aires from 1936 to 1941, when he was asked to accept direction of a U.S. government-backed coordination commission for Uruguay. It was something like an Office of War Information to help combat Nazi propaganda.

Later he joined the embassy staff in Montevideo, Uruguay, as information officer, then had tours of duty in Venezuela, Mexico and other overseas posts.

Portugal Is Ready To Talk About Angola

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Portugal is ready to meet representatives of African governments, both here and in Africa "to examine with them a dynamic plan of development in Africa," Foreign Minister Alberto Franco Nogueira told a news conference here.

This was the first public indication that the Salazar government was prepared to meet African leaders who in their recent Addis Ababa conference called for a fight against all colonialism in Africa.

Portuguese officials have up to now rejected as interference in Portugal's internal affairs efforts by other nations to raise questions on the Portuguese administration of Angola, Mozambique, and other areas in Africa.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — During the course of a Senate hearing last week there was a general viewing with alarm about the chaotic situation which would develop from a serious breakdown in the Electoral College system of electing Presidents.

This is not a theoretical danger. It could happen in presidential 1964. Such a breakdown came close to occurring in the 1960 presidential election.

If, for example, Nixon had carried New Jersey and Illinois, two states which Kennedy won by hairline margins, the GOP candidate would have wound up with 206 electoral votes, Kennedy with 260. The election would then have been thrown into the House of Representatives, since 269 electoral votes are required to elect. The magical number would have eluded both Kennedy and Nixon because Sen. Harry F. Byrd had 15 votes.

And to complicate the possibilities, the Constitution provides that each state would have only one vote in the House decision. It is conceivable that a situation might exist under which one party would be in control of Congress but the other party would control more state delegations.

This is obviously a hell of a way to decide an election. The simple solution has long been obvious: a constitutional amendment providing for election of a President by popular vote. This would throw out the cumbersome outmoded Electoral College system which picks the presidential sweepstakes winner on the basis of a state by state electoral vote count.

And yet last week's hearing before Sen. Estes Kefauver's subcommittee on constitutional amendments deserved in a way to be passed over lightly because neither this Congress nor any Congress is going to do anything about this scandalous monstrosity of an election system until there is overwhelming popular demand. And it is admitted that this demand is most unlikely to come until after some future presidential election has been so fouled up that a rush post-crisis repair job is mandatory.

APATHY IS PROBABLY NORMAL

This public apathy at this time is probably normal. After the Nixon-Kennedy 1960 contest, there was almost a national shriek for abolition of the electoral system. But it died down within a month, and both the 87th Congress and the present 88th have found no urgency requiring legislative action.

Some senators and certain political scientists in testimony today expressed grave concern about what may happen unless Congress realizes the seriousness of the problem. In a statement to the Kefauver committee, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating had this to say:

"The truth is that the present machinery is obsolete and there is a grave danger of a complete breakdown in its operation. Unfortuantely, there is such wide disagreement as to what machinery should be developed to replace it that it may require a breakdown before the necessary action is taken."

A PROF CITES FAULTY MECHANICS

And Williams College political science Prof. James MacGregor Burns, biographer of President Kennedy, was equally distrubed "about faulty mechanics of the Electoral College."

This would mean that if the election is close — and the tendency is more and more toward close presidential elections — Kennedy or his GOP rival could have trouble making the 270 electoral votes necessary to elect. And if so, the House, with its outmoded but constitutional one-vote-per-state system, would have to decide.

This, of course, is what the arch segregationists in the South are driving for. Working together along this line are Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett.

Neither wants any part of a third party movement. The reason may not be too obvious, but the fact is that third party presidential candidates in Deep South states are likely to split the Democratic Party's traditional vote and give the surging Southern Republican Party the electoral vote of Alabama at least, and possibly Mississippi and Louisiana.

The fact is — and those pushing for reform are not the only legislators aware of the immediate danger — that the civil rights controversy is now threatening to cause the electoral system issue to explode in the 1964 presidential election.

Three Southern states — Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi—have election laws permitting the choice of unpledged electors in next year's presidential election. Two other states, Florida and Louisiana, are considering similar legislation.

As Kefauver pointed out, if these five states in 1964 choose unpledged electors, 53 electoral votes would be held by electors neither committed to Kennedy for a second term nor his GOP opponent, whoever he may be.

In view of this developing threat to Democratic voting processes in a presidential election, why won't Congress act at long last to get rid of the Electoral College device?

The real answer is rather disgusting, even in the professorial language of Prof. Burns. He says the system is "steeped in politics — it affects the balance of parties, the power of interest groups, the fates of politicians."

What he means is that if the nation elected on a popular vote basis, the big city and state machines with their bosses would be stripped of their power in a national election. New York's 43 electoral votes in 1964 could not be delivered — it would be the national popular vote that counted, not the whole bagful of electoral votes of a key state as at present.

U.S. Approves State Farm Loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sens. Gordon Allott and Peter H. Dominick, Colorado Republicans, said here the U. S. Department of Agriculture had authorized emergency loans under the Farmers Home Administration to eight more Colorado counties.

The offices of the two senators said eligible farmers and ranchers in Chaffee, Fremont, Lake, Park, Delta, Garfield, Mesa, and Montrose counties could get the loans.

FHA loans previously were authorized to eligible farmers in 20 other counties in drought-struck areas of the state.

The senators' offices said no word had yet been received on the request by Gov. John Love for USDA drought disaster designation and emergency federal aid for 15 of the most seriously drought-struck counties in the state.

Capitol Police Reported Not Dressy Enough

WASHINGTON (AP) — The police who patrol the halls of Congress and the men who run its elevators are catching a bit of criticism about their appearance.

Some senators feel they're simply not dressy enough, considering the splendor of their place of work.

The Capitol policemen look pretty much like any other men in blue, with neither plumes nor breastplates. And some say you can't tell the elevator operators from the tourists unless you push the "up" buzzer.

Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., noted at a hearing here he has received complaints from several senators that the police have the worst dress uniforms of any capital in the world.

But William C. Cheatham, as aide to the Senate sergeant at arms, leaped to the defense of the police. He described them as "a fine looking group of men" who must keep their shoes shined, uniforms pressed, hair cut, and stand inspection.

But Cheatham pointed out that distinction has its price: About $22,000 to dress the elvator and doormen so the public and the senators can recognize them.

Recognizing them was not a problem for first-term Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. The problem was their not recognizing him, he said, adding: "They should do a better job of distinguishing senators from tourists and clerks."

Slim Pickings For Congress Are Predicted

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP)—It looks like another week of slim pickings for Congress, which apparently is determined to stay in session again until well after the first frost of fall.

Only one major measure is on the dockets of the Senate and the House, both of which spent a quiet week last week.

It is the controversial area redevelopment bill, which some Republicans claim isn't necessary and has been used to promote the cause of the Democratic Party.

The bill, scheduled for House debate Wednesday, would add $450 million to the $379.5 million authorized program to help business and industry, in areas of high unemployment.

The House has no business today. Tuesday it will consider the annual appropriation bill to finance Congress, and on Thursday it will vote on the annual extension of emergency tax rates imposed during the Korean crisis.

Still waiting in the wings are bills dealing with foreign aid, tax revision, civil rights, mass transportation aids, education, tightening of stock market laws and half a dozen big appropriation measures.

Direct Arms Aid To Congo Is Planned

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States plans direct arms aid in the Congo to get a military foothold in the heart of Africa, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia says.

Mobutu is visiting countries which have shown interest in helping the Congo reequip its armed forces, but no aid agreements have been reported.

North Korea Refuses To Tell About Pilots

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP)—For the fourth time, Communist North Korea today refused to divulge the fate of two U.N. command helicopter pilots captured May 17.

"You can inform the relatives and friends" of the two U.S. Army captains "that they received a proper blow from our defensive forces for their hostile act," North Korean Secretary Col. Han Ju-kyong told the mixed Military Armistice Commission (MAC).

The Communists in three previous MAC meetings have refused to give any hint of whether the two pilots were still alive and have ignored U.N. demands for their return.

A helicopter carrying Capt. Ben Stutts, 30, of Florence, Ala., and Capt. Charleton W. Voltz, 28, of Frankfort, Mich., was forced down in North Korea. The U.N. command said the pilots made a navigational error.

The Communists have called the flight aggression.

He went to South America and practiced law in Buenos Aires from 1936 to 1941, when he was asked to accept direction of a U.S. government-backed coordination commission for Uruguay. It was something like an Office of War Information to help combat Nazi propaganda.

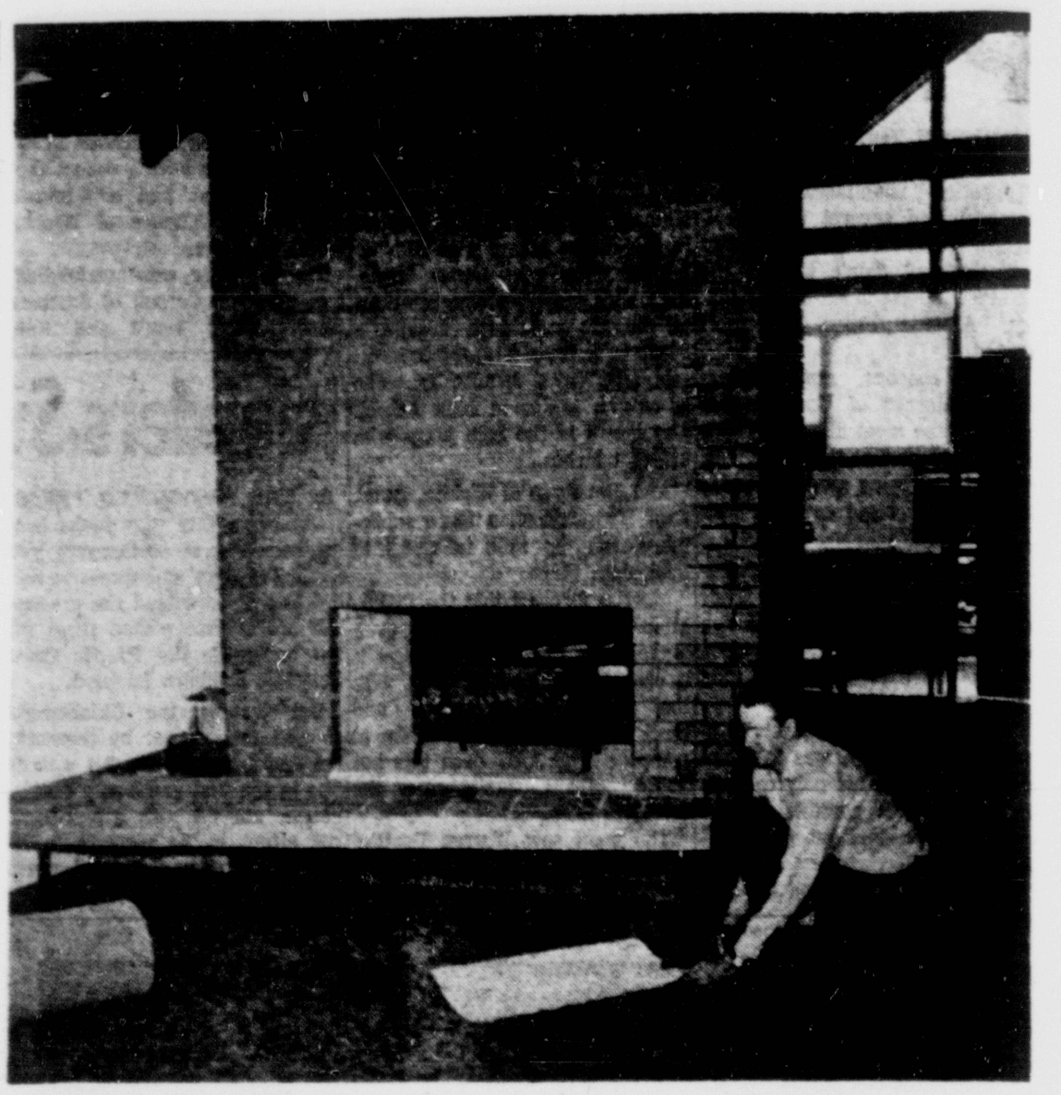
Later he joined the embassy staff in Montevideo, Uruguay, as information officer, then had tours of duty in Venezuela, Mexico and other overseas posts.

Portugal Is Ready To Talk About Angola

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Portugal is ready to meet representatives of African governments, both here and in Africa "to examine with them a dynamic plan of development in Africa." Foreign Minister Alberto Franco Nogueira told a news conference here.

This was the first public indication that the Salazar government was prepared to meet African leaders who in their recent Addis Ababa conference called for a fight against all colonialism in Africa.

Portuguese officials have up to now rejected as interference in Portugal's internal affairs efforts by other nations to raise questions on the Portuguese administration of Angola, Mozambique, and other areas in Africa.



FINISHING TOUCHES — Finishing carpeting to a living room setting is one of the last-minute preparations now going on in each of 15 new model homes that will be open to the public in the 1963 Parade of Homes beginning next Saturday and continuing nine days thru Sunday, June 23. S. L. Pierce is making the installation here. The parade is sponsored annually by the Home Builders of Metropolitan Colorado Springs. CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — During the course of a Senate hearing last week there was a general viewing with alarm about the chaotic sitaution which would develop from a serious breakdown in the Electoral College system of electing Presidents.

This is not a theoretical danger. It could happen in presidential 1964. Such a breakdown came close to occurring in the 1960 presidential election.

If, for example, Nixon had carried New Jersey and Illinois, two states which Kennedy won by hairline margins, the GOP candidate would have wound up with 206 electoral votes, Kennedy with 260. The election would then have been thrown into the House of Representatives, since 269 electoral votes are required to elect. The magical number would have eluded both Kennedy and Nixon because Sen. Harry F. Byrd had 15 votes.

And to complicate the possibilities, the Constitution provides that each state would have only one vote in the House decision. It is conceivable that a situation might exist under which one party would be in control of Congress but the other party would control more state delegations.

This is obviously a hell of a way to decide an election. The simple solution has long been obvious: a constitutional amendment providing for election of a President by popular vote. This would throw out the cumbersome outmoded Electoral College system which picks the presidential sweepstakes winner on the basis of a state by state electoral vote count.

And yet last week's hearing before Sen. Estes Kefauver's subcommittee on constitutional amendments deserved in a way to be passed over lightly because neither this Congress nor any Congress is going to do anything about this scandalous monstrosity of an election system until there is overwhelming popular demand. And it is admitted that this demand is most unlikely to come until after some future presidential election has been so fouled up that a rush post-crisis repair job is mandatory.

APATHY IS PROBABLY NORMAL

This public apathy at this time is probably normal. After the Nixon-Kennedy 1960 contest, there was almost a national shriek for abolition of the electoral system. But it died down within a month, and both the 87th Congress and the present 88th have found no urgency requiring legislative action.

Some senators and certain political scientists in testimony today expressed grave concern about what may happen unless Congress realizes the seriousness of the problem. In a statement to the Kefauver committee, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating had this to say:

"The truth is that the present machinery is obsolete and there is a grave danger of a complete breakdown in its operation. Unfortuantely, there is such wide disagreement as to what machinery should be developed to replace it that it may require a breakdown before the necessary action is taken."

A PROF CITES FAULTY MECHANICS

And Williams College political science Prof. James MacGregor Burns, biographer of President Kennedy, was equally distrubed "about faulty mechanics of the Electoral College."

This would mean that if the election is close — and the tendency is more and more toward close presidential elections — Kennedy or his GOP rival could have trouble making the 270 electoral votes necessary to elect. And if so, the House, with its outmoded but constitutional one-vote-per-state system, would have to decide.

This, of course, is what the arch segregationists in the South are driving for. Working together along this line are Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett.

Neither wants any part of a third party movement. The reason may not be too obvious, but the fact is that third party presidential candidates in Deep South states are likely to split the Democratic Party's traditional vote and give the surging Southern Republican Party the electoral vote of Alabama at least, and possibly Mississippi and Louisiana.

The fact is — and those pushing for reform are not the only legislators aware of the immediate danger — that the civil rights controversy is now threatening to cause the electoral system issue to explode in the 1964 presidential election.

Three Southern states — Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi— have election laws permitting the choice of unpledged electors in next year's presidential election. Two other states, Florida and Louisiana, are considering similar legislation.

As Kefauver pointed out, if these five states in 1964 choose unpledged electors, 53 electoral votes would be held by electors neither committed to Kennedy for a second term nor his GOP opponent, whoever he may be.

In view of this developing threat to Democratic voting processes in a presidential election, why won't Congress act at long last to get rid of the Electoral College device?

The real answer is rather disgusting, even in the professorial language of Prof. Burns. He says the system is "steeped in politics — it affects the balance of parties, the power of interest groups, the fates of politicians."

What he means is that if the nation elected on a popular vote basis, the big city and state machines with their bosses would be stripped of their power in a national election. New York's 43 electoral votes in 1964 could not be delivered — it would be the national popular vote that counted, not the whole bagful of electoral votes of a key state as at present.

U.S. Approves State Farm Loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sens. Gordon Allott and Peter H. Dominick, Colorado Republicans, said here the U. S. Department of Agriculture had authorized emergency loans under the Farmers Home Administration to eight more Colorado counties.

The offices of the two senators said eligible farmers and ranchers in Chaffee, Fremont, Lake, Park, Delta, Garfield, Mesa, and Montrose counties could get the loans.

FHA loans previously were authorized to eligible farmers in 20 other counties in drought-struck areas of the state.

The senators' offices said no word had yet been received on the request by Gov. John Love for USDA drought disaster designation and emergency federal aid for 15 of the most seriously drought-struck counties in the state.

Capitol Police Reported Not Dressy Enough

WASHINGTON (AP) — The police who patrol the halls of Congress and the men who run its elevators are catching a bit of criticism about their appearance.

Some senators feel they're simply not dressy enough, considering the splendor of their place of work.

The Capitol policemen look pretty much like any other men in blue, with neither plumes nor breastplates. And some say you can't tell the elevator operators from the tourists unless you push the "up" buzzer.

Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., noted at a hearing here he has received complaints from several senators that the police have the worst dress uniforms of any capital in the world.

But William C. Cheatham, as aide to the Senate sergeant at arms, leaped to the defense of the police. He described them as "a fine looking group of men" who must keep their shoes shined, uniforms pressed, hair cut, and stand inspection.

Monroney suggested that the elevator operators and doormen be garbed so "they don't look like the tourists."

But Cheatham pointed out that distinction has its price: About $22,000 to dress the elvator and doormen so the public and the senators can recognize them.

Recognizing them was not a problem for first-term Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. The problem was their not recognizing him, he said, adding: "They should do a better job of distinguishing senators from tourists and clerks."

Slim Pickings For Congress Are Predicted

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP)—It looks like another week of slim pickings for Congress, which apparently is determined to stay in session again until well after the first frost of fall.

Only one major measure is on the dockets of the Senate and the House, both of which spent a quiet week last week.

It is the controversial area redevelopment bill, which some Republicans claim isn't necessary and has been used to promote the cause of the Democratic Party.

The bill, scheduled for House debate Wednesday, would add $450 million to the $379.5 million authorized program to help business and industry, in areas of high unemployment.

The House has no business today. Tuesday it will consider the annual appropriation bill to finance Congress, and on Thursday it will vote on the annual extension of emergency tax rates imposed during the Korean crisis.

That's the House docket for the week.

Still waiting in the wings are bills dealing with foreign aid, tax revision, civil rights, mass transportation aids, education, tightening of stock market laws and half a dozen big appropriation measures.

Two Subversive Groups Reported Out of Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S Court of Appeals has directed the Subversive Activities Control Board to withhold orders for two groups to register as Communist-front organizations until they show signs of resuming operations.

They are the American Peace Crusade and the Colorado Committee to Protect Civil Liberties. Former officials said both no longer exist.

In a third case, the court dismissed the appeal of the Washington Pension Union for a review of a similar order on the grounds that the organization had gone out of business and had no legal standing. It was formally dissolved in August 1961 under laws of the state of Washington. The registration order was issued in 1959.

The first two rulings were similar to the April 25 decision in a case involving the Labor Youth League, where the court said it was not possible to establish clearly that the league had been dissolved, and therefore the board should defer action until the league showed signs of new activities.

The American Peace Crusade was organized in February 1951 to conduct programs for world peace. It was ordered July 26, 1957, to register with the board as a Communist front.

Mrs. Betty Haufrecht, who said she was the last acting administrative secretary, contended that the crusade had dissolved in 1955, shortly after action was begun against it by the attorney general.

The Colorado Committee to Protect Civil Liberties was organized in 1954 to defend several persons accused under the Smith Act of plotting to overthrow the government, and was ordered to register April 15, 1959. The Justice Department has contended that the members of this committee were members of the Communist party in Colorado.

Mrs. Patricia Blau, one of the defendants in the Smith Act case, filed the appeal to federal courts, contending that the committee had been dissolved in 1956.

Birthday Party Broken Up by Sudden Tornado

JANESVILLE, Minn. (AP)—A farmer, his family and guests at a birthday party for the man's wife raced away in cars Sunday to escape a tornado that wrecked most of the farm buildings.

About 32 persons were at the Robert Britton farm for Mrs. Britton's birthday. The sky suddenly darkened and a funnel was seen approaching from the west.

Piling into a half dozen cars, everyone at the place drove off ahead of the twister. They were about a mile away when the funnel swept into the farmyard.

A barn was demolished, the the house and garage were heavily damaged, and the top was ripped from the silo. Loss was estimated at about $85,000.

Medics Coin Term for Eraser Swallowers

Two West Virginia radiologists have come across a new disease, call "eraserophagia" — the medical term for swallowing erasers.

Drs. J. L. Curry and W. J. Howland, both of Wheeling and associated with the Ohio Valley General Hospital, now have also reported some of the characteristic x-ray diagnostic signs for the condition, so their medical colleagues won't confuse it with actual pathology.

Recounting their detective work in the May issue of the American Journal of Roentgenology, Radium Therapy and Nuclear Medicine, Drs. Curry and Howland said: "We recently observed an abdominal roentgenogram (x-ray film) of an eight-year old female showing numerous discrete opacities (white spots) which were widely scattered thruout the colon (the large intestine).

There was no history of ingestion of radiopaque medication (material which because of density would appear as white spots on the x-ray film negative) but close questioning finally elicited a history of 'nibbling' on erasers in school. The eraser in question was procured and roentgenograms were taken (or the eraser)."

The doctors' interest was now whetted, and their research went even further. They themselves swallowed some erasers: "Deliberate ingestion of eraser fragments by ourselves reproduced our initial observations, but only with erasers of high roentgen (x-ray) density."

In other words, the ingested erasers appeared on the x-ray negatives only if they contained such substances as "lithophone," harmless but very clear on an x-ray film. Then, the two x-ray specialists took lots of x-rays of lots of erasers, to prove their point.

Their concluding admonition to medical colleagues: "Eraserophagia...is probably a rather common habit, particularly among school children."

Adlai Outlines Course for U.S.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—America's security depends on how well this country succeeds in keeping alive the propositions of freedom and equality, Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, says.

Stevenson, speaking at the dedication of the Memphis Metropolitan Airport, said the opening of the air terminal "is an event that today and in the years to come will play a major role in spreading the image of America and its aspirations far beyond our shores."

He added: "Free America has little impact if what we do in our land is not what we tell others to do in theirs."

He Says He Did Not Know He Was Chased

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert A. Balle Arce, 22, passed through 14 red lights and went the wrong way on two one-way streets while police pursued him at high speed through his Bronx neighborhood Sunday, police said.

Arrested on 27 traffic and other charges after he raced five blocks on foot from his abandoned auto, Balle Arce was quoted by officers as aying: "I didn't know you were chasing me."

Contraband Silver Coins Are Discovered

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP)—A contraband shipment of about one million pesos—$80,000 U.S. — in one-peso silver coins was seized Sunday by Mexican customs agents.

The shipment, according to Guillermo Alarcon Najera, Mexican federal customs collector, was to have been smuggled into the United States.

He said the silver coins, which had been retired from circulation because of their big silver value, were packed in several crates aboard a trailer brought to Juarez from Mexico City.

Medics Coin Term for Eraser Swallowers

Two West Virginia radiologists have come across a new disease, call "eraserophagia" — the medical term for swallowing erasers.

Drs. J. L. Curry and W. J. Howland, both of Wheeling and associated with the Ohio Valley General Hospital, now have also reported some of the characteristic x-ray diagnostic signs for the condition, so their medical colleagues won't confuse it with actual pathology.

Recounting their detective work in the May issue of the American Journal of Roentgenology, Radium Therapy and Nuclear Medicine, Drs. Curry and Howland said: "We recently observed an abdominal roentgenogram (x-ray film) of an eight-year old female showing numerous discrete opacities (white spots) which were widely scattered thruout the colon (the large intestine).

There was no history of ingestion of radiopaque medication (material which because of density would appear as white spots on the x-ray film negative) but close questioning finally elicited a history of 'nibbling' on erasers in school. The eraser in question was procured and roentgenograms were taken (or the eraser)."

The diagnosis: the eraser also was opqgue, just like the spots on the colon.

Another youngster appeared on the scene, a 12-year old boy. Same x-ray examination result. Same medical history — eraser nibbling.

The doctors' interest was now whetted, and their research went even further. They themselves swallowed some erasers: "Deliberate ingestion of eraser fragments by ourselves reproduced our initial observations, but only with erasers of high roentgen (x-ray) density."

In other words, the ingested erasers appeared on the x-ray negatives only if they contained such substances as "lithophone," harmless but very clear on an x-ray film. Then, the two x-ray specialists took lots of x-rays of lots of erasers, to prove their point.

Adlai Outlines Course for U.S.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—America's security depends on how well this country succeeds in keeping alive the propositions of freedom and equality, Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, says.

Stevenson, speaking at the dedication of the Memphis Metropolitan Airport, said the opening of the air terminal "is an event that today and in the years to come will play a major role in spreading the image of America and its aspirations far beyond our shores."

He added: "Free America has little impact if what we do in our land is not what we tell others to do in theirs."

He Says He Did Not Know He Was Chased

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert A. Balle Arce, 22, passed through 14 red lights and went the wrong way on two one-way streets while police pursued him at high speed through his Bronx neighborhood Sunday, police said.

Arrested on 27 traffic and other charges after he raced five blocks on foot from his abandoned auto, Balle Arce was quoted by officers as aying: "I didn't know you were chasing me."

Contraband Silver Coins Are Discovered

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP)—A contraband shipment of about one million pesos—$80,000 U.S. — in one-peso silver coins was seized Sunday by Mexican customs agents.

The shipment, according to Guillermo Alarcon Najera, Mexican federal customs collector, was to have been smuggled into the United States.

He said the silver coins, which had been retired from circulation because of their big silver value, were packed in several crates aboard a trailer brought to Juarez from Mexico City.
